—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

ANOTHER LABOR Day gone. May there never be another with so much political talk, so little action, so few jobs and such low payrolls. Some played golf. Some, to quote "Buggs" Baer, spent five hours sitting on baseball bleachers, "watching a double-header."

Some swam, some motored, some idled or planned stock speculations for next day. Ten millions without work worried, and their families worried with them.

"THERE IS good in all evil," and good will come from this depression.

Even the dullest exploiters of their fellow men begin to realize that human working hours and days must diminish, as machine efficiency increases.

The shorter working week and day will be one of the depression's products. And many that have crowded into hot, unnatural cities will escape to the country before the depression ends and always stay there, which will be a blessing for their children.

IN ONE NEW YORK county forty-five farms were taken over by a trust company, because mortgages were not paid. The farms lay idle, with good houses and stables, orchards, fields for crops, pasture and hay.

GOV. ROOSEVELT asked the trust company what it would charge to let the state welfare board put forty-five needy city families on the forty-five empty farms, and the company replied:

"Let them pay the taxes, no other charge."

FORTY-FIVE families are on the farms now. Gov. Roosevelt asked the mortgage title holding company:

"What will you charge for those farms, if the present occupants want to buy on the installment plan?"

The answer was:

"The face of the mortgage, with thirty-three years to pay, in installments."

More than thirty of the forty-five families have made contracts to buy their farms on the liberal terms. That means a decent life for the families if they succeed, and more good American children. What about the original owners, that lost their farms? They represent forty-five of ten million sad stories in this richest country.

PERSIAN BANDITS kidnaped three Americans, and after three days Persian authorities rescued them. Persian kidnapers should come here to take some lessons, and we might send some police experts to take lessons in Persia.

It will be interesting to know that the new Shah of Persia, formerly an employe of the British legation, has established a special court to punish all cases of graft. What a business such a court would do in this country, if, by chance, the grafters failed to "pick the judge."

YOU WONDER what makes our queer justice act with such remarkable consistency, where crime is concerned. For instance, two criminals, according to New York police report, attempted to kill a policeman. The policeman, Patrolman John Meenan, killed one of them, sent the other to the hospital.

One of these murderous criminals had been arrested nine times accused of crime, never convicted. The other had been arrested and set free ten times. If you had a mouse trap that worked so poorly you would get rid of it. Our criminal trap needs improvement.

FRANCE IS disturbed by a parade of one hundred and ninety-five thousand "steel helmets" in Berlin. The steel-hatted army was made up of war veterans and young men trained by them. Parading and fighting are in the blood. Not pious wishing, only long education of many generations can get it out.

THERE WERE two "steel helmet parades" yesterday in Kingston, N. Y., where this is filed for telegraphing. In one, ten small boys had one drum, one steel helmet, which covered the proud owner's ears, and one cardboard imitation helmet.

In the other parade there was no real helmet and no drum, but there was an impoverished flag and military marching.

GERMANY WILL march and plan for the next thirty or forty years, as France marched, planned and dreamed from 1870 to 1914. Then there will be another war, and for that France must keep prepared, especially in the air and under water.

Size of population, luckily for France, will make little difference in the next war, but in that war there will be no Britain, Russia, Italy or United States to join an anti-Kaiser war. It will be one republic against the other, outside nations cheerfully selling goods to both.

WHILE GERMANY'S steel helmets and Kingston's little boys were parading, Stalin, Russian ruler, reviewed a parade of two hundred thousand young men in the Red Square in Moscow.

These young men, told all their lives that any government except Bolshevist government is a crime against the people and that all religions are merely "so much opium to put the people to sleep," seemed to delight Stalin's smiling eyes.

Russian newspapers call upon the youth of all capitalistic nations to join with the youth of

JEAN HARLOW COLLAPSES IN TRAGEDY

Frantic, Star Unable to Aid in Probe of Mate's Suicide

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—Beautiful, blonde Jean Harlow, screen siren, today was in a state of collapse as authorities investigated the motive which caused her husband of two months, Paul Bern, 42, studio executive, to commit suicide.

With only a cryptic note to guide them, police were baffled. Miss Harlow was unable to make any coherent comment on her husband's death. At her mother's home she exclaimed over and over:

"Oh, God, how awful!
"This is terrible, terrible!"

PROBE DELAY LOOMS

Miss Harlow was still on the verge of collapse at the home of her stepfather today and her hysteria was expected to delay her story of the tragedy.

Detective Inspector David J. Davidson desired to question her in an effort to clear up the perplexing mystery of the motive of Bern's act. Davidson explained:

"So far as determining whether the death of Mr. Bern was suicide or not, the police investigation is a closed one.

"However, I will take a statement from Miss Harlow in an effort to define the motive."

Coroner Frank Nance, of Los Angeles County, who returned from an out-of-town trip, said he would review all police evidence in the case and make up his mind today whether an inquest would be held. He said:

"If facts warrant it, an inquest will be held tomorrow."

Miss Harlow became hysterical when news of her husband's death reached her, and at times her sobs and cries were so loud that they could be heard on the street outside her mother's home. A physician was summoned and it was early today before he and a nurse managed to calm her with

ORDER PROBE ON RELIEF FLOUR

Charges of Politics Spur Action by Emergency Head

The Allegheny County Emergency Association will conduct a city and county-wide investigation of the 133 agencies distributing government flour to the needy, it was announced today.

Investigators will probe the affairs of all agencies to discover what part politics play in their administration.

Director S. E. Claney, director of the association, said he had received no complaints about any of the groups. He said he has not received the resignation of Alfred E. Schwenke, secretary of the Twenty-first Ward Relief Association, flour distributors in that section.

SCHWENKE QUITS

Schwenke announced he would handle no more flour following the charges that only supporters of the city political machine were receiving flour from them.

Claney said he knew nothing of the charges. He declared:

"I will make a careful investigation of all agencies with political connections. If we find they have been abusing their privileges we shall cut them off. It will be a slow process and we shall do nothing until we have positive evidence against some group."

The relief situation was serious in the county where some 17,000 school children were called to their fall classes today without shoes and where many families are receiving curtailed relief on a slow starvation basis was darkest.

FUNDS DWINDLING

County funds—remnant of the $200,000 appropriated by the Poor Directors late in August—were due to run out this week. State aid sufficient to pay half food orders probably would continue county relief work through September, if used sparingly. State funds probably will be available some time this week.

Because city and county relief efforts must be conducted on the same basis, city destitute, too, are on insufficient relief basis.

The $800,000 realized from the sale of city bonds, several weeks ago, is sufficient to administer full relief, to give shoes to school children and adults. In reserve is the balance of the $5,000,000 issue authorized at the polls last April.

Until the county is supplied with money, however, full food orders cannot be issued. Shoes probably will be available late in the month, according to Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Director of Public Welfare. State aid will stretch the funds farther.

Mere Ballyhoo Does Not Put Bread Into Mouths of Workers

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

BETTER SENTIMENT is a desirable prelude to the launching of economically sound projects for ending the depression, but mere good feeling by itself is not enough.

Ballyhoo by itself does NOT put bread into the mouths of the 10,000,000 unemployed persons and of their dependents.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, the regular spokesman at the Capitol for scientific and progressive economists, has pointed to these truths in urging speedy action by the government on construction projects authorized in the Garner-Wagner relief act.

There is infinite wisdom in Senator Wagner's timely warning:

"The greatest danger to continued upswing in business is a false sense of security. Jobs must be provided or the confidence talk is just so much smoke."

Getting down to a bill of particulars, Senator Wagner insisted that Secretary Mills give the signal to release work in time to mitigate social distress in the coming winter—THE FOURTH WINTER OF HARD TIMES.

"I fear that, if we don't start these federal projects now, our problem this winter is going to be severe," the New York Senator admonished. "I wrote to each of the federal departments which would carry on the construction called for in the act and asked them whether they were prepared to go ahead. All replied that they were ready and awaited only certificates from Secretary Mills."

UNLESS SECRETARY MILLS acts immediately, he will open himself to the suspicion that the administration is interested only in such relief moves as it can capitalize politically. He should not delay longer in executing the relief law of Democratic authorship.

It is not only good sociology to redeem the unemployed from idleness, but also GOOD BUSINESS.

Mere palliatives will be of temporary value only.

No reconstruction scheme will succeed which neglects to restore economic balance through building up the depleted purchasing power of the unemployed workers.

In the face of existing subnormal employment, it is incumbent on the administration to execute the will of Congress through creating jobs through public projects.

SENATOR WAGNER has rendered a service in turning public attention from the stock ticker to the NEGLECTED FAMILIES WHO HAVE BORNE A DISPROPORTIONATE SHARE of the cost of the depression.

On account of the administration's timidity, Congress surrounded relief with much red tape.

CHALLENGES WHITEWASH REPORTS

2 Small Raids Made After Denunciation Of Constables

Judge Frank P. Patterson, hearing the quarterly returns of constables today, scored police officers of the county, spurred the county detectives and District Attorney to action, rejected returns of many constables and announced that amended reports would be received next Friday.

During the non recess of court, many of the constables disappeared and were not present when court resumed for the afternoon session.

TWO SMALL RAIDS

During the interim, county detectives staged two small raids and city police promised action against a big gambling club supposed to be "opposite a police station and near an alderman's office."

Judge Patterson charged:

"These flagrant violations can't exist unless there is a connivance and bartering between the law enforcement officers and the operators."

Almost the first constables to be heard, those from Braddock, found the court armed with many complaints and Police Chief Michael Mahalic, of Braddock, constable of the First Ward there, was ordered to make an amended report after he had given negative reports to the court's interrogations about places against which complaints had been lodged with the court.

When court resumed this afternoon, none of the constables from the downtown, Oakland or East End had reported. They had been present during the morning, it was reported.

BOMBSHELL

Judge Patterson's query of the constables dropped a bombshell in the office of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, although Park's office was represented at the hearing by Assistant George F. P. Langhi...

When Judge Patterson referred to the law violating club which he

WOMAN KILLS SELF IN BANK

While a companion waited to accompany her to a doctor's office during their lunche period, Miss Elsie Cottrill, 30, of Wellington drive, Forest Hills, shot and killed herself today in a dressing room in the First National Bank of Wilkinsburg, where she was employed as secretary to the bank officials, according to a report to the Coroner.

Miss Cottrill had been employed at the bank for about 10 years. A. K. King, the president, and George Rankin, Jr., vice president, said that she had no connection with the banking business other than that of secretary to the officers.

Miss Alice Galley, another employe, said she wanted on the bank's first floor while Miss Cottrill went to the second floor dressing room.

When her friend did not return, Miss Galley said she went to the dressing room and found Miss Cottrill on the floor, wounded, a gun nearby. Dr. A. S. Haines, of Wilkinsburg, was summoned. He pronounced her dead.

President King said the girl had been ill for a number of years and had brooded following the death of her mother two years ago.

Ex-Kaiser at Shore For Holiday Week

ZANDVOORT, Holland, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Former Kaiser Wilhelm, Princess Hermine and her two daughters, arrived at this seaside resort today to stay a week. A report that the former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm would visit his father here could not be confirmed.

STEEL PLANTS BUSIER HERE

Carnegie Steel Company, leading subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation in this district, reported its output at 16 per cent of capacity today. A week ago mills started to work at 11 per cent.

National Steel and other independent companies advanced operations slightly.

American Bridge officials declare that several attractive structural steel contracts are in the hands of engineering departments and probably will be released within the next month.

Warrants Issued for 9 In Lindy 'Captive' Case

By CLIFFORD A. SHAW
International News Service.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 6.—Justice struck back today in swift retaliation at the sub-rosa "investigation" of the Baby Lindbergh case when warrants were issued in wholesale fashion for nine men alleged to have participated in the "probe," which resulted in Garret Schenck, New Jersey fish peddler, being held captive for nearly three months in the Pennsylvania hills.

Warrants charging all of the men with conspiracy and alleging other charges against several of the men, were sworn out here this afternoon. Schenck is remaining here voluntarily in the custody of Sheriff Ira McCloskey, of this city.

Two of the main figures in the bizarre story related by Schenck, J. J. (Jack) Devine, private investigator, and his son-in-law, Roy Cummings, of DuBois, an assistant to Devine, were charged with kidnaping and assault and battery in addition to the conspiracy count.

Vickerman, Sinking, Hope for Life Fades

Little hope was held out this afternoon for John W. Vickerman, director of the County Bureau of Elections, Sunday School leader and former assemblyman, ill at his home in Clinton Place, Bellevue. Pneumonia had subsided, it was said, but a blood stream infection, resulting from a mosquito bite suffered a month ago while on a camping trip in Canada, led physicians to predict only a slight chance of recovery.

Fire Burns 6-Foot Hole in Span Walk

Fire of undetermined origin today burned a six-foot hole in the footpath of the Smithfield Street Bridge while hundreds of persons looked on. Engine Company No. 1 put out the blaze, the fourth in two months. Traffic on the bridge was held up for about 15 minutes.

Reed and Pershing To View Battlefields

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, as a member of the Battle Monuments Commission, planned today to leave here tomorrow with Gen. John J. Pershing for a two or three-day motor inspection trip to the World War battlefront.

He expected to spend next week-end as a guest of Ambassador Walter E. Edge before going on to London.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Mrs. Edward N. Hurley, wife of the former head of the United States Shipping Board, was killed today when her automobile was struck by a train.

Her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Ryan, Jr., were injured. Ryan was driving the car.

COUTY FIRES 4 INDICTED MEN

Four county employes, indicted by the grand jury in the county probe, were discharged by the County Commissioners today.

Those discharged are C. C. Benz, purchasing clerk; C. W. Doherty, accountant; David B. Roberts, assistant to the director, all in the Department of Property and Supplies and A. A. Donofrio, clerk in the Board for Assessment and revision of taxes.

Chairman C. C. McGovern, noting an apparent hesitancy on the part of his fellow commissioners in making the necessary motion, said:

"I move these four men be separated from the service. This board does not wish to put itself in the position of prejudging anyone. However, the public has been imposed upon so long by county officials and employes that we should co-operate with the grand jury in its action."

Commissioner C M. Barr seconded the motion which was passed unanimously.

State Senator James J. Coyne today posted bond of $1,000 for his lieutenant, Howard Neely, ward chairman of the Fourth Ward, indicted by the grand jury for election frauds. Other bonds posted today were those of Roy F. Walters, Howard D. Allan, C. W. Mullen and James F. Gallagher.

JUDGE PATTERSON SCORES CONSTABLES ON CRIME WAVE

said was opposite a police station and within a half block of an alderman's office, it was immediately suspected that it was one which the Oakland police say they had under "surveillance." Judge Patterson said the club in Oakland was not the one he had reference to. He said:

"I am going to question the constable and will not be more specific until then."

PARK STATEMENT

Park said:

"I did not know there was such a club in the city. It (referring to the club in Oakland) was not on the list I had. I began raids on complaints I had received Saturday. We got one place Saturday and two places today.

"My understanding was that after the constables had made their reports, Judge Patterson would turn his list over to me and the raids would then take place. In view of the publicity accorded this place across the street from the police station, it would hardly be worth while making a raid today. It would be a 'dry' raid."

"I suspected some time ago that something was on in that place (meaning the club in Oakland.) A number of reports of gambling were made to me and I immediately detailed two plainclothesmen to gain entrance and secure evidence. My men evidently were known, as on a number of occasions they were refused admittance. The place is a hard one to crash."

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh said he would take every step to have the place raided.

PLACES RAIDED

The places raided today by county detectives were the basement of a confectionery and notion store at 5442 Walnut street, Charles Nicholas, the alleged proprietor, was charged with violating the Snyder act and maintaining gambling devices. In the Hill district a raid was stage at 66 Roberts street, where Nathan Rogoff, alleged proprietor, was charged with violating the Snyder act.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Judge Patterson said that the addresses of some of the places he referred to had come to him only this morning. He said those constables who did not appear today would be notified to appear in open court tomorrow to file their reprts. County detectives were sent out to notify the missing constables.

Seven of the Pittsburgh constables did not appear.

Earl R. Sams, Negro constable of the Fifth Ward, was the first city constable to appear. He said there were no violations in his district. Questioned by the court, he produced a list and told the court three places against which complaints had been filed had moved.

TOLD TO GET WARRANT

R. E. Marshall, of the Thirteenth Ward, said he couldn't get evidence against certain suspicious places in his district and was told to get a search warrant.

Frank Ferris, head of the homicide squad and constable from the Twenty-fifth Ward, reported no violations. He told of trying to raid an alleged distillery in Federal street, having men on duty there for three days.

D. A. McGeary, Twenty-second Ward, didn't know anything against seven places in Plush way, Robinson street and Lacock street and was told to investigate. Judge Patterson asked him about Hetty Collins, Isabella street, and Net Gordon, of Plush way and North avenue. He said he had heard of "Net" Gordon, but not the Collins woman.

As the constables assembled to make their quarterly return, the judge delivered an address in which he said:

"These flagrant violations can't exist unless there is a connivance and bartering between the law enforcement officers and the operators."

SCORES OFFICERS

After telling the constables they should resent the appellation "Blind Men's Parade," he said:

"We have information of a gambling house across the street from a police station and within half a block of an alderman's office.

"Newspapers print with impunity the names of so-called numbers bands and also point out what they call 'hot spots' in the county. Every one seems to know about these law violations except those charged with suppressing them.

URGES REDRESS

Judge Patterson, after stating the operation of a speakeasy or a gambling house must not be regarded as a harmless violation of the law, said:

"You, as members of the minor judiciary system, have the power to bring redress."

He told the constables that if necessary a special grand jury session would be called and ended by saying:

"When you make your return we hope you will have information of all law violations in your bailiwicks. If you do not have this information we will grant you time to make an investigation and bring in a report."

GOV. ROOSEVELT AT STATE FAIR

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—New York's annual state fair, which yesterday heard Secretary of Labor William N. Doak extol President Hoover as the "greatest of all outstanding humanitarian figures," today had as its guest Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Two days in advance of the annual "Governor's Day," Mr. Roosevelt came on an overnight train from his residence at Hyde Park. Each year the Governor visits the state fair and addresses the thousands of New Yorkers and other visitors who gather in the fair grounds. Today, however, Mr. Roosevelt is not scheduled to make any speech.

This year the Governor's Day visit will be made by Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, whom Mr. Roosevelt is supporting for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Smith Lieutenant Backs Roosevelt

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Complete indorsement of the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was made today for the first time by Thomas J. Spellacy, of Hartford, under whose leadership Connecticut delegates at the Democratic National Convention supported nomination of Alfred E. Smith.

Spellacy's indorsement of Roosevelt followed a conference of Old Guard leaders in Bridgeport, where the New York Governor spoke Saturday night.

Hearings Delayed By Ainey Funeral

Public Service Commission hearings here will be postponed until after the funeral of William D. B. Ainey, former head of the board, which is to be held in Harrisburg tomorrow evening, it was said here today.

The hearing of Andy Garavini against the Yellow Cab Company, which he alleges is transporting passengers to and from the city and the County Airport at a flat rate of 50 cents a person, scheduled for today, was among the hearings postponed.

Highway Patrolman, Hit by Auto, Dies

READING, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Joseph A. Conrad, of Mahanoy City, 24, member of the state highway patrol, died in the hospital today as a result of injuries suffered a week ago in an automobile accident.

Roy L. Heins, of this city, is being held in bail of $500 on charges of aggravated assault and battery as the driver of the automobile which struck Conrad near here.

Drowning of Priest Laid to Heart Disease

Heart disease today was believed to have been the cause of the death of the Rev. John P. Joyce, 32, assistant pastor at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, Lawrenceville, stricken while swimming yesterday in the Allegheny River near Cheswick.

Father Joyce, a graduate of Duquesne University and St. Vincent Seminary, Latrobe, was celebrating Labor Day with friends across the river from Cheswick. With him was the Rev. George Haber, of St. Luke's Church, Carnegie.

He went swimming and dived into the river from a rowboat. When he reappeared the wind had blown the boat away and he called for help, according to witnesses.

Reba Mooney, 15, of 3468 Ligonier street; James Sullivan, of 3469 Denny street, and Paul Pazerski, former Carnegie Tech student, dragged the priest ashore.

Attendants from the Duquesne Light Company substation at Springdale worked over the victim more than two hours in an effort to revive him. Dr. W. P. McCullough said he had suffered a heart attack.

Last rites were administered by Father Haber and Father Augustine Zieger, of St. Alphonsus Church, Springdale.

Father Joyce has been at St. John's since July, 1931. He was ordained six years ago at St. Vincent Seminary, and after his ordination was assistant pastor at St. Jerome's Church, Charleroi.

Before being ordained Father Joyce was well-known in the semi-professional baseball world. His parents live in Carrick.

STORM MISSES FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Florida was out of the path of the latest tropical storm today but the Weather Bureau had ordered hurricane warnings for the Middle Atlantic Coast.

Since Thursday a storm of reported hurricane intensity has been pushing slowly across the Caribbean toward the far southern mainland but early today it had shifted its course and pointed northward with the possibility that it would strike sometime late today between Wilmington, N. C., and Cape Hatteras.

However, weather charters said the warnings were precautionary and that there was a strong likelihood that the storm might again curve outward across the ocean, endangering shipping but not touching the coast.

Republican Leader Warns Hoover Friend

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—A threat to oust Alan Fox, chief of the Hoover clubs bureau of the Republican state committee and a friend of the President, from the committee unless he ceased "activities destructive of party harmony" was conveyed today to him through a letter written by State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy.

Macy acted after receiving complaints that Fox supported a movement within the party directed against Borough President George U. Harvey, Queens.

Public Defender's Jury Stays Out

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Frank J. Egan, deposed public defender, and Albert Tinnin, ex-convict, continued today to express confidence of acquittal of murder charges as a jury entered its fourth day of deliberations.

Presiding Judge Frank H. Dunne said the jurors had not requested a discharge nor hinted a disagreement. Egan and Tinnin were tried on charges of murdering Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes, elderly widow friend and client of the public defender.

Russia in doing away with capitalism. It is understood that the ten thousand young vice presidents of banks and trust companies in America will decline the invitation.

SOME UNFORTUNATE Chicago men and women now know that hiding your money away may be dangerous. Three hundred and fifty safe deposit boxes in the office of Koch & Company were broken open by burglars. Eight adults, two children were held prisoners fourteen hours, while the safe-breakers worked and stole a million dollars put in boxes by those "too wise to trust banks."

If you do not want to trust a bank put it in your Uncle Sam's postoffice savings bank. He will put it in some bank, and guarantee you.

Grand Jury Foreman Named, Court Opens

J. Frank Hickey, 1129 Milton avenue, Swissvale, was named foreman of the September grand jury today by Judge Frank P. Patterson, as the term of court formally opened. A list of minor cases will be disposed of in the opening week. There are seven women and 12 men on the jury.

FEDERAL RELIEF SESSION NEAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(Universal.)—To fight starvation and suffering among unemployed and their families next winter, welfare leaders will gather here in about 10 days seeking co-ordination of relief activities and money-raising campaigns.

The co-ordination will be directed by the welfare and relief mobilization, headed by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

Although formal estimates of relief needs have not yet been made, it is believed that well over $500,000,000 will have to be raised by local governments and private agencies, beyond the funds the government has begun to parcel out.

The emphasis will be upon community effort. A national fund made up from private contributions also is contemplated.

Group Sees Relief Needs Grow in '33

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—More unemployed throughout the state will be in need of aid next year than in the last year, the temporary emergency relief administration predicted today in a report which declared $150,000,000 from private and public sources would be necessary for caring for the needy from November 15 of this year until November 15, 1933.

WALKER'S WAR ON ROOSEVELT OPPOSED

Party Leaders Called To Halt Attacks Of Ex-Mayor

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Disturbed by the widespread criticism of his attack on Gov. Roosevelt, James J. Walker suddenly decided to return to the city today and consult with his Tammany advisers on his plan to seek vindication by re-election as Mayor.

Strong opposition has developed to a Walker candidacy aimed at injuring Roosevelt's chances of carrying the state in the presidential campaign, and party leaders have scheduled a series of conferences for this week in the hope of amicably settling the tangled situation.

MEETING OF LEADERS

The first of these meetings was expected to be held today, with the return of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic chieftain, Walker's chief sponsors, from week-end vacations.

Curry, reached by telephone at Lenox, Mass., would not reveal whether he has summoned all county leaders for a conference. It was believed certain, however, that he would see some of them at his usual Tuesday conference at Tammany Hall, and sound out their sentiments on Walker's vindication campaign.

In Democratic circles there was general belief that John Theofel, Queens leader, and David S. Rendt, Richmond County chairman, would stand with Curry and McCooey in backing Walker's nomination. This would leave Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Bronx County chairman and Roosevelt supporter, as the only one of the five county leaders in the city to oppose Walker.

AWAIT CHIEFS' DECISION

It is known definitely that Curry has not set a day for the meetings of the county committees, at which the candidates for mayor must be chosen, and it is deemed likely no date will be set until opinions of the party's chiefs have been received.

McCooey, in Bretton Woods, N. H., yesterday spiked reports that he had denied promising his support to Walker. Over the telephone, McCooey repudiated the authenticity of a Brooklyn newspaper interview picturing him as keeping an open mind on the Walker candidacy.

Former Mayor Walker, who has been staying at the Larchmont home of A. C. Blumenthal the last two days, would not comment on the political situation, but said he might have a statement to make tonight. Blumenthal insisted Walker would run for re-election and that nothing has occurred to cause him to change his mind.

Hurt in Stage Crash

JUNE BLOSSOM . . . PROPS COLLAPSED ON REVUE COMPANY

Miss Blossom, the society girl who went on the stage, one of 12, cut, bruised and shocked in the collapse of a fan-shaped trellis on the stage of Philadelphia's Forrest Theater on the company of "Flying Colors," new revue. Principals sang finale, quieted audience.

12 GIRLS HURT, SHOW GOES ON

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A chorus girl suffered a broken ankle and a dozen other members of the cast of "Flying Colors," the new Howard Dietz revue, were cut and bruised in the collapse of a fanshaped trellis on the stage of the Forrest Theater—but the show went on.

The trellis, holding most of the cast in a colorful setting for the finale, collapsed just as the curtain was about to rise on the closing number last night.

The crash was heard in the audience, but Clifton Webb, Charles Butterworth, Patsy Kelly, and Jean Sargent, headliners, quickly rushed before the curtain, sang the finale music and brought the revue to a close before the audience knew what had occurred.

Teddy West, the most seriously hurt, is in a hospital today with a broken ankle. Virginia Whitmore and Carol Renwick, two other chorus girls, were treated at hospitals, but all the others received first aid treatment back stage.

Hoover and Wilbur Return From Camp

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—President Hoover returned to his White House desk early today after his holiday stay at his Rapidan camp. Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, his close friend and political adviser, motored back to Washington with him.

SLAIN HERMIT'S TORTURE BARED

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 6.—Two Negroes reported to have been seen loitering in the neighborhood were hunted today by county detectives and state police in their investigation of the torture slaying of Martin Patton, 85, reputed wealthy recluse, whose body was found yesterday at his isolated home in Hanover Township, Beaver County.

A report of Coroner H. C. McCarter indicated the aged man's slayers had sought to wring from him disclosure of the hiding place of large sums of money neighbors said Patton was supposed to have secreted about his home. An autopsy, the Coroner reported, showed the man had been tortured before his death.

Patton apparently was visited by the murderers Sunday night. He lived alone in a dilapidated two-story frame house and sold fruits and vegetables to summer campers along Raccoon Creek.

Campers were questioned by the officers without tangible results, it was reported. County detectives said they learned later of the presence of the Negroes near Patton's home and that they were pressing a search for them.

Tragedy Strikes Blonde At Height of Film Fame

'Platinum Menace' Conquered With Exotic Allure

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—Jean Harlow rose to dizzy heights on the wings of glorified allure as the platinum blonde "meanace" in "Hell's Angels."

Born with a silver spoon in her mouth, she learned, as she grew to womanhood, that her wealth of platinum hair was her open sesame to fame.

Her career reached its climax with her marriage on July 2, to gentle, conservative Paul Bern, from whom, her friends said, she was as different as day from night.

It was her second marriage. It was a new high-point in the thrilling course of her 21 years.

MARRIED 'PLAYBOY'

Before she entered pictures and soon after she left school in Lake Forest, Ill., Jean was married in 1927 to Charles F. McGrew II, playboy son of a wealthy Chicago family.

Mrs. McGrew (nee Harlean Carpenter) was restless. When she and her husband came to Beverly Hills, she thought of motion pictures as a new thrill. McGrew objected to a film career. Undeterred by his protests, she sought and obtained a small part at a studio.

Her hair—that mass of silvery charm which was, in a sense her trademark, caught the eye of the casting director at Hal Roach studios. She was brought there to play a second lead.

Meanwhile, from Kansas City, her birthplace, came protests from her wealthy grandfather. He agreed with her husband that the films were no place for a young girl brought up to be a social light.

BORED BY DOMESTICITY

Temporarily, Jean abandoned her career. But she became dissatisfied with domesticity, and after seven months she obtained through her friends, Ben Lyon and James Hall, a five-year contract with Howard Hughes, who was about to produce "Hell's Angels," sensational air picture.

Into that part Director Lewis Milestone, crammed all the allure which the young woman, blessed with spectacular beauty of face and figure, had been endowed.

After "Hell's Angels" was released, Miss Harlow's future was assured. Movie men sang superlative praises of the "platinum blonde." The Harlow hair became famous the world over.

McGrew, meantime, had become unhappy. He agreed with his wife that a divorce was best. She filed suit in Los Angeles, charging that her husband was cruel and intemperate. She won the decree.

A property settlement was arranged, carrying with it an allowance of $375 a month, a $17,500 home in Beverly Hills and an automobile.

ALLURE CAPITALIZED

Then the actress scored success after success. Always her allure was capitalized.

Among the elect of Hollywood, her beauty came to be recognized as outstanding. Her delicately pink skin, her startling silvery-white hair, her brightly blue eyes, coupled with the form-fitting raiment adorning her tall, sinuous figure, made her a vivid, unforgettable woman.

All studios sought her. The Kansas City girl had successfully stormed the cinema citadel. Hughes found that her contract with him was a highly profitable investment.

She scored a triumph with James Cagney in "The Public Enemy." And then she went to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. There she met Paul Bern.

BERN'S BROTHER SEES MYSTERY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—The youngest brother of Paul Bern left by plane today for the Pacific Coast, determined to "find out why Paul killed himself—or what happened." As he left Newark Airport he said:

"There must be a motive for suicide. What motive could there have been in this case? I can't conceive of one."

Bern, who attended the wedding of his brother and Jean Harlow, said the movie executive told him only recently that he was very happy. He added:

"I am at a loss to understand why Paul should do such a thing. This note he left doesn't explain things, either, it does not make any sense to me."

Asked about reports that his brother had quarreled over the dismissal of Russian servants, Bern said:

Ill Here, Jean Kept Tradition of Stage

Illness was Jean Harlow's lot during her only personal appearance in Pittsburgh last December, but she carried out the tradition of the stage, and the show "went on."

The pltainum blonde of the movies suffered an acute attack of intestinal influenza, but insisted on making scheduled stage appearances against the advice of her physician. She was accompanied here by her father and mother.

Jean's Father May Go to Hollywood

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Dr. Mont Clair Carpenter, father of Jean Harlow, said today, "It is quite possible that I will go to Hollywood." Dr. Carpenter, a dentist, and Jean's mother, now Mrs. Marino Bello, were divorced here in 1922. Jean, to whom the name Harlean was given by her parents, later adopted her mother's maiden name, Harlow.

Tender Farewells Before Suicide Revealed

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—Paul Bern and Jean Harlow parted on the best of terms Sunday night only a few hours before Bern took his own life.

This was the declaration today of John Carmichael, butler at the Bern home. It was Carmichael who found Bern's body. He said:

"Mr. Bern was lying in bed Sunday evening when I entered his room, carrying Miss Jean's evening dress."

Miss Jean said:

"'Paul, dear, I'll say good night now in case I don't see you again.'"

Mr. Bern replied:

"'Good night, dear.'

'TOO MUCH IN LOVE'

The butler revealed that Bern was "almost too much in love with his wife." He said:

"Every day he sent her a present of some kind—flowers, candy, books and other love gifts. He was never harsh, nor was she. They were an ideal couple, almost too much in love with each other."

Carmichael expressed belief the crisis in the lives of the two must have come Saturday night when Bern went to the studio and dined with his wife. The butler said:

"Mr. Bern's postscript to the note said: 'You understand last night was only a comedy.'

"Something must have happened between them at that last dinner together.

"Mr. Bern read and slept all day Saturday, while Miss Jean was working at the studio. He dined with her—she only had two hours' rest for dinner—between 6 and 8 o'clock. He came home about 10:30 and read until quite late.

"Miss Jean worked late. When she was through, she went to her mother's home.

"From her mother's she telephoned Mr. Bern and asked him to come over, and he told her: "'It's so late now, darling. You must work tomorrow, so why don't you stay there tonight?'

DANCE PARTY

"Thursday night they went dancing at the Miramar Hotel in Santa Monica. They were very happy. And on Friday night a writer friend was a dinner guest at the house.

"Saturday, when they were separated by Miss Jean's work.

"On Sunday Miss Jean phoned about 1 o'clock, but Mr. Bern was still asleep. She told me not to wake him.

"Later that afternoon Miss Jean came home.

"They seemed happy. We were all planning to go to Miss Jean's family home for dinner. She said: 'Paul, dear, I'll say good night in case I don't see you again.' It surprised me, as he had planed to go.

"But there were no angry words spoken.

"We left the house about 8:15. The chauffeur returned for my wife a little later. He must have done it after she left, about 9:15.

"And more than 12 hours later I found the body. I can't understand it. It is a mystery why Mr. Bern should take his own life. He had everything to live for."

POVERTY BLIGHT IN CHILDHOOD BLAMED

Hollywood Executive, Jean Harlow's Mate, Aided Many Stars

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—Thoughts of suicide were not new to Paul Bern, the screen executive who ended his own life yesterday.

Friends of his in Hollywood declared today he often remarked that several other members of his family had written "finis" to their lives by their own hands.

Time and again, too, Bern discussed the possibility of seeking the answer to his problems in self-destruction. He often told intimates he considered it proper for a man to end his life if he felt that his existence no longer was justified, friends said.

Bern attributed this morbid outlook to the fact that in his early youth in New York, as a member of a large and poverty-stricken family, he went without food and came to have an unhappy viewpoint on life.

SHUNNED REVELRY

Kindly and modest, a quiet, cultured gentleman, who shunned the false hilarity, the hectic revelry of Hollywood; counsellor and friend to many; a business genius who saw in motion pictures not only box office returns, but artistry—that, according to those who knew him, was Paul Bern.

Ranked as an associate producer at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, there were associates who declared he was responsible for many of the studios' major successes.

Bern was known as "Hollywood's father confessor." Studio troubles and the joys and sorrows of studio folk were taken to him. Always he was sympathetic. He was ever ready to advise, or, if necessary, to fight for his friends.

And the gloom into which the cinema capital was plunged tonight by the news of his death was was real. Nearly all of the great and the near-great had benefited by Bern's helping hand.

AIDED STARS, EXTRAS

His heart and his pocketbook were as readily opened for the extra as they were for the star. And when the world pointed a finger of scorn or turned a cold shoulder at some unfortunate one, he was the first to go to the rescue.

There was the case of late Barbara La Marr, his one-time great friend. Poverty-stricken, she was at death's door. Her fair-weather friends had deserted her.

But Bern bought her a home in Altadena. Los Angeles' foremost physicians were summoned by him. He saw to it that nurses were always in attendance, and he, himself, was at her bedside when death came.

Lovely Mabel Normand found Bern loyal to the last. When she was involved in the mystery surrounding the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, it was Bern who shielded her.

To the day of her death, Miss Normand was grateful.

Bern had an especial sympathy for foreign artists, baffled by the customs of Hollywood—strange, even barbarous, to them.

ADVISED VALENTINO

Nida Naldi sought and received his advice. So did Rudolph Valentino. And there is in the heart of Ramon Novarro a great affection for the man who was a brother to him—Paul Bern.

The story of John Gilbert's friendship for Bern is one of a genuine, lasting manly devotion. Gilbert's stormy studio career, he is frank to admit, might have had serious consequences had it not been for Bern's guidance.

That great star of a generation ago—Wallace Reid—knew he could count on Bern for help when he needed it badly.

He had the courage of his convictions. He was fearless enough to take an active, aggressive part in the movement to liberate Tom Mooney.

Not long ago a famous woman star was dying of a dread disease. She was penniless. Bern came to her aid, sent her to a sanatorium, paid all the expenses. Now she is staging a successful comeback.

Bern was born in Vanderbeck, Germany 42 years ago and came to New York at the age of 9. He went on the stage with Annie Russell's stock company in 1910 and later became a dramatist.

MARRIES JEAN HARLOW

Bern was the cinema capital's "proverbial bachelor" until his marriage to the glamorous Jean Harlow, screen star.

On July 2, after a whirlwind courtship, they were married.

It appeared to their intimates that they were ideally happy. Bern was a wealthy man; his bride, too, was free of financial worries.

According to studio attaches, Bern had been at his office infrequently during the last 10 days. It was thought he had been on the verge of a nervous breakdown, induced, perhaps by overwork.

JEAN HARLOW PROSTRATED BY HUSBAND'S SUICIDE

the administration of sedatives. Her mother was also placed under medical care.

CROWD HEARS CRIES

A crowd of curious collected outside the house and police were summoned to keep them moving.

Hollywood, shocked over Bern's death, recalled his many benefactions, and how he had aided Barbara LaMarr and Mabel Normand in their misfortunes, and had helped advance the careers of John Gilbert, Joan Crawford, Estelle Taylor, and other stars and players.

An autopsy was the first official move today in the investigation of the real life tragedy which brought to an end what Hollywood had believed an ideally happy marriage.

Officials were also investigating the reason for delay in notifying them of the death of Bern.

Bern was believed to have shot himself through the head before a mirror in a dressing room of his beautiful Benedict Canyon home Sunday night.

Bern was alone in the house after Miss Harlow, accompanied by John Carmichael, the butler, and Mrs. Carmichael, the cook, had gone to the home of Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Marino Bello, for dinner Sunday night.

Bern's body, unclad, was discovered in a dressing room off the bedroom on the second floor of the home by Carmichael, who notified studio executives, including Irving Thalberg, who summoned police.

CRYPTIC NOTE TO JEAN

The cryptic suicide note, addressed to Miss Harlow, was inscribed in a green morocco-bound notebook. It was undated, and read:

"Dearest Dear: Unfortunately this is the only way to make good the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation. I love you. Paul."

A postscript read:

"You understand last night was only a comedy."

What the "comedy" episode was that preceded Bern's death was a mystery that detectives today were endeavoring to unravel.

Carmichael said that the couple was on the best of terms just before Miss Harlow departed for her mother's home Sunday night. He said:

"They seemed to be as much in love as ever."

DISPUTE REPORTED

Police planned to question George Davis, Negro landscape gardener, who said he had heard some words of controversy between Mr. and Mrs. Bern.

He said they had had some discussion over the title of the home which Bern deeded to his wife on their marriage. Davis said he understood from the conversation Mrs. Bern desired in turn to deed her home to her parents and Bern objected.

Bern's intimate friends, in an effort to explain his deed, said that he had a "supersenitive personality," and reacted readily to the slightest emotional strain. From a philosophical viewpoint he frequently had discussed suicide, they recalled.

Strangely significant became a "family inheritance" Bern had mentioned. He had descended from a strain in which there had been previous suicides.

This led to the belief that Bern had taken advantage of his beautiful wife's absence to commit suicide in a move that previously had been carefully planned.

MOTIVE SOUGHT

But the motive for his act was missing!

Detective Lieut. Joseph Whitehead, who launched an investigation into the strange death, said the case was "clearly suicide," but he nevertheless ordered Bern's two guns examined for fingerprints. One revolver, unused, was found on the dresser.

Reports on the discovery of the body were confusing. Joseph Taylor, chief of detectives, was trying to learn why "we were not notified until nearly two hours after the body was discovered."

Carmichael said he found the body when he went to his master's bedroom to throw up the shades shortly before noon yesterday. He said Bern was alone in the house over night. Later, Davis, the gardener, asserted he had been called into the house after Carmichael had fainted upon making the gruesome discovery.

Miss Harlow worked late Saturday night at the studio, and police believed that the suicide had its inception that night.

Bern Ideal Man, Jean Wrote to Grandmother

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Jean Harlow's grandmother, Mrs. S. D. Harlow, who raised the platinum blonde through childhood, and from whom the film star acquired her screen name, was grief stricken today on learning of the tragic death of her granddaughter's husband, Paul Bern. Mrs. Harlow sobbed:

"I do not know how the poor little thing is going to bear up through this tragedy. She had seemed so happy since her marriage and was so much in love with her husband.

"She wrote me that her husband was the purest, cleanest and whitest soul she had ever known."

JUDGE PATTERSON SCORES CONSTABLES ON CRIME WAVE

said was opposite a police station and within a half block of an alderman's office, it was immediately suspected that it was one which the Oakland police say they had under "surveillance." Judge Patterson said the club in Oakland was not the one he had reference to. He said:

"I am going to question the constable and will not be more specific until then."

PARK STATEMENT

Park said:

"I did not know there was such a club in the city. It (referring to the club in Oakland) was not on the list I had. I began raids on complaints I had received Saturday. We got one place Saturday and two places today.

"My understanding was that after the constables had made their reports, Judge Patterson would turn his list over to me and the raids would then take place. In view of the publicity accorded this place across the street from the police station, it would hardly be worth while making a raid today. It would be a 'dry' raid."

"I suspected some time ago that something was on in that place (meaning the club in Oakland.) A number of reports of gambling were made to me and I immediately detailed two plainclothesmen to gain entrance and secure evidence. My men evidently were known, as on a number of occasions they were refused admittance. The place is a hard one to crash."

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh said he would take every step to have the place raided.

PLACES RAIDED

The places raided today by county detectives were the basement of a confectionery and notion store at 5442 Walnut street, Charles Nicholas, the alleged proprietor, was charged with violating the Snyder act and maintaining gambling devices. In the Hill district a raid was stage at 66 Roberts street, where Nathan Rogoff, alleged proprietor, was charged with violating the Snyder act.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Judge Patterson said that the addresses of some of the places he referred to had come to him only this morning. He said those constables who did not appear today would be notified to appear in open court tomorrow to file their reprts. County detectives were sent out to notify the missing constables.

Seven of the Pittsburgh constables did not appear.

Earl R. Sams, Negro constable of the Fifth Ward, was the first city constable to appear. He said there were no violations in his district. Questioned by the court, he produced a list and told the court three places against which complaints had been filed had moved.

TOLD TO GET WARRANT

R. E. Marshall, of the Thirteenth Ward, said he couldn't get evidence against certain suspicious places in his district and was told to get a search warrant.

Frank Ferris, head of the homicide squad and constable from the Twenty-fifth Ward, reported no violations. He told of trying to raid an alleged distillery in Federal street, having men on duty there for three days.

D. A. McGeary, Twenty-second Ward, didn't know anything against seven places in Plush way, Robinson street and Lacock street and was told to investigate. Judge Patterson asked him about Hetty Collins, Isabella street, and Net Gordon, of Plush way and North avenue. He said he had heard of "Net" Gordon, but not the Collins woman.

As the constables assembled to make their quarterly return, the judge delivered an address in which he said:

"These flagrant violations can't exist unless there is a connivance and bartering between the law enforcement officers and the operators."

SCORES OFFICERS

After telling the constables they should resent the appellation "Blind Men's Parade," he said:

"We have information of a gambling house across the street from a police station and within half a black of an alderman's office.

"Newspapers print with impunity the names of so-called numbers bands and also point out what they call 'hot spots' in the county. Every one seems to know about these law violations except those charged with suppressing them.

URGES REDRESS

Judge Patterson, after stating the operation of a speakeasy or a gambling house must not be regarded as a harmless violation of the law, said:

"You, as members of the minor judiciary system, have the power to bring redress."

He told the constables that if necessary a special grand jury session would be called and ended by saying:

"When you make your return we hope you will have information of all law violations in your bailiwicks. If you do not have this information we will grant you time to make an investigation and bring in a report."

GOV. ROOSEVELT AT STATE FAIR

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—New York's annual state fair, which yesterday heard Secretary of Labor William N. Doak extol President Hoover as the "greatest of all outstanding humanitarian figures," today had as its guest Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Two days in advance of the annual "Governor's Day," Mr. Roosevelt came on an overnight train from his residence at Hyde Park. Each year the Governor visits the state fair and addresses the thousands of New Yorkers and other visitors who gather in the fair grounds. Today, however, Mr. Roosevelt is not scheduled to make any speech.

This year the Governor's Day visit will be made by Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, whom Mr. Roosevelt is supporting for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Drowning of Priest Laid to Heart Disease

Heart disease today was believed to have been the cause of the death of the Rev. John P. Joyce, 32, assistant pastor at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, Lawrenceville, stricken while swimming yesterday in the Allegheny River near Cheswick.

Father Joyce, a graduate of Duquesne University and St. Vincent Seminary, Latrobe, was celebrating Labor Day with friends across the river from Cheswick. With him was the Rev. George Haber, of St. Luke's Church, Carnegie.

He went swimming and dived into the river from a rowboat. When he reappeared the wind had blown the boat away and he called for help, according to witnesses.

Reba Mooney, 15, of 3468 Ligonier street; James Sullivan, of 3469 Denny street, and Paul Pazerski, former Carnegie Tech student, dragged the priest ashore.

Attendants from the Duquesne Light Company substation at Springdale worked over the victim more than two hours in an effort to revive him. Dr. W. P. McCullough said he had suffered a heart attack.

Last rites were administered by Father Haber and Father Augustine Zieger, of St. Alphonsus Church, Springdale.

Father Joyce has been at St. John's since July, 1931. He was ordained six years ago at St. Vincent Seminary, and after his ordination was assistant pastor at St. Jerome's Church, Charleroi.

Before being ordained Father Joyce was well-known in the semi-professional baseball world. His parents live in Carrick.

STORM MISSES FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Florida was out of the path of the latest tropical storm today but the Weather Bureau had ordered hurricane warnings for the Middle Atlantic Coast.

Since Thursday a storm of reported hurricane intensity has been pushing slowly across the Caribbean toward the far southern mainland but early today it had shifted its course and pointed northward with the possibility that it would strike sometime late today between Wilmington, N. C., and Cape Hatteras.

However, weather charters said the warnings were precautionary and that there was a strong likelihood that the storm might again curve outward across the ocean, endangering shipping but not touching the coast.

Republican Leader Warns Hoover Friend

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—A threat to oust Alan Fox, chief of the Hoover clubs bureau of the Republican state committee and a friend of the President, from the committee unless he ceased "activities destructive of party harmony" was conveyed today to him through a letter written by State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy.

Macy acted after receiving complaints that Fox supported a movement within the party directed against Borough President George U. Harvey, Queens.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Frank J. Egan, deposed public defender, and Albert Tinnin, ex-convict, continued today to express confidence of acquittal of murder charges as a jury entered its fourth day of deliberations.

SOME UNFORTUNATE Chicago men and women now know that hiding your money away may be dangerous. Three hundred and fifty safe deposit boxes in the office of Koch & Company were broken open by burglars. Eight adults, two children were held prisoners fourteen hours, while the safe-breakers worked and stole a million dollars put in boxes by those "too wise to trust banks."

FEDERAL RELIEF SESSION NEAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(Universal.)—To fight starvation and suffering among unemployed and their families next winter, welfare leaders will gather here in about 10 days seeking co-ordination of relief activities and money-raising campaigns.

The co-ordination will be directed by the welfare and relief mobilization, headed by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

Although formal estimates of relief needs have not yet been made, it is believed that well over $500,000,000 will have to be raised by local governments and private agencies, beyond the funds the government has begun to parcel out.

The emphasis will be upon community effort. A national fund made up from private contributions also is contemplated.

Group Sees Relief Needs Grow in '33

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—More unemployed throughout the state will be in need of aid next year than in the last year, the temporary emergency relief administration predicted today in a report which declared $150,000,000 from private and public sources would be necessary for caring for the needy from November 15 of this year until November 15, 1933.

WALKER'S WAR ON ROOSEVELT OPPOSED

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Disturbed by the widespread criticism of his attack on Gov. Roosevelt, James J. Walker suddenly decided to return to the city today and consult with his Tammany advisers on his plan to seek vindication by re-election as Mayor.

Strong opposition has developed to a Walker candidacy aimed at injuring Roosevelt's chances of carrying the state in the presidential campaign, and party leaders have scheduled a series of conferences for this week in the hope of amicably settling the tangled situation.

MEETING OF LEADERS

The first of these meetings was expected to be held today, with the return of John F. Curry, Tammany leader, and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic chieftain, Walker's chief sponsors, from week-end vacations.

Curry, reached by telephone at Lenox, Mass., would not reveal whether he has summoned all county leaders for a conference. It was believed certain, however, that he would see some of them at his usual Tuesday conference at Tammany Hall, and sound out their sentiments on Walker's vindication campaign.

In Democratic circles there was general belief that John Theofel, Queens leader, and David S. Rendt, Richmond County chairman, would stand with Curry and McCooey in backing Walker's nomination. This would leave Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Bronx County chairman and Roosevelt supporter, as the only one of the five county leaders in the city to oppose Walker.

AWAIT CHIEFS' DECISION

It is known definitely that Curry has not set a day for the meetings of the county committees, at which the candidates for mayor must be chosen, and it is deemed likely no date will be set until opinions of the party's chiefs have been received.

McCooey, in Bretton Woods, N. H., yesterday spiked reports that he had denied promising his support to Walker. Over the telephone, McCooey repudiated the authenticity of a Brooklyn newspaper interview picturing him as keeping an open mind on the Walker candidacy.

Former Mayor Walker, who has been staying at the Larchmont home of A. C. Blumenthal the last two days, would not comment on the political situation, but said he might have a statement to make tonight. Blumenthal insisted Walker would run for re-election and that nothing has occurred to cause him to change his mind.

12 GIRLS HURT, SHOW GOES ON

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A chorus girl suffered a broken ankle and a dozen other members of the cast of "Flying Colors," the new Howard Dietz revue, were cut and bruised in the collapse of a fanshaped trellis on the stage of the Forrest Theater—but the show went on.

The trellis, holding most of the cast in a colorful setting for the finale, collapsed just as the curtain was about to rise on the closing number last night.

The crash was heard in the audience, but Clifton Webb, Charles Butterworth, Patsy Kelly, and Jean Sargent, headliners, quickly rushed before the curtain, sang the finale music and brought the revue to a close before the audience knew what had occurred.

Teddy West, the most seriously hurt, is in a hospital today with a broken ankle. Virginia Whitmore and Carol Renwick, two other chorus girls, were treated at hospitals, but all the others received first aid treatment back stage.

SLAIN HERMIT'S TORTURE BARED

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 6.—Two Negroes reported to have been seen loitering in the neighborhood were hunted today by county detectives and state police in their investigation of the torture slaying of Martin Patton, 85, reputed wealthy recluse, whose body was found yesterday at his isolated home in Hanover Township, Beaver County.

A report of Coroner H. C. McCarter indicated the aged man's slayers had sought to wring from him disclosure of the hiding place of large sums of money neighbors said Patton was supposed to have secreted about his home. An autopsy, the Coroner reported, showed the man had been tortured before his death.

Patton apparently was visited by the murderers Sunday night. He lived alone in a dilapidated two-story frame house and sold fruits and vegetables to summer campers along Raccoon Creek.

Campers were questioned by the officers without tangible results, it was reported. County detectives said they learned later of the presence of the Negroes near Patton's home and that they were pressing a search for them.

The Berns, newlyweds in the Hollywood film colony, abruptly parted by the suicide in their home of Mr. Bern, 42, studio executive, during Miss Harlow's visit to the nearby home of her parents.

BERN'S BROTHER SEES MYSTERY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—The youngest brother of Paul Bern left by plane today for the Pacific Coast, determined to "find out why Paul killed himself—or what happened." As he left Newark Airport he said:

"There must be a motive for suicide. What motive could there have been in this case? I can't conceive of one."

Bern, who attended the wedding of his brother and Jean Harlow, said the movie executive told him only recently that he was very happy. He added:

"I am at a loss to understand why Paul should do such a thing. This note he left doesn't explain things, either, it does not make any sense to me."

Asked about reports that his brother had quarreled over the dismissal of Russian servants, Bern said:

Ill Here, Jean Kept Tradition of Stage

Illness was Jean Harlow's lot during her only personal appearance in Pittsburgh last December, but she carried out the tradition of the stage, and the show "went on."

The pltainum blonde of the movies suffered an acute attack of intestinal influenza, but insisted on making scheduled stage appearances against the advice of her physician. She was accompanied here by her father and mother.

Jean's Father May Go to Hollywood

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Dr. Mont Clair Carpenter, father of Jean Harlow, said today, "It is quite possible that I will go to Hollywood." Dr. Carpenter, a dentist, and Jean's mother, now Mrs. Marino Bello, were divorced here in 1922. Jean, to whom the name Harlean was given by her parents, later adopted her mother's maiden name, Harlow.

...nder Farewells Before Suicide Revealed

International News Service.

...LLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—...Bern and Jean Harlow ... on the best of terms ...y night only a few hours ... Bern took his own life.

This was the declaration today of John Carmichael, butler at the Bern home. It was Carmichael who found Bern's body. He said:

"Mr. Bern was lying in bed Sunday evening when I entered his room, carrying Miss Jean's evening dress."

Miss Jean said:

"'Paul, dear; I'll say good night now in case I don't see you again.'"

Mr. Bern replied:

"'Good night, dear.'

'TOO MUCH IN LOVE'

The butler revealed that Bern was "almost too much in love with his wife." He said:

"Every day he sent her a present of some kind—flowers, candy, books and other love gifts. He was never harsh, nor was she. They were an ideal couple, almost too much in love with each other."

Carmichael expressed belief the crisis in the lives of the two must have come Saturday night when Bern went to the studio and dined with his wife. The butler said:

"Mr. Bern's postscript to the note said: 'You understand last night was only a comedy.'

"Something must have happened between them at that last dinner together.

"Mr. Bern read and slept all day Saturday, while Miss Jean was working at the studio. He dined with her—she only had two hours' rest for dinner—between 6 and 8 o'clock. He came home about 10:30 and read until quite late.

"Miss Jean worked late. When she was through, she went to her mother's home.

"From her mother's she telephoned Mr. Bern and asked him to come over, and he told her: "'It's so late now, darling. You must work tomorrow, so why don't you stay there tonight?'

DANCE PARTY

"Thursday night they went dancing at the Miramar Hotel in Santa Monica. They were very happy. And on Friday night a writer friend was a dinner guest at the house.

"Saturday, when they were separated by Miss Jean's work.

"On Sunday Miss Jean phoned about 1 o'clock, but Mr. Bern was still asleep. She told me not to wake him.

"Later that afternoon Miss Jean came home.

"They seemed happy. We were all planning to go to Miss Jean's family home for dinner. She said: 'Paul, dear, I'll say good night in case I don't see you again.' It surprised me, as he had planed to go.

"But there were no angry words spoken.

"We left the house about 8:15. The chauffeur returned for my wife a little later. He must have done it after she left, about 9:15.

"And more than 12 hours later I found the body. I can't understand it. It is a mystery why Mr. Bern should take his own life. He had everything to live for."

Tragedy Strikes Blonde At Height of Film Fame

'Platinum Menace' Conquered With Exotic Allure

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—Jean Harlow rose to dizzy heights on the wings of glorified allure as the platinum blonde "meanace" in "Hell's Angels."

Born with a silver spoon in her mouth, she learned, as she grew to womanhood, that her wealth of platinum hair was her open sesame to fame.

Her career reached its climax with her marriage on July 2, to gentle, conservative Paul Bern, from whom, her friends said, she was as different as day from night.

It was her second marriage. It was a new high-point in the thrilling course of her 21 years.

MARRIED 'PLAYBOY'

Before she entered pictures and soon after she left school in Lake Forest, Ill. Jean was married in 1927 to Charles F. McGrew II, playboy son of a wealthy Chicago family.

Mrs. McGrew (nee Harlean Carpenter) was restless. When she and her husband came to Beverly Hills, she thought of motion pictures as a new thrill. McGrew objected to a film career. Undeterred by his protests, she sought and obtained a small part at a studio.

Her hair—that mass of silvery charm which was, in a sense her trademark, caught the eye of the casting director at Hal Roach studios. She was brought there to play a second lead.

Meanwhile, from Kansas City, her birthplace, came protests from her wealthy grandfather. He agreed with her husband that the films were no place for a young girl brought up to be a social light.

BORED BY DOMESTICITY

Temporarily, Jean abandoned her career. But she became dissatisfied with domesticity, and after seven months she obtained through her friends, Ben Lyon and James Hall, a five-year contract with Howard Hughes, who was about to produce "Hell's Angels," sensational air picture.

Into that part Director Lewis Milestone, crammed all the allure which the young woman, blessed with spectacular beauty of face and figure, had been endowed.

After "Hell's Angels" was released, Miss Harlow's future was assured. Movie men sang superlative praises of the "platinum blonde." The Harlow hair became famous the world over.

McGrew, meantime, had become unhappy. He agreed with his wife that a divorce was best. She filed suit in Los Angeles, charging that her husband was cruel and intemperate. She won the decree.

A property settlement was arranged, carrying with it an allowance of $375 a month, a $17,500 home in Beverly Hills and an automobile.

ALLURE CAPITALIZED

Then the actress scored success after success. Always her allure was capitalized.

Among the elect of Hollywood, her beauty came to be recognized as outstanding. Her delicately pink skin, her startling silvery-white hair, her brightly blue eyes, coupled with the form-fitting raiment adorning her tall, sinuous figure, made her a vivid, unforgettable woman.

All studios sought her. The Kansas City girl had successfully stormed the cinema citadel. Hughes found that her contract with him was a highly profitable investment.

She scored a triumph with James Cagney in "The Public Enemy." And then she went to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. There she met Paul Bern.

the administration of sedatives. Her mother was also placed under medical care.

CROWD HEARS CRIES

A crowd of curious collected outside the house and police were summoned to keep them moving.

Hollywood, shocked over Bern's death, recalled his many benefactions, and how he had aided Barbara LaMarr and Mabel Normand in their misfortunes, and had helped advance the careers of John Gilbert, Joan Crawford, Estelle Taylor, and other stars and players.

An autopsy was the first official move today in the investigation of the real life tragedy which brought to an end what Hollywood had believed an ideally happy marriage.

Officials were also investigating the reason for delay in notifying them of the death of Bern.

Bern was believed to have shot himself through the head before a mirror in a dressing room of his beautiful Benedict Canyon home Sunday night.

Bern was alone in the house after Miss Harlow, accompanied by John Carmichael, the butler, and Mrs. Carmichael, the cook, had gone to the home of Miss Harlow's mother, Mrs. Marino Bello, for dinner Sunday night.

Bern's body, unclad, was discovered in a dressing room off the bedroom on the second floor of the home by Carmichael, who notified studio executives, including Irving Thalberg, who summoned police.

CRYPTIC NOTE TO JEAN

The cryptic suicide note, addressed to Miss Harlow, was inscribed in a green morocco-bound notebook. It was undated, and read:

"Dearest Dear: Unfortunately this is the only way to make good the frightful wrong I have done you and to wipe out my abject humiliation. I love you. Paul."

A postscript read:

"You understand last night was only a comedy."

What the "comedy" episode was that preceded Bern's death was a mystery that detectives today were endeavoring to unravel.

Carmichael said that the couple was on the best of terms just before Miss Harlow departed for her mother's home Sunday night. He said:

"They seemed to be as much in love as ever."

DISPUTE REPORTED

Police planned to question George Davis, Negro landscape gardener, who said he had heard some words of controversy between Mr. and Mrs. Bern.

He said they had had some discussion over the title of the home which Bern deeded to his wife on their marriage. Davis said he understood from the conversation Mrs. Bern desired in turn to deed her home to her parents and Bern objected.

Bern's intimate friends in an effort to explain his deed, said that he had a "supersenitive personality," and reacted readily to the slightest emotional strain. From a philosophical viewpoint he frequently had discussed suicide, they recalled.

Strangely significant became a "family inheritance" Bern had mentioned. He had descended from a strain in which there had been previous suicides.

This led to the belief that Bern had taken advantage of his beautiful wife's absence to commit suicide in a move that previously had been carefully planned.

MOTIVE SOUGHT

But the motive for his act was missing!

Detective Lieut. Joseph Whitehead, who launched an investigation into the strange death, said the case was "clearly suicide," but he nevertheless ordered Bern's two guns examined for fingerprints. One revolver, unused, was found on the dresser.

Reports on the discovery of the body were confusing. Joseph Taylor, chief of detectives, was trying to learn why "we were not notified until nearly two hours after the body was discovered."

Carmichael said he found the body when he went to his master's bedroom to throw up the shades shortly before noon yesterday. He said Bern was alone in the house over night. Later, Davis, the gardener, asserted he had been called into the house after Carmichael had fainted upon making the gruesome discovery.

Miss Harlow worked late Saturday night at the studio, and police believed that the suicide had its inception that night.

Bern Ideal Man, Jean Wrote to Grandmother

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Jean Harlow's grandmother, Mrs. S. D. Harlow, who raised the platinum blonde through childhood, and from whom the film star acquired her screen name, was grief stricken today on learning of the tragic death of her granddaughter's husband, Paul Bern. Mrs. Harlow sobbed:

"I do not know how the poor little thing is going to bear up through this tragedy. She had seemed so happy since her marriage and was so much in love with her husband.

"She wrote me that her husband was the purest, cleanest and whitest soul she had ever known."

POVERTY BLIGHT IN CHILDHOOD BLAMED

Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.—Thoughts of suicide were not new to Paul Bern, the screen executive who ended his own life yesterday.

Friends of his in Hollywood declared today he often remarked that several other members of his family had written "finis" to their lives by their own hands.

Time and again, too, Bern discussed the possibility of seeking the answer to his problems in self-destruction. He often told intimates he considered it proper for a man to end his life if he felt that his existence no longer was justified, friends said.

Bern attributed this morbid outlook to the fact that in his early youth in New York, as a member of a large and poverty-stricken family, he went without food and came to have an unhappy viewpoint on life.

SHUNNED REVELRY

Kindly and modest, a quiet, cultured gentleman, who shunned the false hilarity, the hectic revelry of Hollywood; counsellor and friend to many; a business genius who saw in motion pictures not only box office returns, but artistry—that, according to those who knew him, was Paul Bern.

Ranked as an associate producer at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios, there were associates who declared he was responsible for many of the studios' major successes.

Bern was known as "Hollywood's father confessor." Studio troubles and the joys and sorrows of studio folk were taken to him. Always he was sympathetic. He was ever ready to advise, or, if necessary, to fight for his friends.

And the gloom into which the cinema capital was plunged tonight by the news of his death was was real. Nearly all of the great and the near-great had benefited by Bern's helping hand.

AIDED STARS, EXTRAS

His heart and his pocketbook were as readily opened for the extra as they were for the star. And when the world pointed a finger of scorn or turned a cold shoulder at some unfortunate one, he was the first to go to the rescue.

There was the case of late Barbara La Marr, his one-time great friend. Poverty-stricken, she was at death's door. Her fair-weather friends had deserted her.

But Bern bought her a home in Altadena. Los Angeles' foremost physicians were summoned by him. He saw to it that nurses were always in attendance, and he, himself, was at her bedside when death came.

Lovely Mabel Normand found Bern loyal to the last. When she was involved in the mystery surrounding the slaying of William Desmond Taylor, it was Bern who shielded her.

To the day of her death, Miss Normand was grateful.

Bern had an especial sympathy for foreign artists, baffled by the customs of Hollywood—strange, even barbarous, to them.

ADVISED VALENTINO

Nida Naldi sought and received his advice. So did Rudolph Valentino. And there is in the heart of Ramon Novarro a great affection for the man who was a brother to him—Paul Bern.

The story of John Gilbert's friendship for Bern is one of a genuine, lasting manly devotion. Gilbert's stormy studio career, he is frank to admit, might have had serious consequences had it not been for Bern's guidance.

That great star of a generation ago—Wallace Reid—knew he could count on Bern for help when he needed it badly.

He had the courage of his convictions. He was fearless enough to take an active, aggressive part in the movement to liberate Tom Mooney.

Not long ago a famous woman star was dying of a dread disease. She was penniless. Bern came to her aid, sent her to a sanatorium, paid all the expenses. Now she is staging a successful comeback.

Bern was born in Vanderbeck, Germany, 42 years ago, and came to New York at the age of 9. He went on the stage with Annie Russell's stock company in 1910 and later became a dramatist.

Samuel Goldwyn was responsible for his coming to Hollywood, in 1920, as a director.

MARRIES JEAN HARLOW

Bern was the cinema capital's "proverbial bachelor" until his marriage to the glamorous Jean Harlow, screen star.

On July 2, after a whirlwind courtship, they were married.

It appeared to their intimates that they were ideally happy. Bern was a wealthy man; his bride, too, was free of financial worries.

According to studio attaches, Bern had been at his office infrequently during the last 10 days. It was thought he had been on the verge of a nervous breakdown, induced, perhaps by overwork.

RADIO HELPS CRACKSMEN

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A gang of "radio cracksmen" was sought today by the police for the robbery of the safety deposit boxes of Koch and Company, where they obtained loot variously estimated from $100,000 to $1,000,000.

The "radio" burglars, so called by the police because they are said to set up a low wave radio to notify them if a police alarm was sent out while they were at work, are believed by the authorities to have been operating on a nation-wide scale.

Police Lieut. Joseph Ronan said the same group of criminals was responsible for a safe-blowing "job" in Cincinnati, which netted $500,000. He also said he believed they cut into a vault of a bank at Highland, Wis., last October 9, escaping with a large sum of money. The lieutenant declared:

"Last October 26 this same radio precaution saved the entire gang from capture. The radio brought the police alarm to the cracksmen just as squads were ordered to trap them in the International Investment Company, where thes were preparing to cut up from the basement into the safety box vault."

Expulsion of B. E. F. Branded 'Barbaric'

CANTON, O., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The 37th Division Association, composed of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania World War veterans, has approved a resolution calling the expulsion of the "bonus army" from Washington "ruthless, cruel, barbaric, despotic and un-American."

Sisters Missing With $1,000 of Stepfather's

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Somewhere in Chicago, the police believe, are two small girls with entirely too much money to spend, $1,000 to be exact.

They began searching for Marie Bruss, 12, and Paula Burnstage, 14, after they had been informed that Marie left home in Cedarburg, Wis., last Saturday, with $1,000 taken from the room of her stepfather, who is president of a bank. Paula went with her.

Once before Marie ran away to Chicago, Wisconsin officials said, leading to the belief she came here again.

AMERICAN HELD IN CHINA FREED

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Roy Talbot, an American employed by the Chinese Maritime Customs Union as commissioner of customs at Antung, Manchuria, arrived here today after being "rescued" through the intervention of American consular officials.

Talbot, born in DeKalb, Ill., and having a family in Berkeley, Cal., was held at Antung and forbidden to leave. Meanwhile Manchukuo and Japanese officials, he charged, "bullied" him and attempted to force him to give up $75,000 in customs funds which he collected for the Chinese organization.

Despite threats, Talbot refused to comply with the demands of the Manchukuo officials, who were accompanied by Japanese advisors.

BRITAIN URGES STRIKE END

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—The next step in Britain's cotton strike today lay with leaders of striking mill workers and their employers, both sides having been urged by the government to settle the dispute immediately.

Government intervention came in the form of confidential letters to leaders of both camps, setting forth the government's views concerning the relative importance of the various differences, and suggesting means and bases for arbitration.

The letters were sent by the Minister of Labor, Sir Henry Betterton, after a conference with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, who returned from his vacation last night.

Britain's Jobless Total at High Mark

Latest statistics revealed by the Ministry of Labor showed there were 2,859,828 unemployed on August 22. The previous high record was for September 28 of last year, when there were 2,825,772 out of work.

Brazil Revolt Raises Price of Coffee

We regret to announce we are absolutely compelled to raise the price of our My-Te-Good and Fifth Avenue Coffee.

For two months now, the greatest revolution in the history of Brazil has been raging—the state of Sao Paulo, the richest state in Brazil, major industrial center and heart of the coffee business, having risen in revolt against the Brazilian Government.

Since the early part of July, all ports of Sao Paulo, including Santos, the world's greatest export center for coffee, have been blocked or closed by the government forces; thus large coffee shipments out of Brazil have been held up and coffee has been steadily advancing in price.

Censorship of news, by the Brazilian Government, has been most strict and complete—it has been possible to get but little information concerning the situation and only small shipments of coffee are being made out of several of the minor ports under government control—and such shipments are at greatly advanced prices.

The advance we are making in our retail price is not as large as the advance we have had to pay; consequently, unless the civil war in Brazil ends, or larger shipments of coffee are allowed to leave Brazil at a reasonable price, we will probably be compelled to make another price advance in a month or so—meantime the new prices are:

FRANCE URGED TO END FEUD WITH HEARST

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service.

PARIS, Sept. 6. — The French foreign office should take action to undo what was done when William Randolph Hearst was expelled from France, Jean Michel Renaitour, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, declared today.

Renaitour's declaration was made in an article appearing in the newspaper L'Oeuvre. Renaitour accompanied the French Olympic team to America and was among the dinner guests of Mr. Hearst in California.

NOTIFIED TO LEAVE

Mr. Hearst was travelling in Europe two years ago when he was suddenly notified by the French government, then dominated by former Premier Andre Tardieu, to leave French soil on September 1, 1930.

The French government communique covering Mr. Hearst's expulsion gave as the reason Mr. Hearst's "hostility" to France, although world-wide comment had been caused by the Hearst newspapers' publication of a secret document relative to Franco-English naval negotiations.

Deputy Renaitour counselled that French government action in "flattering the vanity which is found in every human being would make Mr. Hearst come under obligations to us, and prevent perpetuation in his newspapers of injuries to us which, little by little and stone by stone, dim our reputation and destroy our prestige."

CHARGES CAMPAIGN

Renaitour accuses the Hearst newspapers of carrying on a campaign against France which he attributes largely to the feeling engendered by then Premier Tardieu's unwise expulsion order.

Renaitour describes his efforts to discuss the matter with Mr. Hearst, who "only smiled and changed the subject, although he once remarked with a melancholy sigh:

"Paris! What a delightful city!"

Race Yacht Battles Gale, Finishes Second

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A succession of squalls that blew the 45-foot sailboat, the Idella, 25 miles off her course and sent water over her decks in such torrents the crew of five had to swim from bunks, was told today by Capt. Robert Morrow.

For 36 hours, the badly-battered Idella battled the weather before she finally docked at Port Stanley, five hours late but nevertheless winner of second place in the Cleveland Yachting Club's annual arrival race to the Canadian port.

10 Hurt in Wreck Of Riviera Express

Crowd Too Big, Wedding Dance Under Ban

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Only 450 persons were invited to the party celebrating the wedding of John Arcurri, 22, and Miss Angelina Shibillo, 20, last night, but by the time they brought their friends and the idle curious joined the throng, the crowd was so large police placed the figure 4,000 upon it.

That, said Fire Battalion Chief William Cermak, is too many persons to crowd a dance floor at one time, so the party omitted the fox trots and one-steps while police and firemen stood about in silent reminder of Cermak's order.

GUNMEN SHOOT 2 IN SALOON

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Edward (Spike) O'Donnell and his South Side beer mobsters, who are attempting a comeback, were suspected by police today in the shooting of John Duffy, 50, a saloon owner, and Christ Reegan, 60, the bartender.

Two gunmen covered two patrons of the saloon when they went out for air and forced them to return and rap on the rear door. Duffy readily admitted the patrons, and the gunmen followed them inside. They immediately singled Reegan and Duffy from the crowd and shot them down.

Duffy was shot in the abdomen and had only slight chance to live. Reegan was shot in the shoulder.

GIVEN MILLION ON BIRTHDAY

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Miss Barbara Stoddard, 21, is the second girl in the world to receive exactly $1,232,693 as a birthday present.

She received that sum from her father, Maj. Louis E. Stoddard, who had been guardian of a trust fund created by his late wife, Rebecca Darlington Stoddard. In 1927 Mrs. Elizabeth Stoddard Lovejoy, Barbara's sister, received a similar amount on reaching her 21st birthday.

Maj. Stoddard has an $868,857.95 fund to be turned over to a son, Louis E., Jr., a student at Yale, when he reaches his majority.

SPRINGDALE'S BURGESS DIES

Burgess J. W. Johnson, 56, of Springdale, died last night at his home, 974 Pittsburgh street, after an illness of nine months. He also was chief clerk of the inheritance tax division.

He was born in Pittsburgh and moved to Springdale when a boy. He served two terms as postmaster of Springdale. He was seeking his second term as burgess.

After serving as postmaster he went to the Court House as deputy recorder of deeds. Later he was given the post in the inheritance tax division.

He leaves his widow, a son, Harry, and two brothers, Benjamin, of Coshocton, O., and Joseph, of Taft, Cal.

Reduced Luxury Urged to Aid Birth Rate

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Take away the luxury prevailing in men's colleges, and the birth rate will increase, according to Mrs. F. Robertson Jones, president of the American Birth Control League.

Mrs. Jones said:

"Four years of luxurious bachelor life, such as many college men lead today, just about spoils a young man for marriage.

"He thinks he cannot marry until he can maintain his college living standard for himself and his bride. As for children, he thinks them quite out of the question until there is money enough for a couple of servants, a nursery and two automobiles."

CUBA BLOCKS MACHADO FOE

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Frustrated in an attempt to enter Cuba incognito, J. A. Gregory, Sr., leader of an anti-Machado group here and editor of the Spanish language newspaper, La Traduccion, returned yesterday from a voyage into Cuban waters.

Traveling incognito, Gregory was balked in landing at Havana when a newspaper there, two hours before he was scheduled to land, published an account of his effort to enter Cuba under an assumed name.

Gregory said he feared his life would be jeopardized if he landed.

MISSOURI ACES SWEEP AIR RACES

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The roaring mounts of two Missouri flying comrades have turned in a grand slam in aviation's high speed classics.

Maj. James H. Doolittle, riding his red-nosed monoplane, completed the supremacy at high speeds demonstrated during the National Air Races by his wide margin victory in the 100-mile free-for-all race yesterday.

His flying comrade, James Haizlip, a week earlier had flashed across the continent to a new trans-nation speed mark of 10 hours and 19 minutes; Haizlip's wife, May, a few hours before had pushed the unofficial women's landplane speed record to 255.513 miles per hour, and Doolittle himself on Saturday had boosted the men's landplane speed record to 296.287 miles an hour.

Mrs. Haizlip's performance, which replaces the 210-mile an hour record of Miss Ruth Nichols, of Rye, N. Y., came on the same day Miss Nichols lost to Maryse Hiltz, of France, her women's altitude record. The Aero Club, of France, yesterday recognized Mme. Hiltz's mark of approximately 31,900 feet.

In winning the final speed event of the races, Doolittle lapped all his seven rivals except James R. Wedell, of Patterson, La., who finished second with an average speed of 242.496 miles an hour, only slightly less than 10 miles an hour slower than Doolittle's 252.686 average.

Roscoe C. Turner was third with a 233.042 mile an hour average and Haizlip, battling a spunky motor most of the way, fourth with 231.304.

FLYING FAMILY FINED BY DANES

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—George Hutchinson, American flier, leading a party of eight from New York to London over the Arctic air route, was fined 1,000 kroner (approximately $180) by the Governor of Southern Greenland for landing in Greenland without a permit.

The Governor, notifying the Danish government of the penalty today, said Hutchinson's conduct since arriving at Godthaab had been exemplary and that he had expressed sincere regret for his error. The Governor said he did not know yet when the Hutchinsons would continue their flight.

The Hutchinson party includes Mrs. Hutchinson, their two children and a crew of four. They included Greenland in their itinerary when they left New York, but the Danish government withheld permission for a landing there, explaining that should the plane come down in some inaccessible spot they could not assume responsibility for the safety of the fliers.

2 Japanese Fliers Die in Maneuvers

TOKIO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Two Navy fliers were killed and one was missing today in a series of accidents which marred the naval air maneuvers off Wakayama.

Two machines collided in the air, two others overturned and were wrecked attempting forced landings in the sea, another crashed and sank, and the pilot of a sixth plane was thrown out of his ship making a forced landing.

Japanese Plan New Pacific Flight Effort

TOKIO, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Another attempt to fly across the Pacific under the auspices of the Tokio newspaper Hochi will be made the middle of this month, it was announced today.

Kiyoshi Honma, as navigator; Eiichiro Maba, as pilot, and Tomoyoshi Ishita, as mechanic, will set out from here to attempt an eastward crossing in the Junkers monoplane Hochi.

Endurance Fliers In Air Since Sunday

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The endurance flight plane, Spirit of '76, was still in the air today. Its pilots, Fred Murillo and John Sheasey, took off Sunday afternoon in an effort to break the present 647-hour endurance flight record. Four refuelings had been made.

PINCHOT BANS PRIVATE USE OF STATE AUTOS

HARRISBURG, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Immediate dismissal of state employes who use state-owned automobiles for private purposes, and tighter restrictions on the use of state machines, were announced yesterday by Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

He said that while previous efforts to control the use of state cars have been partially successful, further economies are necessary.

The new rules are:

Departments under the Governor's control will be allowed the same number of cars they had on January 1, 1929; those which had none then will have none now unless new duties require them.

No more heavy type, or seven-passenger cars will be bought. Light coupes will be used instead.

Excess cars will be pooled, and re-distributed as replacements when required.

Employment of chauffeur-messengers, mechanics whose principal duty is to act as chauffeurs, clerks used as chauffeurs, and chauffeurs on the payroll as clerks, will be stopped immediately.

Chauffeurs will not be supplied to state officials who own and drive personal cars.

Only one car will be allowed each state institution unless it is proven that more than one is needed.

Highway patrolmen will report all state cars used Saturday afternoons, Sundays, or on weekdays after 7 P. M.

HAVANA BOMB KILLS OFFICER

HAVANA, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Lieut. Francisco Echenique, military supervisor at Marianao, was killed; Estanislao Mansip, chief of police, was probably fatally injured and three other persons were wounded in a bomb explosion here today.

The officers discovered the bomb in the roadway and were examining it when it exploded.

Police launched a search for Jorge Marina, a student wanted for questioning in connection with the bombing.

Only last week a bomb was discovered planted at Chief Mansip's residence. Herbert Wilford, son of an American journalist, and Francisco Maranda, were arrested in connection with this attempt.

MONESSEN, Pa., Sept. 6.—A crusade against numbers writers was ordered today by Police Chief J. W. Lukisich. Surgeons Recover Watch Swallowed By Sailor

GREENWICH, England, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Albert Taylor, seaman in the British Navy, sailed the seas today convinced, after all, that a watch in the pocket is better than a foot in the grave.

The sailor rushed into the Seamen's Hospital here and shouted excitedly that in a fit of depression he had swallowed his watch, chain and pocket-knife.

The bill was presented by Deputy Molina, urging open warfare upon Paraguay for her activities in the disputed Chaco region.

Trees Slim in Day, Stouter at Night

GROUP TO MEET PINCHOT WITH ROAD PLEA

Pittsburghers to Ask Improvement of Route 8

Following up letters by Edgar J. Kaufmann, president of the Retail Merchants Association, and Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, urging improvement of Route 8 from Wildwood to Butler, a committee of the William Flinn Highway Association will meet with Gov. Pinchot in Harrisburg tomorrow in behalf of the project.

The present condition of the highway, Mr. Kaufmann stated, "is a menace to life and property as well as a detriment to business." He advocated reconstruction of the road out of Federal Aid funds, the improvement to include widening, straightening, paving and removal of grade crossings.

Traffic Engineer McIntyre, who is chairman of the sub-committee on accident statistics analysis of the governor's committee on State and Highway Safety, stated that the curves on the Butler road have caused many accidents.

On the committee which will call on Gov. Pinchot tomorrow will be Joseph C. Trees, Ralph E. Flinn, State Senator Frank J. Harris, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern and Eugene L. Connelly. From Butler county will be a group headed by former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., and including Congressman John H. Wilson, Mayor Joseph Heineman, State Librarian Gertrude MacKinney, Elias Ritts, Simeon Nixon and John L. Wise. H. J. Crawford, of Emmelton, and E. J. Fithian, of Grove City, will accompany the delegation.

FIRED FIREMEN BLAME POLITICS

Three firemen, fired by Mayor Kline in the so-called economy shakeup on Thursday, will try to prove at a hearing before the Civil Service Commission that they were dismissed for political reasons.

The firemen have subpenaed as witnesses three ward chairmen, Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, Public Safety Director James M. Clark, and Robert Brown, Clark's clerk. The chairmen are Harry Feldman, Fifth Ward; Charles Martin, Tenth Ward, and Sam Reno, Nineteenth Ward.

The firemen, only three who refused to withdraw their petitions for reinstatement, are John Heinz, president of the Firemen's Protective Association; Henry S. Allen, and Delos G. Harbur.

THIEVES LOOT DRUG STORE

Thieves cut their way into the Rand Drug Company, 6003 Penn avenue, through the first floor ceiling early today and ransacked the storeroom, it was reported to police. The amount of loot is not known.

After climbing a fire escape to the top of the three-story building, they entered the top floor through a skylight. Unable to enter the store, they cut a hole in the ceiling.

Two typewriters were stolen from the Twin City Radiator Repair, 209 Anderson avenue, it was reported.

Two electric refrigerator units were stolen from the Whistle Bottling Works, 433 Amberson street, according to police.

Cupid is having a rush season as summer moons wane. Another betrothal I've just heard about—a Pittsburgh man is engaged to a girl from the West.

Mrs. Thomas J. Ruddy, of Los Angeles, has announced the plighting troth of her daughter, Elizabeth Day, to Edward William Gwinner, Jr., son of the Edward W. Gwinners, of Fifth and Amberson avenues, our city.

Young Mr. Gwinner's fiancee is the granddaughter of Frank Merriam, lieutenant governor of California. She's a graduate of the University of California, and attended the Prince School, Boston.

Princeton Graduate

The bridegroom-to-be is a graduate of Princeton, and later attended the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. He received his master's degree from Stamford University. When he was at Princeton, he was a member of the Cannon Club.

There's no date named yet for the wedding, I might add.

Mr. Gwinner's father was one of the judges, by the way, at the sub-deb costume ball held over the weekend at Spring Lake Beach, N. J. Other Pittsburghers in the summer colony there include the T. Clifton Jenkinses and their daughters, Elizabeth and Clara Dorothea.

Dinner Party

Before the annual Maidstone Club fancy dress ball at East Hampton, Long Island, N. Y., scores of folks gave large dinners in the club. Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., came for dancing and supper with a party of 25.

Last night Dr. Edwards, commodore of the Yacht Club, awarded trophies for the season's series of yacht races.

Expected Home

Susan O'Neil, member of the young set in Sewickley, is expected home today from a brief visit to Baltimore.

After summering at Biddeford Pool, Me., Mrs. William E. Schoyer, of Dunmoyle street, her post-deb daughter, Polly, and two of her sons, Edward and George, will be home Saturday.

Polly will return this fall to Radcliffe. She's to be captain of the tennis team at college this fall, and this summer won in several tournaments at the resort.

Miss Romaine Clark was among those at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, over the holiday.

Visits Father

John C. McGinley, of Milton, Mass., and New York, spent the week-end with his father, Thomas A. McGinley, of Sewickley Heights.

And have you heard that the Esteps T. Gotts are on their way to Los Angeles for a visit?

A group of the school set will aid young Peggy-Griffiths on her committee for the Edgeworth Club benefit dance September 16.

At a dinner tomorrow night in her home, Peggy and her committee will discuss ways and means.

Susan O'Neil is chairman, you know.

NEW EVENING FROCKS OF COTTON AND SILK HAVE FUR TRIMMING

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—So prominent is the present vogue for furs in Paris that they are being used on evening clothes of cotton and silk. Collars and cuffs of what are known as the semi-precious furs, such as chevrette, seal, otter and Russian sable, appear in combination with shantung, linen and cotton lace.

* * *

CHANEL MAKES a between-season evening ensemble, showing how effective fur can be with shantung. In this particular costume, she uses her own version of shantung, which is "chantonel"—a fabric slightly more study than ordinary shantung.

* * *

THE EVENING dress is one of the newer types that has the suggestion, rather than actual lines, of Grecian design. The plaits that give fullness to the center-front and center-back of the skirt are carried on to the blouse portion, to form vertical decoration. Both back and front decolletages are higher than usual.

* * *

THE ACCOMPANYING evening jacket is of the same beige chantonel. It follows more formal lines than the dress and has long sleeves that spread out into full puffs at the elbows, where they are banded with fur. Below the bands of fur, the sleeves are slashed open to just above the wrists.

* * *

Hazelwood Club Women To Give Variety to Yuletide Program

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

It is always interesting to see how clubs vary their Christmas celebrations. The Hazelwood Woman's Club, for instance, will hear a paper on "How We Observed Christmas in Those Days of Long Ago," by Mrs. Charles C. Kohne, and for the "party part" of the afternoon the hostesses will be Mrs. Oakford McCuean, social chairman; Mrs. Edwin L. Hartman, dramatic chairman, and Mrs. Lewis E. Neff, chairman of the music committee.

The club, by the way, begins its year on September 22 with Mrs. D. Edwin Miller speaking on "We Share." The next meeting, on October 13, will be observed as president's day, honoring Mrs. D. J. Birmingham. A surprise program is listed for the second October session and "a social time" for the one November meeting.

Miss Grace L. Stoakes, county probation officer, will address the December meeting. Six five-minute talks on the District of Columbia and the territorial possessions of the United States comprise an interesting afternoon early in the new year, and next the members will visit the John H. Fricke antique shop on the North Side.

Dr. Mary E. Coffin's talk on "Nerve Waste," a Martha Washington tea, a paper on "Hazelwood of the Past," by Mrs. George Edwards; a visit to the Heinz plant, Miss Louise Blessing's talk on Alaska, a play-reading, the annual election, a musicale and the June outing are the concluding events of the busy year.

Special Bargain Classes to Be Held at 'Y'

When Central Branch Young Women's Christian Association has its annual "Come and See Night" on September 27, it will present many new and especially interesting features. For one thing, Central is offering "bargain tips" in its health education department. A Wednesday night club plan has been developed by means of which the seeker after the slim, willowy figure or just plain recreation may choose a combination of lessons.

The course of combinations is priced so attractively that it is offered only to "Y" members, but in it one may have some, one or all of swimming, golf, tennis, tap dancing and gymnasium.

There is an evening gym-swim combination, too, and another that may be taken during the day and sports classes are offering a special discount on courses of more than eight lessons. And, as special inducement, the sun bath fee has been reduced to those who enroll for a year.

Supper Clubs

Again the business girl will find at the branch the well-liked supper clubs with their talks and discussions, as well as parties and dances. The self-governing clubs for the girl in industry offer a means of developing skill at swimming, dancing or handcrafts; increasing knowledge through talks and discussions and of meeting new friends.

Women with daytime leisure are invited to meet with Mrs. H. E. Ransford, president of the Polyphase Club, at the club's Wednesday luncheon meetings. New comers to Pittsburgh are advised that this many-faceted club will afford them opportunities for getting acquainted and for forming new friendships. Plans for a morning swimming group are being considered by this group, whose interests are sufficiently extensive to include everything from music to politics and from gardening to astronomy.

Central Branch also offers a friendly service to girls without employment and within the space of four months 693 girls have been interviewed and employment has been found for 113 of them.

Promise of talk concerning all sorts of things, frivolous as well as serious, is given in an invitation to meet with the college graduate group which is new this year and which will have its first meeting Tuesday, October 18, at 3 o'clock. Not only recent graduates, but anyone having been graduated within the last four years is eligible to entrance.

College Group

It may surprise you to learn that Central Branch has 37 Girl Reserve clubs with a membership of 2,137 girls organized in Pittsburgh and the surrounding boroughs. Something special is being planned for the high school graduate, too.

Another admirable (and new) development is the meeting of groups of girls from downtown business houses and of teachers. The five business girls' clubs, Apropos, Business Girls' League, Moni, Triangle and Silver Lined Patches clubs have their regular meetings. The last, as you may guess, is an outcome of present economic conditions.

Turtle Creek's Club to Open On Sept. 30

A number of visiting speakers, programs by the members themselves and special events promise a worth while year for the Turtle Creek Woman's Club, which will begin on September 30. That evening Warden Stanley Ashe, of the Western Penitentiary, will address the members and their guests.

A program of various phases of "Women in Russia Today" and a fashion show are October's two attractions, a bi-centennial and a Thanksgiving program filling the November sessions. For the former there are to be papers concerning "The Lovable Washington" and "Forgotten Facts About Washington."

A children's party and a play, "Wistful Waiting," are scheduled for December; a talk by Herbert A. Ellis on "Effect of Food on Health" and the anniversary meeting for January, and in February, Mrs. Ruth Crawford Mitchell will tell the club about Pittsburgh's Cathedral of Learning and Mrs. D. Edwin Miller will be a second speaker.

A musicale and book review in March, an opera program and the annual business meeting in April will round out the year.

Young Artists' Market To Start in Detroit

During the summer season plans have been made in Detroit, Mich., for the opening of the Young Artists' Market, a project started by a group of society women and girls, with the idea of getting the work of hitherto unknown artists before the public. Those wishing to enter their work in the Market must be under 30 years of age and must live within a radius of 50 miles of Detroit. Their work is to be judged by a lay jury comprised of a group who have taken an active interest in art and another group of artists, art instructors and critics will look over the rejected work and give constructive criticism to enable the artists to further improve their work.

The jury room, where all work must be sent to be passed by the jury, will be opened September 8. Miss Julia Brodt will be there in the capacity of secretary to the jury.

Political Parties Topic Of Congress Department

Political parties will be discussed at the open meeting of the legislative department of the Congress of Clubs. The department will follow its custom of former years and join with the educational department for luncheon and to hear its program in the afternoon. Mrs. Edward O. Tabor is to talk on a day at Culver Military School.

19th Ward Democratic Women to Give Bridge

Bridge, "500" and euchre will be played Saturday afternoon at the card party to be given by the Women's Democratic Club of the Nineteenth Ward. Miss Susan Schief is chairman of the affair, which is scheduled to take place in McCreery's.

To look after prizes Mrs. R. M. Langley and Mrs. W. H. Wetherill have been named, and flowers, Mrs. J. E. Walmer and Mrs. E. C. Bothwell. On the candy committee are Mrs. R. R. Hutchison and Mrs. H. H. Sargent, for the afternoon, and Mrs. R. P. Sullivan and Mrs. E. W. McCallister, for the evening. Food chairmen are Mrs. R. C. Good and Mrs. H. L. Dawson; treasure chest, Mrs. R. N. The tea table committee is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Allen S. Davison; the evening revue, of Mrs. W. L. McCrady; Mrs. Harry S. Tarbert is discharging the duties of finance chairman; Mrs. J. C. McCune heads the checking committee; Mrs. Mortimer B. Cameron, the doll house committee, and for the entire affair Mrs. L. M. Wilson is serving as secretary.

Group Heads

The regular meetings of the club will resume on Monday. The October meeting will be an all-day sewing for the Presbyterian Hospital. Mrs. Walter S. Church, president of the Presbyterian Hospital Aid Society, will visit the club in November and the members will participate, as usual, in the annual donation day at the hospital.

A musicale, a surprise program, an open meeting, to be addressed by Mrs. Miles F. Bixler, of Cleveland; a garden talk by Mrs. Elsie McFate, a musicale and the closing bridge luncheon are other events.

HOOVER, CURTIS DEFENDED BY COOLIDGE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Former President Calvin Coolidge, in a copyrighted article in the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post, urges the re-election of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis, and declares:

The article is entitled "The Republican Case."

POINTS TO ATTACKS

Mr. Coolidge in his indorsement of Hoover, writes:

"He has been subjected to most bitter personal attacks . . .

"While others have been content to criticize and oppose, he has laid out a great policy of relief and reconstruction. The only leadership in this crisis worthy of the name has come from him. He deserves re-election for what he has done and for what he has prevented. We know he is safe and sound."

And of Curtis the former President says:

"I always had great resepect for his judgment, his tact and his loyalty. He has that reliable maturity which can be secured only by long service."

STANDS ON RECORD

Mr. Coolidge, after expounding the principles of his party, asserted:

"Parties are judged not only by their promises but by their performances. The past three years have brought the greatest problems. While the Republican party does not claim it can perform the impossible, it is willing to be judged by its record."

Discussing that record, he says:

"The problem of providing adequate revenues has been attacked on two fronts. In the first place, the President has insisted on a rigid system of economy. Besides the recent relief bills, he has vetoed bills—calling for expenditures of over $1,900,000,000.

"In about $200,000,000 of this the veto was effective, but bonus legislation, which has cost the country about $1,700,000,000 and contributed to the continuance and distress of the depression, was passed over his veto.

"It is only because of the legislation requiring further payments to veterans and the large sums devoted to public works to relieve unemployment, that the present budget is more than it was in 1929 . . .

CITES TAX INCREASES

"The other method of approach had to be by increased taxation. Here again the required action was taken by the Congress only after prolonged debate and the concerted action of the President and the public opinion of the country. But at last by reducing expenditure and increasing the revenue it is believed that the budget has been balanced. Any other course . . . would have resulted in untold disaster.

"The entire program on the part of the administration has had for its purpose increasing employment, supporting agriculture, relieving distress and restoring confidence . . .

"It has been represented that the efforts of the President disregarded the needs of the great body of our people because he has provided funds for such concerns as banks, railroads and insurance companies, and has not favored making loans to individuals.

"When a person is suffering from hunger, the common-sense method of relief is to put food into the stomach, whence it is sent into all parts of the body. . . . The policy of the President has been to place nourishment in the digestive organs of society in order that through the natural distribution of the channels already in existence the whole body would be strenghtened and able to function."

MENTIONS DRY PLANK

Of the party's prohibition plank, Mr. Coolidge says:

"The platform calls for obedience to and enforcement of the law and denounces nullification. It recognizes that very grave abuses have grown up under the Eighteenth Amendment which call for some remedy.

"When this provision of the platform is boiled down, it reduces itself to a pledge to try to abolish existing evils and recognizes the right of the people to determine their own laws."

And of the tariff:

"One of the first acts of the present administration was to call the Congress into extra session to revise the tariff . . . Had it not been done, we should have found ourselves in a much worse condition when foreign countries going off the gold standard began to produce on a paper-money basis, which . . . would have enabled them to flood our markets . . ."

SWISS JAILED IN SLAYING

BRIG, Switzerland, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Henri Walther, 20-year-old Swiss, was arrested today in connection with the murder of Jerane Ibershoff, of Cleveland, O., who was beaten to death at the foot of Zermatt Mountain last week.

Police here said the man had a criminal record. They questioned him at length, and said he contradicted himself several times during the examination. A bicycle which he said had been stolen from him was found near the spot where the young woman was killed, police reported.

Miss Ibershoff, 21-year-old Smith College student, was touring Switzerland alone. The body was cremated this morning before the arrival of her sister, Helen, who is to take charge of the ashes.

Bandit Slain, 2 Shot In Holdup Attempt

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—An unidentified man was killed and two companions were wounded in an alleged attempt to rob Oscar Sowards, 26, operator of a filling station and soft drink stand on Mayo trail, near here, about midnight.

The wounded men's names were given as Woodson Parks, 48, of Charleston, W. Va., in a hospital with a bullet in his back, and Charles Foster, of Charlotte, N. C. Foster was jailed here. Neither was wounded seriously.

President Checked Slump, Says Davison

CLYDE, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—President Hoover's program, in the opinion of F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War, is responsible for halting a spread in the economic depression. He said so while dedicating a monument to George Washington here yesterday.

PLOT AGAINST GOLFER FOILED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—A plot to extort $25,000 under threat of death from Ellsworth H. Augustus, prominent Cleveland golfer and business man, was believed by police to have been frustrated today.

They held as a suspect in the plot a man found at the spot where Augustus was to have paid the money. The prisoner, whose name police withheld, denied any knowledge of the threatening letter. He was held on a technical gun-carrying charge, although he explained he was hunting squirrels when captured—at 10 p. m. in a pouring rain.

Augustus' 200-acre estate has been under guard since the first of a series of threatening letters was received last May.

Self-Tampering With Moles Is Dangerous

"Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward," said that man of Uz, whose name was Job.

It certainly is the truth that we bring into this life many little defects, some of which may ripen into serious ailments. For example, that common and apparently harmless skin blemish known as a "mole" may change its nature and become a real menace to its owner.

Usually one is born with the mole. Or it may appear within the early weeks of life.

As a rule, moles are harmless. Unfortunately, however, certain forms are dangerous and in rare instances develop into cancer.

When irritated or scratched, there may be rapid changes and a demand for immediate surgical care. There should be no self tampering with moles, warts, tumors and pigmentations of the skin. Certainly they should never be removed unless under the supervision of a physician.

The common, harmless form of mole is usually round or flat. Its pigment gives it a brownish color. It may be elevated above the level of the skin, having hairs growing from it.

Moles vary in size from a pinhead to several inches in diameter. In rare cases they involve a very considerable area and may be quite disfiguring. They rarely grow in size after the thirteenth to fourteenth year.

The mole contains many small blood vessels. These bleed freely if the skin is cut or scratched. Infection with ulceration of the mole is an unpleasant complication. If for any reason a mole begins to increase rapidly in size, immediate removal is indicated. Rapid growth usually means dangerous changes. Nature's warning should not be neglected and surgical attention should be had at once.

Cancerous changes in a mole seldom occur before the fiftieth year. When this change does take place, it is rapid. If neglected, "metastasis" or spread of cancer to some other part of the body may occur. This is extremely serious.

Many medical authorities advise removal of all large pigmented moles. Others claim it is only the mole that is irritated and increases in size that is dangerous and should be removed.

Removal is impossible in certain instances. In such cases the X-ray or radium applications may be beneficial.

Some persons unwisely resort to the use of patent medicines for the removal of unsightly and disfiguring moles. This is a dangerous practice. The undesirable discoloration may be removed, but the underlying structures may be seriously irritated. This may produce a severe and serious inflammation, leading to serious results.

Here is one thing I want you to remember: Many persons worry over large brownish, mole-like spots which appear on the skin in middle life. They are numerous and usually located on the back. This alteration is skin pigmentation, merely, not cancer. To be on the safe side and to do away with the miseries of worry, consult with your doctor. He will advise you.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(As if that mattered!)

That Ulysses Simpson Grant, General and President, could recognize only three melodies—"Yankee Doodle," "America," and the "Star-Spangled Banner."

That U. S. currency was once printed by private companies.

That 54 different dialects are spoken in Shanghai, and that there are certain clans of Chinese living 14 miles apart who are unable to understand each other.

(And over here there are a lotta fellows who can't understand the wife who lives in the same house with them.)

(Borrowing or lending?)

That flies have parasites.

(Well, why don't they use screens?)

That seven major laws govern the entire civilized world.

That a group of schoolboys, addicted to transposing first letters of words, gave the butterfly its name. The words used in the transposition were "flutter by."

That Massachusetts was the first state in the Union to have a savings bank.

That in China the real name of Confucius is so sacred that it is a statutory offense to pronounce it.

That, among other things, the Dead Letter Office of the Postal Department contains incorrectly addressed and poorly wrapped opium pipes, centipedes, coffin plates and chameleons.

(What! No report of incorrectly addressed rye?)

That while Africa speaks, Hawaii sings and barks. The sands on the beaches of Kauai do one or the other incessantly, depending on the seas.

That in ancient Egypt, gold and iron rings were used as coinage.

That Maurice Proctor, of Mineral Point, Ia., received the smallest check on the U. S. mail service records . . . For seven years he received one cent per annum for carrying the mails on his coach from one town to another.

That, according to Harry Richman, the old saying "Let us be gay" is now uttered as "Let us beg, eh?"

That less than a generation ago Wales boasted many professional "sin-eaters" who officiated at funerals and who were paid by the deceased family to eat bread and cheese off the bosom of the corpse . . . It was believed that in this way all sins would be devoured and the souls of the dead would rest in peace.

That the French instrument of execution named after Dr. Joseph Guillotine was not invented by him, and that the illustrious humanitarian grew prematurely gray because the device bore his name.

That Queen Christine of Sweden cursed like a musketeer, preferred to dress in mannish clothing, and spoke 11 languages.

That Lord Byron refused to dine with his wife because he said it offended his sense of fastidiousness to see a woman eat.

(I wonder if I could get away with that excuse!)

That in Worcester, Mass., last July, a man was fined $1 for overloading a bicycle.

That President Andrew Jackson had to have most of his official speeches corrected for spelling.

(That should be the only difficulty of some of our recent presidents.)

That Lord Chesterfield, ever proper, spoke his last words to his valet, saying, "Give Dayrolles a chair." Dayrolles, a friend, was standing grief-stricken near the death-bed.

That in Java the newly-wed couple pay respects to their respective in-laws by kissing their feet at the wedding.

That a house-breaker's easiest job is opening your door, and those new steel doors are even easier to open.

(They'll never get me. I've moved into a vault.)

Fire in Opera Has Thrill At Cinema

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

When the two men who are in love with the new prima donna both rush through the flames to rescue her, while the automatic sprinkler rains a little Niagara upon her from the roof, the fire department finds no ideas to rescue.

But as melodrama it is a very effective production, after it gets a start. The first half of the film moves slowly through the thick atmosphere of back-stage incident—but that is the most interesting element of the picture.

Besides there is a picnic in the park, with a boy chorus, and a cross-country hunt, with royal horses and dogs, both of which add more delightful atmosphere.

The wealthy patron of the opera loves the young singer and sends his secretary to arrange a rendezvous. She loves the secretary and the wealthy patron, when he finds this out, thinks he has been tricked. So everybody is in hot water when the curtain rises on the premiere of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann." The electrical apparatus starts a blaze, and there are wild scenes of panic, but the singer is rescued and the two men are reconciled.

Rehearsals of the opera and scenes from "Tannhaeuser" are woven into action, in which Gustav Froehlich as the hero and Alexa Engstroem as the heroine do not have to work very hard.

One scene where she puts on her stockings after her bath while singing the "Barcarolle," and another in which she has fever visions after her escape, lend an air of charm and novelty to the orthodox picture.

Facts From Filmland

Do you know—

That the formal uniform John Barrymore wears in "Rasputin" is so tight he cannot sit down in it?

That Charles Laughton, British actor appearing in "Payment Deferred" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, started his career as a hotel clerk?

That Boris Karloff, playing "Dr. Fu Manchu," uses 10 pounds of makeup to achieve the strange disguise?

That the only time Jackie Cooper likes to hold still for portraits is when he is allowed to have "Dink," his dog, in the picture with him?

That the Garden of Eden is in Alaska, according to Col. W. S. Van Dyke and his polar expedition filming "Eskimo" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, because the inland in Alaska is a spot where tropical vegetation grows with hundreds of miles of snow surrounding it? Hot springs of volcanic nature keep the ground warm in the strange 20-acre valley.

That Buster Keaton wears dark glasses when around studio lights, but never in the sunlight?

Walter Connelly Has New Film Role

Walter Connelly, who has just completed his work in Columbia's "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," which marked the stage character actor's first serious flight into pictures, has been engaged for another featured role by the company. He will appear in "Washington Merry-Go-Round," which features Constance Cummings and Lee Tracy in the principal parts.

Auto Radios Film Rage

Most of Hollywood film favorites are becoming very music-minded. They're having radios installed in their cars and travel to studios to the tunes of the latest fox-trots.

And they like to listen to the police radio calls. That is a big thrill. Many even chase the calls and the cops don't like the idea, but what can they do?

Wynne Gibson Signs For New Talkie

Capitalizing on the hit scored by Wynne Gibson in "Lady and Gent," Charles R. Rogers has signed the young Paramount player for the featured feminine role in his next production, "Metropolitan Garage." Dickie Moore also will appear in this picture.

Mary Carr to Play in Buck Jones Film

Mary Carr, who scored one of the greatest acting triumphs in the annals of filmdom as the mother in the original "Over the Hill," and has played innumerable roles since, will appear in Buck Jones' latest out-door drama for Columbia.

New Season's Activities Begin

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The theatrical season will begin next Monday. That is, it will not begin until that day for the Nixon audience, orchestra, et cetrea, begging the pardon of the stage hands for giving them a latin tag. But the new dramatic year opens today for the box officers. From this morning on, seat shoppers may negotiate for personal parking space for the initial attraction, "Humpty Dumpty," new musical comedy, for which an original slant is claimed.

It will be a world premiere for the piece as well as the introduction of a new producing firm, the individuals of which are Laurence Schwab and B. G. DeSylva. Schwab is the lad of that name who for long was the senior member of the producing company known as Schwab & Mandel. While Schwab & DeSylva are associated for the first time as producers, they are not exactly strangers. Not by a matter of four musical comedies in which they have collaborated in the writing. For instance, "Good News," "Follow Thru," Captain Jinks" and "Queen High."

In "Humpty Dumpty" the chief clown will be Lou Holtz, who will be flanked by a horde of help and a bevy of beauty. Chief aids will be Ethel Merman, June Knight and J. C. Nugent.

The premiere will attract some New Yorkers besides the producers. A popular radio star, Walter "O. K. America" O'Keefe, in his last broadcast, let it be known to the audience of the air that he expects to be here.

Eugene L. Connelly of the Connelly Bureau—Entertainment Counselors—was rudely awakened from a day-dream recently. Scouting for theaters, he was driving along highway 56, when he approached a tumble-down barn on which was a poster of an old movie classic, the sight of which made him halt. As he gazed at it, he reflected that he was looking at an announcement concerning a picture that first made critics believe there might be something in the flicker drama after all. It recalled the birth of the important movie at a time when stage drama was at its height, and there paraded before his memory great personages who have moved into the twilight, Booth, Barrett, Mansfield, Sothern and a host of others. It was an advertising sheet for "The newest sensation of the cinema, 'The Birth of a Nation.'" The honk of a horn on a flivver broke the reverie and brought him to earth with thoughts about "Scarface," "Guilty as Hell," and masters of ceremonies, and what such things connote.

Dorothy Maret, for several years connected with Little Theater activities of Pittsburgh, has been made local representative of the Samuels Attractions of New York, the head of which has been connected with Shubert enterprises in that city for some time. In addition to booking "name" entertainers, Miss Maret will be expected to keep at least one eye open for potential movie talent that may appear here and there, from time to time, on the local landscape.

Columbia Pictures has added two more players to the cast being assembled for "Polo," which has a changing background, from a western cavalry post to the International matches at Meadowbrook, Long Island. Shirley Palmer will be seen as a society girl and J. Farrell MacDonald will play the role of an Irish cavalry orderly. Jack Holt is starred in this story with Evalyn Knapp playing opposite.

"Two Against the World," starring Constance Bennett with Neil Hamilton and Gavin Gordon, comes to the Stanley screen Friday.

Jack Holt, Ralph Graves and Lila Lee have the lead roles in "War Correspondent," coming Friday to the Davis screen.

Louise Closser Hale In 'Tinfoil'

Louise Closser Hale has been added to the cast of "Tinfoil." Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery are co-starred in this original screen story by Mildred Cram. The cast includes Hugh Herbert, Lawrence Grant, Henry Kolker, Greta Mayer and Lily Irene.

'DUMPTY'

Lou Holtz has the lead in the new Schwab and DeSylva musical comedy, "Humpty Dumpty," making its world bow in the Nixon next Monday.

Bicycles Popular On Movie Lot

Rapid transportation on the Paramount lot in Hollywood received an impetus recently when the studio purchased 20 bicycles for the use of the various departments in covering the 27-acre plot. Most of the bicycles have been fitted with special racks for carrying film to the projection rooms, film magazines to and from the camera department, and typewriters to the repair shop.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

INTO NEW YORK'S largest public library the other afternoon walked a fussy old lady. She walked up to the desk in the reading room and asked to see the file of a certain New York newspaper for the first week in January. The librarian very courteously informed her that the file she requested had been put away some time previously.

"You see, madam," was the explanation, "we only keep papers for a short while. If we were to keep them all on file, we'd have nothing but old newspapers in this room."

The explanation did not satisfy the woman.

"Don't tell me you can't do me that favor," she cried sharply. "I'm a citizen and I pay my taxes. And I want the newspaper that I am seeking."

One librarian consulted with another. They agreed it would be a terrific bother to dig up the paper she wanted, and they so informed her.

"The office of that newspaper is only a few blocks from here," they asserted. "Why don't you walk right over? They'll be only too happy to get that issue for you immediately."

She shook her head. And she changed her tactics.

"It's very warm out," she murmured, "and I'm an old lady. I don't want to walk any more than I can help. Won't you gentlemen stretch a point and help me out of my difficulty? It's so very, very important to me. Please?"

So the librarians gave in. They walked to the rear and, after much pulling and straining, brought out the first week in January. Placing them before the woman, they returned to work.

The old lady went through the papers very carefully. Ten minutes later she was back at the desk again.

"The thing I was looking for," she asserted, "is not in those papers. Maybe it was the second week in January. Please get me that file."

To make a long story longer, it was not in that file either. She requested other papers—and got them. Finally, when the librarians were beginning to get thoroughly disgusted, she gave a cry of delight.

"Ah!" she shouted happily. "Here it is!"

She spread the paper before her, drew a pencil from her bag and began to make some notations. For some 40 minutes she sat there as the librarians eyed her curiously. Suddenly she arose, put on her gloves and departed without a word of thanks.

The librarians walked over to the paper that was still lying there. They looked at it and almost fell to the floor. The old lady had merely filled in the crossword puzzle for that day!

THE CHAUFFEUR for Mrs. Vanastorbilt, reports Charles Butterworth, was breaking in a new footman. The old footman, it seems, had gone on the stage or opened a night club or something—and Mrs. Vanastorbilt was really most dreadfully annoyed, if you please.

So the chauffeur was doing his best with the new man who had just been engaged.

"I know," said the chauffeur, "that you have never done this type of work before—but it's really very simple.

"When Mrs. Vanastorbilt wishes to step from the machine, you merely open the door for her, assist her forth and stand at attention. When she steps back into the car, you assist her in, wind the buffalo fur around her, close to the door and step into your seat next to me.

"Do you understand?"

The new footman nodded. Within an hour, the car was bowling down Fifth avenue. Stopping before a store, Mrs. Vanastorbilt walked from her machine. When she came out again, the new footman did as he was directed. He tucked the buffalo robe around her and went back to his place beside the chauffeur.

A few blocks passed by and the new footman leaned over to the haughty chauffeur.

"How did I do?" he whispered.

"Very, very badly," responded the chauffeur. "When you placed the buffalo robe around Mrs. Vanastorbilt, you permitted the buffalo skin to remain on the outside. Don't you know that the buffalo fur is always warmest when it's placed on the inside instead of the outside?"

The footman made no reply. Instead he sighed.

"LIFE BEGINS," the screen attraction at the Hollywood Theater, is one of the finest motion pictures I have ever seen. It comes very close, in fact, to being the finest. Combining exceptional acting and expert direction, it treats a delicate subject with uncanny brilliancy. I recommend it to you without reservation.

I didn't see "Life Begins" as a play. I didn't have much chance to do so because I missed the opening night—and it only ran a week after that occasion. In other words, the play was an out-and-out flop. Yet they tell me that the picture is an exact duplicate of the play, with two or three scenes omitted. The backers of the stage venture lost their money. The Warner Brothers will probably make a million dollars with the same piece of property. It's a strange game.

Speaking of the backers of "Life Begins" brings to mind an interesting story. Joe Santley, the handsome actor-producer, hit Broadway last spring after having spent some time in Hollywood. Under his arm was the script of "Life Begins," a play in which he had the utmost confidence. Other producers had turned away from the play because of its maternity angle. But Joe was determined to produce it.

He couldn't raise the necessary cash until he met Billy Gaxton, co-star of "Of Thee I Sing" and one of the grandest guys on the American stage. Gaxton listened to the piece and immediately wrote out a check for Santley. The wheels of production began to turn.

On its opening night in New York, the first nighters cheered "Life Begins." It drew good notices from the critics. The play had all the earmarks of success, except for one thing. Nobody came to see it. And that's an earmark that can't be overlooked. So the show folded after a week.

For a producer to participate in the motion picture rights to his play, he must keep the attraction on Broadway at least three weeks. The owners of "Life Begins" evidently thought nothing of those rights, or they would have gambled on keeping it in town another two weeks. So, a short time later, the Warners stepped in and bought a remarkable script for the small sum of $6,000.

They stand to make a fortune on the picture. And Gaxton, who made the entire venture possible, has nothing but a few canceled checks to show for his interest. As a matter of fact, he was playing in "Of Thee I Sing" at the time—and he never even had the pleasure of seeing his own show! . . .

Clara's Film Ready for Cameras

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 6.

The man who persuaded the famous redhead to resume her cinema career has engaged several well known players to appear with her in "Call Her Savage."

Monroe Owsley, still remembered for his fine performance in "Holiday," has been given the role of the white husband. Other important roles will be taken by David Manners and Thelma Todd.

Clara Bow

The only other key part to be cast is that of the heroine's Indian lover. Dozens of actors have been tested, but, like Carl Laemmle, Jr., Mr. Rork is having difficulty in finding a youth who will make a suitable Indian.

As to the star, she is down to weight, has passed all tests satisfactorialy and is working with Eddie Burke on the dialogue of the picture. Burke also wrote the adaptation of the Tiffany Thayer novel.

In the director's chair, when shooting starts, will be the veteran John Francis Dillon.

BOULEVARD TOPICS

Alas for the autograph seekers who used to haunt the entrances of the Brown Derby and Al Levy's Cafe. The cops are driving them away. Reason is the stars had begun to stay away. . . . All the studio wardrobe departments are being ransacked of costumes of the Gay Nineties period. They'll show up at the party to be given by Florence Eldridge and Fredric March. . . . Ely Culbertson is back from Europe and due to start those bridge shorts for R-K-O. Hollywood is wondering about his plan to standardize bridge. . . . Dorothy Wilson, R-K-O starlet and former stenographer, is going around these days with Leo Schreiber. . . . Unless M. G. M. calls her back for added scenes, Virginia Bruce will be free now to go on her honeymoon with Jack Gilbert. She finished that picture last night.

Dorothy Wilson

For reasons unannounced, Joel McCrea has been dropped from the cast of "Tess of the Storm Country." Too bad, for he was looking forward to playing opposite Janet Gaynor.

Meanwhile, Director Al Santell and his troupe are on the high seas, where they have about four days shooting on a sailing ship, "The Martha Nelson."

PRETTY DOROTHY LAYTON HAS BEEN ADDED TO HAL ROACH COMEDIES

Says Laymen Bar Medical Progress

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Too many medical institutions fail to make progress because they are controlled by laymen, Dr. Gustave Kolischer, Chicago, president-elect of the National Congress of Physical Therapy, which opened its five-day annual session today, told the delegates.

"A medical world for medical men," was a slogan, he said, more professional organizations could adopt with profit.

More Jurors Sought In Love Death Trial

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—A jury to try James Barnhart, on a charge of murdering his sweetheart, was expected to be completed today. Six jurors were selected yesterday. Arleigh Tennant, jointly indicted with Barnhart, will go on trial next week, when Barnhart accused her of the woman in a quarrel last April. The men are said to have killed going with other men.

Mitzi Goes Red-Headed

The screen is about to have another red-headed gal!

Leave it to little Mitzi Green to pull something different. No sooner did the tiny star arrive in cinemaland from many weeks of personal appearances than she had donned her freshly-made red wig.

No, Mitzi isn't doing any burlesque on Jean Marlow's "Red-Headed Woman"—it's (meaning the crimson top-piece) for "Little Orphan Annie," Miss Green's starring film for Radio Pictures.

In order to follow the comic-strip character from which the forthcoming film is adapted, the studio felt that Mitzi should be as much like the funnypaper child as possible, thus the flaming wig.

SLAIN VOLPE AIDE BURIED; WIDOW FACES QUIZ

POLITICS

Dryness of Curtis to Effect Pa. Campaign.

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Protests from Philadelphia Republicans against the appearance of Vice President Curtis at Foglesville, Lehigh County, to open the state campaign September 17, are apt to have their counterpart elsewhere in the country where anti-prohibition sentiment is predominant. Perhaps the protests will be even more pronounced — as well as more effective — than they have proven in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Shields

State Chairman Edward Martin is authority for the statement that the Foglesville plans will be carried out, and Curtis, opposed to any revision of the Eighteenth Amendment, will make the keynote speech. To sidetrack him at this late date would be a slap too direct, of even greater advantage to Democratic orators than the episode already has proven.

Furthermore, it is improbable the dryness of Curtis will affect the outcome of the presidential campaign in Pennsylvania. If this most Republican of Republican states swings to the Democrats it will be because of economic issues, though prohibition certainly is in the picture.

But there are other states where the lines are closely drawn between Republicans and Democrats, states where the change of less than 50,000 votes will determinte the electoral vote. In such states where there is heavy wet sentiment, such as New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island, it is probably the political strategists of the Republican party will think twice before inviting the Vice President to a place of prominence. It will be recalled that when Curtis delivered his acceptance speech in Topeka, and not only disavowed President Hoover's attitude on prohibition, but refused to go even as far as the Republican platform on the subject, the nationwide broadcast did not carry his words into such wet centers as New York and Chicago.

* * *

Philadelphia Fears Effect on Local Fights

The explanation that Philadelphia protested because it feared Curtis might be heckled, and wished to protect him from discourtesy, is lame. The real reason was that the Philadelphians fear the appearance of an unreconstructed dry in such prominent position will affect local contests, and the same fear is communicated to other sections of the state where drys are in the minority.

It may be that the incident will make simpler the effort of William S. Vare to have incorporated in the state platform a declaration for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment and modification of the Volstead act and the Snyder state enforcement act. Vare and those who think as he does, including Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, of Allegheny County, will urge that something of this nature is needed as a counterbalance.

The confusion among the Republican leaders on prohibition has a parallel in the protest of some Pittsburgh members of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform against indorsement by the national organization of the candidacy of Gov. Roosevelt. A letter sent to Mrs. Charles Sabin, national chairman of the organization, says the indorsement was "ill-advised," and the Pittsburgh ladies signing the protest therefore announce they will support President Hoover.

It is a diverting spectacle, especially the implied admission of these ladies that they have only been shadow-boxing in their demand for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. They say:

"Our slogan, 'repeal,' has for us a practical rather than a literal meaning, and we are not willing to sacrifice the certainty of immediate prohibition reform to the impossibility of unconditional repeal."

From the ticket they support however, there has been no promise of Volstead act modification, a pledge made by the Democrats, and one of the quickest certainties of "immediate prohibition reform."

* * *

Same Situation Existed in 1930

Perhaps these lady anti-prohibitionists are like some of the men so vocally zealous in the same cause, and embroider the principle heavily with partisan political considerations. When Republicanism and repealism collide repealism is shunted aside.

The same situation existed with the Crusaders in the 1930 Pennsylvania campaign. That group was hot for the election of John Hemphill, wet Democrat, rather than Gifford Pinchot, dry Republican, as Governor. Republicanism cut no figure in that fight, for Pinchot was not regarded by the old-line Republicans as really representative of the party. So the Republican Crusaders could be foamingly wet for a Democrat, though he had to be sugar-coated as a "Liberal."

But in that same campaign the prohibition issue was straightly raised. Sidgwick Kistler, Democrat and wet, was a candidate for the United States Senate against Jim Davis, Republican, then satisfactory to the drys. And the successful man in this fight had a vote in the national Senate where something could be done about prohibition, while the successful candidate for Governor could have no influence on the subject.

But the Crusaders kept hands off, for the regular Republican organization was for Davis, and made earnest support for Hemphill conditional on support from wets for Davis. Certain classes of Democrats were quite as lacking in principle in that campaign, and made little effort in behalf of Kistler.

DOUGLAS WINS COURT RULE ON WHARF

City Ordered to Show Why Lien Should Not Be Stayed

John Douglas, Jr., today succeeded in delaying the City's efforts to oust him as a "squatter" from wharf frontage on the Allegheny River below the Sixth Street Bridge.

Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Common Pleas Court, today allowed a ruling that the city must show cause why a judgment against Douglas for $12,250 which the city avers is due as rent on the old Exposition Building should not be reopened and a writ of execution against his equipment on the wharf stayed.

SUM QUESTIONED

Judge Gardner, before delivering his decision, had indicated that there was, in his opinion, a doubt as to the sum owed the city by Douglas.

Attorney W. F. Michael, representing Douglas, contended the amount of the judgment against Douglas did not represent his real indebtedness as Douglas had made repairs to the Exposition building amounting to several thousand dollars.

Opposing Douglas, Assistant City Solicitor T. M. Benner argued against reopening the judgment unless Douglas would agree to move his barges to some other point along the wharf where they would not interfere with the Iron City Sand Company, the city's tenant, and provide watchmen to guard his equipment.

CHARGES LINK TO FIRMS

Douglas has also threatened to file criminal charges against three city officials and two contractors to reveal an alleged connection between the city administration and sand and gravel companies.

Douglas was to confer with District Attorney A. T. Park on this phase of the squabble.

It developed today that Maj. Thomas Lanphier, friend of Col. Lindbergh, and a national figure in aviation, whom Douglas had announced he had retained as counsel is not a lawyer. Douglas also said he expected to retain Col. Henry Breckenridge, Lindbergh's personal attorney.

FIRE ROUTS 50 FROM OFFICE

More than 50 employes, most of them girls, were compelled to flee a building, housing the general publicity department, Westinghouse Airbrake Company, in Wilmerding, today when fire started on the roof of the three-story brick structure.

As clouds of smoke belched from the roof followed by flame, employes, warned, ran down the steps into the street, while a throng congregated to watch firemen summoned by two alarms, battle the blaze.

Firemen carried hose into the building and also fought the blaze from ladders, confining it principally to the root and top floor.

We're All Ready Now for Some Serious Politics

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Labor Day is over and now we're getting down to serious politics.

California and Texas have gone through their senatorial equinoxes, Maine handled the eclipse very well and New York is floating bonds for a new investigation.

Andy Mellon is sailing back to England to get his umbrella and toothbrush. Prof. Skinner, who was at Bar Harbor, resting from the work we wouldn't let him do, has returned to Europe.

President Hoover fished over the holiday. When there are no fish, one of the White House secretaries jumps overboard, takes the bait and allows Herbert to haul him in for the news reels.

THE B. & O.'S GREAT CUT AT WITTMER .... REMOVING 300,000 CUBIC YARD OF EARTH, GIVING RAILBED TO HIGHWAY TO ELIMINATE THREE CROSSINGS

B. & O. Cut to Remove Dangerous Crossings

Track Relocation Will Cost Railroad $350,000

Three dangerous Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossings on the Butler Plank road are to be eliminated with the relocation of the railroad tracks by a huge cut through a hill. The work is now in progress at Wittmer.

Three hundred thousand cubic yards of excavation will be necessary for the cut. It will be 2,000 feet long and 140 feet high at the highest point. The railroad tracks will be relocated through the cut, while the new highway will occupy the road bed of the old tracks. A mile re-location of tracks will be necessary and will cost the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad $350,000.

Railroad crossings to be eliminated are at Glenshaw, Wittmer and Mt. Royal. The railroad tracks will be moved by February, according to the railroad engineers.

The new roadway will then be started by the state and county.

Parents Threaten Ohio School Strike

ELYRIA, O., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Two hundred parents, resenting an order transferring their children from a nearby school to one a mile and a half away, have threatened to keep them out of the classrooms as a protest. At a special protest meeting, some parents declared they would not send their small children to the distant school when it opens September 19.

BAZZANO GROUP WINS DELAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The cases of eight men charged with consorting with criminals were adjourned today until September 29.

The men, arrested originally with six others in connection with the killing of John Bazzano, Pittsburgh racketeer, in Brooklyn August 4, were rearrested after they had been cleared of the homicide charge.

In asking for an adjournment, Samuel Liebowitz, attorney for the defendants, told Magistrate Leonard A. McGee he needed time to get in touch with four witnesses he said were away on vacations.

The defendants described themselves as Paul Palmeri, 40, of Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Sam Di Carlo, 28, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Michael Russo, 32, of Pittsburgh; Anthony Bonasera, 35, of Brooklyn; John Oddo, 28, of Brooklyn; Cologero Spallino, 32, of Pittsburgh; Peter Limbardo, 50, of Trenton, N. J., and Angelo Pollizzi, 32, of Dunmore, Pa.

BELIEVES HE'S VOLPE KIN

A letter stating he may be a relative of the three slain Volpe brothers was received by the Missing Persons Bureau today from Chaim Volpe, of Havana, Cuba, who inquired concerning the family connections of the murdered rackateers.

The writer said he left the United States for Cuba many years ago and he has many relatives in the states whom he has not seen since then. He said he learned of the Volpe killings in newspapers.

Michael Feeney, of the Missing Persons Bureau, said he would attempt to obtain the information from members of the Volpe family.

Asleep Three Days, Man Feared Dying

KITTANNING, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Puzzled physicians today said Lawrence Swigart, 32, of Worthington, near here, was dying in a Kittanning hospital, where he has been sleeping for three days. Swigart was found unconscious in an alley early Saturday. He was moved to the hospital, where efforts to arouse him have been unavailing.

Wrist Watch Lost In Crash Recovered

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 6.—A wrist watch reported "mysteriously lost" following a collision of automobiles near here, was found under the windshield of the car where it had been hurled from the wrist of Mrs. Mary Davidson, of near Titusville, in the collision.

SLEUTHS HOPE FOR CLUE TO KILLERS

Wait for Woman to Name Gangsters In Revenge

The ambitious "alcohol cook" who aspired to bigger things in the rackets was laid to rest in St. Joseph's Cemetery in East McKeesport, just a stone's throw from the graves of his late bosses, the murdered Johnny, Jim and Arthur Volpe.

It seemed fitting that they were grouped in death, for it was probably the same gang that clicked the triggers which meant a racketeer's death for all of them.

CROWD AT HOME

Three hundred or more curious stood outside the Pecora home at State and Patton streets in Wilmerding—just a block from the Volpe apartments—to watch the comely, dark-eyed widow and her two children follow the casket to its grave.

They saw a Catholic priest enter to give the church blessing—but there was no church service for Pecora.

The crowd stood there watching until a two-alarm fire sent spectators running to the nearby Westinghouse properties.

Pecora's friends did not neglect him in death. Before the widow and the mourners left the home four automobiles were filled with floral pieces that have banked the casket since the Volpe lieutenant was shot down outside his grocery store Saturday night.

SLEUTHS WAIT IN THRONG

Pecora was lowered into the earth in an expensive silver-colored metal casket. Her two sons by her side, the widow wept freely. When she made a start towards the lowered coffin, pallbearers, afraid she might try to follow her husband into the grave, held her back.

Three county detectives were among the crowd that stood outside the house. But theirs was more than idle curiosity. This afternoon they will ask Antoinette Pecora why her husband was slain. They will ask her why she was able to say:

"I know who killed my husband. I was his business partner. I'll tell you more after the funeral."

If the widow talks, the detectives may be able to put somebody behind the bars today. The trail may lead to the East End, for one story is that ambitious Pecora had been muscling into the redistilled alcohol territory of the "East Liberty crowd."

Perhaps, too, the widow's testimony will lead to the killer of the racketeering Volpes and John Baz-

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEATTY, Nev., Sept. 6.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Had wonderful day today. Started out early this morning at Tonopah, the famous old silver mining town.

Will Rogers

Then down to Goldfield, the gold town.

There, Labor Day, 1906, was the start of Tex Rickard. I stood on the ground where 26 years ago Battling Nelson and Joe Gans fought 42 rounds. They had fighters in those days, as well as promoters.

Then out to Death Valley Scotty's castle. Arabian Nights never conceived anything like that on the desert.

Then to Beatty, and the famous old Ryolite and Bullfrog towns. If they should ever momentarily get sensible and make silver a money, all this would come back.

Now for Las Vegas, Nev., and the Boulder Dam. Water costs more than gold in this West.

Yours, WILL.

Cox Visiting Chicago Despite Speech Ban

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 6.—Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, on his second week of campaigning for the presidency on the Jobless party ticket, is going to Chicago today. Whether he will speak there is a question. Previously he was banned from speaking in the parks by George T. Donahue, secretary of the Park Commission. It was Donahue who told a Jobless party representative a few days ago to "hire a hall," adding "no use to see the higher-ups. I'm the boss."

The priest, however, intends to park his broadcasting car in Grant Park, within the shadows of the skyscrapers, even though he isn't given an opportunity to talk. He said:

"I want Chicagoans to see me. I'm not such a terrible fellow."

Father Cox's visit in Chicago will be brief. He must hurry southwestward, for he is scheduled to appear at a mass meeting in Elk City, Okla., next week.

Many persons had left before his arrival and the lights in the park were turned out. About a hundred persons remained and greeted the arrival of his broadcasting car with applause.

The nominee arrived in South Bend from Fort Wayne. He spoke at a Labor Day celebration in the latter city.

The two in the hospital are Stella Zak, 32, of 1584 Murray avenue, and Walter Switala, 37, of 2301 Sarah street, the latter the driver of one of the cars. The other victims were John Kowalski, 25, of 2308 Mission street, and Steve Poity, 29, of 2417½ Sarah street, passengers in Switala's car; Charles Charlap, 28, of 218 Church avenue, Brownsville, driver of the other car, and his passengers, M. Schwartz, 28, of 5713 Margaretta street, and Mary Harris, 25, of 1710 Carson street. The Zak woman was riding in Charlap's machine.

MT. LEBANON CRASH

John Wild, 34, of 634 Shady drive, Mt. Lebanon, and Mrs. Mollie Waters, 37, of 732 Roslyn avenue, Mt. Lebanon, were injured when Wild's automobile and another car driven by William Spear, of 526 Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, collided at West Liberty and Cape May avenues last night, according to police report. Both were taken to South Side Hospital. Mrs. Waters was riding in Spear's car, police said.

Four persons were injured when two automobiles collided in East Ohio street between Etna and Millvale last night. Sylvester Goyak, 21, of Mt. Troy road, Reserve Township, driver of one, and his companion, Frank Basilovich, 15, of 53 Maplewood street, Etna, and Mrs. Wilhelmina Charlton, of Valencia, and her 2-year-old son, William, riding in the other car, were injured, police said. They were taken to Allegheny General Hospital.

BOY AND GIRL HURT

A boy and a girl were recovering today from injuries suffered late yesterday when the car in which they were riding was forced off the road, over a 10-foot embankment at Sawmill Run boulevard and Bausman street. Dolores Dechar, 13, of 1926 Metropolitan street, North Side, and Louis Kanarek, 16, of 1925 Beaver avenue, North Side, received slight brush burns. George Blair, 19, 2043 Chateau street, drove, police said.

MORGUE TO TAKE FINGERPRINTS

Coroner W. J. McGregor today announced that fingerprints will be taken of each body brought to the morgue. The prints will be sent to the National Bureau of Criminal Identification at Washington for comparison with files of fugitives from justice.

Federal authorities should save thousands of dollars annually with the new plan, which will end fruitless searches for wanted criminals, according to Coroner McGregor. The fingerprinting will be in charge of John P. Black, morgue superintendent.

Panama Canal Slide Repair Work Rushed

PANAMA CITY, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Increased dredging equipment and additional men were hurried to the East Culebra extension of the Panama Canal today when what had been classed as an "orderly slide" assumed the proportions of major cave-in.

Officials said they did not believe the slide would interefere with shipping unless it should be greatly accelerated.

JOAN LOWELL SAVES BANKER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Joan Lowell, author whose most sensational book told of an adventurous life at sea, was a heroine today.

She saved Albert D. Graham, 50, chairman of the board of First National Bank, Baltimore, from drowning after violent seas carried him far out from the beach.

She caught him as he was going down for the third time, stunned him with a blow when his grip almost pulled her down, and held him until lifeguards arrived.

Miss Lowell herself swam to the beach, where she collapsed. Allen Ireland, former varsity basketball star at Wake Forest University, North Carolina, and Jay Mayer, reported the stern of a boat accidentally struck Miss Lowell in the chest during the rescue.

The young woman was soon revived, however.

PECORA BURIED NEAR VOLPES

zano—and to the true story of the underworld war which has claimed five victims in five weeks.

If it does, city and county detectives will be able to substitute facts for the theories which have been the sole product of their investigations.

Pecora was reared in the rackets by Johnny Volpe, who, with his two brothers, was slain in Bazzano's coffee shop in Wylie avenue July 29. They had used Bazzano's coffee shop as their racket headquarters, and the police theory is that Bazzano, inwardly resentful of their success, had them erased. A week later Bazzano himself was murdered in Brooklyn, perhaps retaliation by Volpe thugs.

W. T. ALEXANDER GUN VICTIM

Funeral services for William T. Alexander, 49, who died in a Steubenville hospital Sunday from a gunshot wound, will be held tomorrow from the home of his brother, R. P. Alexander, 3430 Ward street.

While visiting on the farm of his brother near Cadiz, O., Mr. Alexander was climbing a fence with a shotgun when the weapon was discharged.

He was a memeber of George W. Guthrie Lodge, No. 696, F. & A. M., Pennsylvania Consistory and Syria Temple.

U. S. PROBING FARM STRIKE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 6.—The federal government has been investigating the farm strike throughout the grain belt and the farmers have been cleared of all suspicion of fostering Communistic theories behind their drive for higher prices on farm products.

This conclusion of federal authorities was confirmed today by United States Attorney Charles E. Sandall, of the Western Nebraska district. He said he regarded the strike as the outcome of popular unrest, caused by economic conditions, and the decline in farm values. He declared:

Sandall was interviewed by International News Service while grand juries in Cherokee and Council Bluffs, Ia., were meeting to investigate violence in the strike. Indictments were expected in both towns.

Sandall said the federal investigation had revealed no necessity for federal action.

BLONDE BANDIT ROBS PASTOR

Resuming their holdup activities after a layoff of almost a week, the bandit pair and their blonde companion added a minister to their list of victims last night.

The Rev. I. S. Hawn, of 124 South Negley avenue, was walking in Kirkwood street, between Beatty and Whitfield streets, whn the men, both armed, stepped from a coupe and ordered the minister to throw up his hands.

As he complied, the Rev. Hawn discovered that the young woman was awaiting the gunmen at the wheel of the car. After robbing the clergyman of $53, the trio sped down Kirkwood street.

At 3 a. m. the blonde and the two thugs were reported seen riding in another coupe in Oakland. Police immediately began a search of the district and Schenley Park, but found no trace of them.

Robert Darlington, of 421 Arabella street, a taxicab driver, reported to Hazelwood police early today that four men who engaged his cab in the Hill district robbed him of $4 when they reached their destination, Greenfield avenue and Lydia street. Two of the bandits had revolvers, Darlington told police.

The 78-year-old retired jurist, who had served as president judge, joined nine other judges to hear arguments. The general list contains 189 cases for argument, and the equity list 16. Judge Swearingen had been expected to be present, but he still is under the care of a nurse.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

ROOSEVELT'S LEAD GROWS IN SOUTH

By COLE E. MORGAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(Universal.)—President Hoover's managers knew what they were doing when they decided recently to waste little time or money campaigning in the solid South or border states this year.

From latest returns in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States there appears no prospect that Mr. Hoover will get a single electoral vote south of the Ohio and the Potomac.

With more than 150,000 ballots tabulated from the entire country, Gov. Roosevelt is leading by a majority of 31,636. The vote stands:

HOLDS 20 PER CENT MARGIN

The poll returns seem to have settled down for the time being to a 60-40 per cent division in Roosevelt's favor.

New ballots tabulated over the holiday week-end from those five states of the central South—Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina—that four years ago cast their electorial votes for President Hoover, reflected no change during the last week. They served merely to strengthen the indications of a week ago that all of these states this year may be definitely placed in the Roosevelt column.

As a group, these five states are dividing their vote 69 per cent for Roosevelt to 31 per cent for Hoover. Kentucky, the closest of the lot, is a little better than 3 to 2 on the Roosevelt side.

NORTH CAROLINA SWINGS

North Carolina, which in three presidential elections prior to 1928 showed a normal Republican vote of 40 to 42 per cent, but which four years ago voted 55 per cent Republican, has swung back to the Democratic side, and is even more Democratic than when Woodrow Wilson was elected President.

West Virginia, generally regarded as debatable territory, is voting almost 2 to 1 Democratic. Tennessee is going 7 to 3 for Roosevelt and Virginia 3 to 1 on the Democratic side.

SHIP MUTINY QUELLED

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The "mutiny" aboard the Holland-America liner Rotterdam, near the end of the ship's voyage from New York, ended today in the hands of the police.

When the liner entered this port this morning under escort of the mine-layer Meerlandt, four policemen went aboard immediately with warrants for the rebellious members of the crew, charging insubordination.

On request of the captain, 30 Dutch Marines met the liner yesterday near West Hinder lightship when members of the crew were reported to have insisted on proceeding to Rotterdam from Boulogne in spite of the fact that the company's and the captain's orders were to debark passengers at Southampton.

Fears that the crew would join a seamen's strike here if they came to this port were given as the reason for the order to proceed to Southampton.

Yesterday's reports said the captain finally acquiesced in the demand to proceed here.

Bandit Who Took Watch Sold It to Him, Man Says

Reporting a holdup to police early today, William A. Kaufman, of 1232 Faukner street, said he recognized one of the two robbers as a man from whom he recently purchased a wrist watch. The wrist watch and $17.50 were taken by the bandits.

$40,000 SAVED FOR CITY

Because of decreased cost of labor and materials, the city today saved nearly $40,000 from the estimated cost in awarding a contract for repaving of West Carson street from Corliss street to Telford street. M. O'Herron & Co. obtained the contract on its bid of $53,959.15. City engineers had estimated the cost at $90,000.

Public Works Director E. G. Lang also awarded contracts for construction of two groups of tennis courts, one in Frick Park to Monaghan & Barr Company for $2,863.77 and another in McBride Park to the same company for $633.95.

SHAKER SCHOOL HEAD SLAIN

SHAKERTOWN, Ky., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—This quaint old community, founded by the Shakers more than a century ago and now a mecca for tourists, today sought the solution of what authorities believed was a murder. The victim was Robert Horn, 50, manager of the Presbyterian Pennybaker School for Girls, one of the town's oldest buildings and most noted landmarks.

Horn died from a pistol bullet wound in his left side. Mrs. Thurman Cox, 33, in whose home on the Pennybaker farm authorities were told the shooting occurred, was lodged in jail and charged with murder. Officials were told by workmen on the farm that there had been trouble between the woman's husband and Horn over crops raised on the school farm.

The Pennybaker school, an institution for orphan girls, once was prominent in Kentucky, but now has scarcely more than half a dozen charges.

FLOOD IMPERILS TEXAS VALLEY

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Rushing toward the Gulf of Mexico, turbulent flood waters of the Rio Grande laid waste to additional thousands of fertile acres today, spreading terror and hunger throughout the countryside.

The crest of the deluge was momentarily expected to strike the rich and heavily populated lower Rio Grande valley. Engineers doubted the ability of the new $6,000,000 flood control system to carry off the raging waters.

Temporary levees were hastily thrown up and bridges were reinforced with tons of sand in bags.

Part of Fort Ringgold was already flooded. The post stood deserted, troops and supplies having been evacuated to higher ground.

Along both shores of the river, thousands of American and Mexican residents were homeless and famished. In many villages and towns food supplies were destroyed when the flood swept down upon the homes and buildings.

ROTH CLEARED IN AUTOCRASH

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 6.—New York state troopers announced today that no prosecution will be brought against C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, following an automobile accident Sunday night.

They announced that Roth had not fled from the scene of the crash which sent four Cleveland (O.) autoists to an Erie hospital. They said their investigation showed the case had been properly reported by Roth's son to Justice of the Peace Murray Conrath, at Ripley, N. Y.

A driver of an automobile who attempted to make a left turn without signaling was blamed today by C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, for the wreck near Ripley, N. Y., injuring five, in which his car was involved.

Roth, reported sought by New York state police, said he reported the accident to highway patrol headquarters at Brockton, N. Y., and to the Ripley justice of the peace.

Vote Machine Bribe Sentence Delayed

HARRISBURG, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—George O'Brien, former appraiser of the port of Philadelphia, won postponement of an anticipated sentence in Dauphin County Court today. He was tol dto reappear October 3.

O'Brien was convicted of offering Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the commonwealth, a $20,000 bribe in an effort to influence the award of a contract for Philadelphia voting machines.

SCORE BEATEN IN LABOR WAR

SCRANTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Two men were so badly beaten that they were removed to a hospital and at least a dozen others suffered cuts and bruises in a clash between union pickets and workmen this morning at a junior high school building being constructed in West Scranton by William Steele and Sons, Philadelphia contractors. Police reserves dispersed the crowd.

Police declared there had been labor troubles at the new school building for two weeks and that more than 200 union pickets were gathered there this morning. As a number of workmen attempted to pass the pickets, words were exchanged and stones began to fly.

Within a few minutes, there were many fist fights and the reserves were called.

No arrests were made.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and adoption of the five-day working week were favored in resolutions adopted by the Steuben Society of America at the closing session of its anual convention here yesterday.

Pending repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the society urged repeal of the Volstead act and the "substitution of a federal statute which will permit a most liberal interpretation of the Eighteenth Amendment."

FOIL LYNCHING OF WOMEN

LEBANON, Tenn., Sept. 6.—(INS.)—After threatening to storm the jail here despite the presence of National Guardsmen with machine guns, a mob of 500 farmers was dispersed today by news that the five Negro prisoners they sought had been transferred to a Nashville prison.

Forming last night, the mob milled around the jail here demanding that Sheriff Ed Climer turn over to them the Negroes, two of them women, held in connection with the slaying of Constables Ben Northern and Millard Brown.

Climer appealed to the Governor for aid and 100 National Guardsmen were rushed to the jail, armed with rifles, machine guns and tear gas bombs.

There was no clash between the two forces.

Teamwork Is a Requisite of Happily Married Life

Can marriage be happy when the Little Woman likes to step, and the Big Boy doesn't?

Sophie wanted to know. She is a peppy little trick who likes her dances and her shows, but the Boy Friend's favorite frivolity is to flop on the Chesterfield and bury his nose in a paper.

So, although Sophie loves him, she wondered if their marriage would go haywire.

"It won't, if you really do love him—and use your head," says Mary, "and I know, because I married a fellow like that."

Here's the whole story, and it'll be good for what ails you—if you have itching feet.

Dear Sally:

I've just read Sophie's letter asking about the Boy Friend who likes to sit home, while she prefers to go to parties or dances. May I tell her of my case? I think maybe it will help her.

I was just like her before I married, a year ago, and my Boy Friend was just like hers. I could have danced all night and never felt the strain at all. I just adored going places.

But John was so different from me. Just the opposite, in fact. He was the quiet, stay-at-home type. But I loved him. So we were married.

After the first glamour had worn off I began to grow very tired of sitting in all evening, after spending my day at home doing my housework and so forth. It got my goat.

FOUND NEW INTERESTS

But I knew just where that feeling would lead me if I didn't watch out; and I didn't want to wreck our marriage, because we love each other a lot. Still, I couldn't drag a tired husband, who had worked hard all day, out every night.

So I got busy on my own hook. I began to find ways of entertaining myself. I joined a few clubs. I started reading books, both old and new. I found there were a lot of new interests I could go in for, if I just looked for them. And soon all my discontent vanished, and in its place came a happy peace.

I went out afternoons after my work was done, too. I found lots of things to busy myself about and keep life from getting monotonous.

So when John came home tired at night, he didn't find a wife who was rarin' to go somewhere or spend her life dancing, but one who realized that marriage is a big job, and who didn't intend to fail at it.

SHOULD BE TEAMWORK

So, you see, two different kinds of people can be happy together, if they'll try. It depends on Sophie herself how well she will make out if she marries her quiet Boy Friend. But she will have to make up her mind that it isn't fair to expect him to go out after working hard all day, as she would like to do now.

And if she really loves him, she will understand, and not expect him to. She will do like I did—make a few amusements for herself. There are plenty of interesting things besides dancing and partying, if she will just look for them and make use of them. MARY.

That's a fine letter, Mary; and it's a generous understanding spirit you have.

Yet, on the other hand, I don't see why any bride should do all the adjusting. Marriage is teamwork. Why shouldn't John stir himself to step out for an evening's fun now and then, too?

What's your notion, Stranger?

It's a grand thing for Mary to dig in and amuse herself—but shouldn't John also do his part?

Youth, in itself, is beauty.

It does not need anything added to improve it. In fact, the more simply youth is dressed and the less ornament youth puts on, the more it will shine as it should.

I do not like to see very young girls who are brunettes bleach their hair to blonde. For nature has given them a tone of skin and a color of eyes and lashes that blend more harmoniously with dark hair. A brunette can be just as beautiful, in her way, as any blonde.

We have seen on the screen that brunette stars have never made up as attractive blondes. So why should it be otherwise in other walks of life.

Youth is more sparkling than diamonds.

Hints for the Household

To pack a summer coat away lay it on a flat surface with the outside up. Fold the sleeves back at the elbows and draw them straight down at the sides. Turn the fronts back over the sleeves and then take up the coat at the armholes and fold it wrong side out lengthwise. Lay the coat in the trunk flat.

To remove fruit stains from fabrics, pour boiling water on to them from the height of a few feet at soon as possible after they have been made; there are very few stains which will not yield entirely to this treatment. If the fabric is delicate it is safer to sponge the stain with hot water.

When drying men's soft collars, peg a strip of strong calico on the line, with buttons sewn on at intervals. Button your collars on to dry, and so preserve the button holes and prevent the dirty marks caused by the line or pegs.

To remove jam or fruit stains from pudding-cloths, put an eggshell into the water in which they are scalded.

When washing dainty lingerie and "hankies" if a small piece of orris root is tied up in muslin and put into the water a delightful fragrance of violets will linger.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Don't skimp on soap when shampooing the hair. Many women whose brushes show evidence of soap scum after the shampoo, don't make the lather thick, rich and crackling, as it should be. A weak solution doesn't cut into dirt and grease, a combination that will collect to an alarming extent in one week's time on one's sainted head. Place a good-sized bar of soap in a pint Mason jar, cover with hot water, let stand two days before using. Keep adding water or soap. The medium for the hair cleaning fiesta is always ready.

The bathing season got the girls het up about toenail beautifying. The good work continues. The same polish is used for toe and finger tips.

Chemists have rushed to the help of the woman who is distraught because of distressing evidences of excessive perspiration. Deodorants appear in many forms; there are liquids, pastes and powders. With them many a woman has been able to successfully combat a life-long trouble. They're not the kind of health-and-beauty props that can be made at home.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Attacking Psychics

The so-called psychic bid is most often employed to bluff opponents out of game or Slam or to prevent them from playing the hand at the proper contract. In contrast with this type of psychic bidding, there is another method of deceptive bidding, which might be called an attacking psychic, the purpose being the correct object of bidding—reaching the best contract in the combined hands.

Mr. Bernard H. Cone, of New York, who is greatly addicted to this form of bidding, sent me the hand below as an example of reaching the correct contract through its use.

South—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

	♠ 6 ♡ A K 7 4 ◇ K 10 9 8 ♣ A J 10 9
♠ A K 10 9 5 ♡ 6 5 ◇ 4 3 2 ♣ K 8 2	North West East South	♠ 7 3 2 ♡ 8 3 2 ◇ Q J 5 ♣ Q 6 4 3
	♠ Q J 8 4 ♡ Q J 10 9 ◇ A 7 6 ♣ 7 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Double	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

The noteworthy feature of the bidding is South's bid of two spades, which is ordinarily reserved to show no losers or at least to require partner to keep the bidding open until game is reached, after opponents have opened the bidding.

This is the bid which Mr. Cone terms an "attacking psychic." The bid, of course, is practically equivalent to a bid of hearts in response to the Takeout Double, and the reason for its use was largely the proposition of having the stronger hand concealed and thus securing what might have been a more satisfactory lead. Naturally, in response to a bid of two spades, the vulnerable North bid three hearts, and this South raised to four.

While the bidding example is interesting, all roads lead to Rome, and the same result would have been attained had South, in response to his partner's Takeout Double, disclosed his really strong hand by bidding hearts. There are, in the North and South hands, played at a heart contract, only three losers—one trick each in diamonds, clubs and spades. Mr. Cone explains the two spade bid thus:

He hesitated to make a Jump bid in hearts because of having only four of the suit and necessity of finding at least four trumps in the North hand, if the hand was to be played successfully at a heart contract, because of the presence of four spades in his hand. If North held four hearts, then unquestionably hearts was the proper contract, but if North held but three, notrump might present the more attractive road to game.

Mr. Cone pointed out that a game at notrump could have been defeated if West opened the spade ten and East returned a spade when he obtained the lead either through winning a trick in diamonds or clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding:

South	North
1 ◇	2 ♡
2 N T	3 ♣
3 N T	4 ◇

Does North's four diamond bid constitute an additional Force?

Answer: Yes. North's two heart bid has indicated a desire to play the hand at game. By taking the bidding out of game, he is merely trying to show partner his hand, and probably has Slam intentions.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Groom's Obligation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the groom-to-be. Will you please give me a helping hand, and solve some of my problems?

1. What are my obligations as far as the details of the wedding are concerned?

2. Do I give gifts to my attendants? What do you suggest?

3. Shall I invite the bride's brother, of whom I am very fond, to be one of our ushers?

4. What is the correct form for me to use when I sign the hotel register?

THANK YOU.

1. These are your obligations: The engagement ring; a wedding present to your bride; the bride's bouquet; a bouquet to the bride's mother and a bouquet to your mother; the marriage license; the fee to the clergyman; the gift to your best man and to each of the ushers, besides their ties, gloves, and boutonnieres; the car in which you and your best man come to the ceremony, and the expense of the wedding trip.

2. Yes, you give gifts to your attendants. I suggest, for instance, a cigaret case; watch chain; gold key ring; single pearl stud; wallet; pocket watch or wrist watch; gold or silver fountain pen; cuff links; cigaret lighter; long silver key chain; cigaret case.

3. Yes, this is the gracious thing to do, and as a matter of fact, the thing that will be expected that you will do.

4. This is the correct form. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robinson, New York.

The Ushers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Do the ushers leave my home or the groom's to go to the church? Do they sit in the same car with the bridesmaids?

S.

The ushers go directly from their homes to the church. They do not leave the groom's house, since the groom and his best man go together from the groom's house. Only the bride's attendants leave from the bride's house. The duties of the ushers make it necessary for them to arrive at the church about an hour before the time set for the ceremony, so that they may make everything ready for the receiving of the guests. It is logical that they will have no time to accompany any of the bridesmaids to the church.

Also it is not necessary for the bridesmaids to arrive at the church until the time for the processional. Therefore, they start from the bride's home just before she starts.

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

SPORT COMMENT

BUCS OWE POSITION TO HOME GAINS

WITH THE HOME season ended and the remaining 20 games to be played on the road, the Pirates' chances of elevating their present percentage or sticking around the same figures hinge on the possibility of their being able to improve on their previous traveling record. Also on the prospect that Hal Smith or Steve Swetonic can manage to lend a helping hand to a reduced pitching staff that otherwise may suffer soon from overwork. Larry French, for instance, has been in eight games in 21 days.

Hal Smith

The home grounds put the Pirates as high as they are above the .500 mark. They won 45 games there while losing 31, for a percentage of .592—eight out of 11 from the Cards and Braves, seven out of 11 from the Cubs, Giants and Reds, five out of 10 from the Dodgers and three out of 11 from the Phillies. On the road they have broken even, winning and losing 29, but in the Eastern sector they have not done that well, losing 13 out of 33. Another trip like the last might cost them second place, but the impetus of a 10-game winning streak ought to carry them through. Yesterday's gains entrenched them so solidly in the runner-up berth that if they only break even from now to the finish the Dodgers will have to win 14 out of 18 to beat them out. If the Cubs break even the Pirates will need 17 out of 20 to pass them.

WITH THE GROWING probability that Bill Terry will be retained to manage the Giants again next year, the rumor persists that one of the winter steps toward reorganization for 1933 will be a trade sending Freddie Lindstrom to another National League club.

It's not that Lindstrom has lost any of his playing ability, but that Freddie himself desires a change. The player's friends say the club owners broke faith with him after promising him the managership on the retirement of John McGraw, and that, while holding nothing against Terry, Lindstrom wants to be traded.

FREDDIE HAS NOT batted up to normal this year, but baseball men in general consider it to have been merely an off season from which he will rally next spring.

Lindstrom surely would look sweet in Pittsburgh's lineup. Just about enough to make pennant possibilities of the Pirates. But getting him is another matter. The price asked for him in playing material if he is put on the block will be plenty high.

THE MAN WHO is least surprised at the showing Mark Koenig has made with the Cubs is Koenig himself. Mark can't understand why his comeback should cause such general amazement. "I'm still a young fellow," he protests. "I'm only 28. People forget that I was just a kid when I broke in with the Yankees, and they look on me as a timeworn veteran rocking around on rubber legs. As a matter of fact, I'm just at the age when I should be at my best. I hadn't slowed up when the Yanks passed me to the Tigers, nor when the Tigers passed me out of the big leagues. I could still run and throw as well as ever. It was just my eyes. That was only temporary trouble, and now that it's cured there's nothing miraculous in my being able to play big league ball again."

Johnny Allen

EARLY IN THE spring Joe McCarthy predicted that if he could find one more winning pitcher he would win the American League pennant. All that he needed was for Ivy Andrews or Gordon Rhodes to come through, he said.

Joe was overlooking the recruit who was to help make his pennant success possible. Andrews and Rhodes failed to deliver, but McCarthy found the extra pitcher he needed, and one far beyond his dreams, in Johnny Allen, the sensational right-hander who surpasses even Lonnie Warneke as the best young hurler of the year, having won ten straight games and 16 out of 18.

IN FACT, ALLEN has won a ranking among the greatest yearling pitchers of any era. Not only does he lead both major leagues on a percentage basis, but nearly all of his games have been complete ones and his earned-run average is very low.

Johnny appears to be a pitcher of the kind that comes along only once in a decade. A blazing fireball, a great curve, perfect control, smart head and no end of courage—all the stuff in the world and a fighting heart. And it's all natural. Cy Perkins, Yankee pitching coach, says he never had to teach Allen anything.

ONLY ONE OF Pittsburgh's teams will be met by Western Reserve in football this year, Carnegie Tech being booked for October 8 in Cleveland, but local fans continue to follow with none the less interest the gridiron fortunes of the Cleveland school, applauding the progress that Karl Davis is making in bringing the institution to the front. The former Pitt graduate manager had a big job ahead of him when he took hold at Western Reserve, but he is getting there gradually through the progressiveness and building ability that for years made him so valuable to the Panthers, and it looks as though the time is coming when he'll have the school right up among the football elite.

RESERVE'S MATERIAL LOOKS 100 per cent better than last year, and the Red Cats are hopeful of making a fine record, with a sensibly arranged schedule.

Practice will start next Monday, with the best prospects in years. Tom Keady is back for his second year as head coach, assisted by Jiggs Donahue and George Brown. The last named replaces Johnny Dreshar, former Carnegie Tech captain, who has entered business and was unable to continue coaching.

A BOXING VETERAN observes that in a year of eclipse, the experience of Old Sol last week had nothing on what has been suffered by a number of leading fighters during the last few months. They, too, have been chased into the shadows.

Bat Battalino

And that's not mentioning some star performers in other sports, such as Pepper Martin, Rogers Hornsby and more. But in no other game have the topliners been eclipsed in such numbers as the prominent punch peddlers.

THE OUTSTANDING VICTIM no doubt was Battling Battalino, who took four plasterings from the Petrolle brothers. Jimmy McLarnin was stripped of much of his glory when beaten by Lou Brouillard. Ernie Schaaf was halted in his heavyweight championship climb by Stanley Poreda and then was knocked out for the first time in his life by Max Baer, though it didn't count as a kayo, officially. Mickey Walker had to take second honors to Johnny Risko. Charley Retzlaff ceased to shine as a heavyweight title prospect when Izzy Gastanaga flattened him. The prestige that Gastanaga gained by that achievement was lost when he ran into Hans Birkie. Tommy Loughran was just about washed up. Fidel La Barba didn't get past the semi-finals in a featherweight tournament. Tommy Paul, who won that tournament, was beaten by Lew Feldman. Primo Carnera was set back by Larry Gains, not to mention a doubtful decision lost to Poreda. A disputed verdict took the heavyweight crown from Max Schmeling, and Jack Sharkey, though proclaimed champion, seems to have dropped out of sight.

COCHET MEETS SEVERE TEST IN ALONSO

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Tennis addicts at Forest Hills turned their attention today from the main business at hand—the battle for Ellsworth Vines, Jr.'s national championship crown—to concentrate their enthusiasm on a "grudge" match that may have no bearing at all on the title fight.

The principals were George Lott, Jr., the veteran Davis Cup star from Chicago, and Frankie Parker, the 16-year-old Milwaukee lad who practically has ruined the present outdoor season for his older rival. Their battle promises to provide the highlight of the third round.

They have clashed five times previously this summer, with victoory perching on Parker's banner in four instances. He beat Lott in such important events as the National clay courts, Canadian championships and Western clay courts.

LOTT'S IRE UP

"If it's the last thing I ever do, I'll beat that kid this time," Lott has advised the press and anyone else who will listen. "He has a great game, all right, and he has trimmed the old master on clay, but I don't believe he can do it on grass."

Parker, a serious-faced, blonde youngster, has refused to be drawn into the controversy. Making his first appearance in the championships, he is letting his racquet do the talking, and so far it has spoken a magic tongue.

If Parker does survive today's hurdle he might cause plenty of trouble. Between him and a semi-final against Vines are such stars as Bunny Austin, Clifford Sutter and Takeo Kuwabara, champion of Japan, but none of them is much, if any, tougher than Lott, who was good enough to reach the final round a year ago.

VINES FACES SETUP

Vines had another easy match today, facing Gabriel Lavine, of Philadelphia, but some real opposition was in prospect for Henri Cochet, French champion, who encountered Manuel Alonso, veteran Spanish internationalist.

PIRATE PREXY WON'T RUSH CONTRACT

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Coincident to the preparation of the Pirates today to carry their 10-game winning streak into the East came semi-official confirmation to the effect that George Gibson would continue in the role of Buccaneer manager. The pilot may sign a new contract late this month.

Asked whether Gibson had signed a contract for 1933, William Benswanger, president of the local club, stated a document for next season had not been signed by Gibby, but the remarks of the club's prexy indicated a contract would be tendered him in due time.

Benswanger said he did not think the time propitious for the signing of contracts by any members of the club, including the pilot. He feels that inasmuch as the team still has a chance to win the pennant, contract discussions might have a slight tendency to upset anybody connected with the club. His whole tone, however, carried the strong inference that everything between the Pirates and Gibson would be O. K.

GIBBY COMMENDED

The stand of the president will be applauded by a very large majority of the club's followers. Before the race got under way, the general feeling was that the Pirates would be very fortunate if they finished in any first-division berth, most predictions assigning them to the second division.

Gibson, therefore, should receive all the credit due a pilot who takes a mediocre club and transforms it into a strong flag contender.

The Pittsburgh pilot discussed Pirate prospects as he made ready to take his club on its final Eastern jaunt. Gibby bemoaned the fact that Remy Kremer was of little or no value this season on account of illness and arm ailments. It is Gibson's contention that the Pirates would be right in the thick of the flag fight had Kremer been able to turn in as many as 10 victories this season. Remy will not go with the Pirates tonight as his arm is no better. He probably will leave for his California home soon.

Gibson thinks that with another high-grade pitcher, coupled with a right-hand hitting outfielder who can stay close to the Waner boys, the Buccos would be a strong flag contender in future seasons.

By winning both morning and afternoon games from the Cardinals in the Labor Day fights, the Pirates succeeded in gaining a full game on the Cubs who split with the Reds. The Buccos today are six games below the leaders.

Tomorrow the fur will start to fly in the East as the last of the intersectional series gets under way. The Pirates will open in Brooklyn, the Cubs to battle the Braves in Boston.

MEINE, FRENCH STAR

Heinie Meine and Larry French pitched like a couple of champs yesterday as the Pirates advanced their streak to 10 games. Meinie had a narrow escape in the forenoon after blanking the Redbirds through eight frames. The Cards made four hits in the ninth, but were stifled in the nick of time. The score was 4-3. French was tough throughout the afternoon as the home boys copped, 3-1.

Allyn Stout had no control as he opposed Meinie. The Buccos scored twice in the first round before Jim Lindsey relieved Stout. Two more runs were made off Lindsey.

The Pirates pecked away at Paul Derringer for 12 hits and three runs while French was hurling shutout ball. The Cards managed to score a run in the eighth, but Larry put the brakes on and thwarted them in the ninth.

Paul Waner came out of the Labor Day festivities with two more doubles. He made one in each game to run his string to 55.

The games were the last of the season on the Bucs' home schedule.

The Buccos will start their Eastern invasion with a dual bill. The doubleheader scheduled for tomorrow with the Dodgers is the outgrowth of a rain cancellation while Carey's club was in Pittsburgh recently.

CHILLYSAUCE

The Pirates have contributed more than their share in dethroning the world champion Cardinals. George Gibson's hustlers have trimmed the Redbirds 12 times in 18 engagements.

When the bell rang in April the Cards were quick to knock off the Pirates twice in the first two games. But since they have taken but four verdicts.

Paul Derringer, the big righthand star of the Redbirds, is an annual sufferer of hay fever. To avoid the irritating overnight jump from Chicago, Paul received permission to fly to Pittsburgh.

Sergt. Street said yesterday that the unusual hospital list of the Cardinals for this year showed a loss of approximately 300 days on the part of ailing players.

Sparky Adams has been lost to the Redbirds for months, while Jimmy Wilson, Pepper Martin, Jim Bottomley and several other stars were out for weeks.

"We'll just have to look at it as an off season and let it go at that," said Street. Gabby, however, is a tough loser like most of the oldtimers.

Almost 15,000 saw the Pirates in their holiday frolics. More than 9,000 was out for the afternoon scrap.

LOCAL POLOISTS WIN, LOSE

Polo Semi-Final Play Opens Today

WESTBURY, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The first semi-final of the National Open polo championship pitted Capt. C. T. I. Roark's Aurora four against the Templeton outfit, featuring the Guest brothers, at the Meadowbrook Club today.

Aurora, with Capt. Roark playing a dominating role, eliminated the Hurricanes, 11-9, in the first match of the tournament last Saturday. Templeton drew a first round bye and thus was to make its first appearance today.

DERBY WINNER TO RUN

LONDON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—April the Fifth, winner of the Derby of Epsom, will start in the classic St. Leger at Doncaster tomorrow, his owner and trainer, Tom Wall, announced today.

NEWARK BEARS CINCH FLAG

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Newark Bears clinched the International League pennant yesterday by sweeping a double-header with the Jersey City Skeeters, 3-0 and 5-3.

While the Bears were winning two games, their only rivals, the Baltimore Orioles and Buffalo Bisons, split double-headers, the Orioles with Albany and Buffalo with Montreal.

Including yesterday's games, Newark's record shows 100 victories and 52 defeats, with 16 games to play. Baltimore, with 83 victories and 69 defeats has only 16 more games to play and thus cannot possibly tie the Bears. Buffalo, likewise, was eliminated. The Bisons have won 82 games and lost 69, with 17 to play. Even should they sweep all their remaining games their record would be no better than 99 victories and 69 defeats, a full game behind Newark even should the Bears lose all their remaining contests.

SERIES DATES SET

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The first three games of the Little World's Series between the International League and American Association champions will be played in Newark, starting September 27.

Newark clinched the International League pennant yesterday and now awaits definite decision as to whether the American Association's representative will be Minneapolis, as seems likely, or Columbus.

BATTALINO BEATEN

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Eddie Holmes, Providence junior welterweight scored an impressive victory over Bat Battalino, former world featherweight champion, in a 10-round bout here last night. Battalino dropped the local boy for the count of nine with the first punch he landed in the opening round, but Holmes quickly recovered and was credited with winning seven of the 10 rounds.

HOCKEY PLANS HIT SNAG

The immediate future of hockey in Pittsburgh may be determined at a conference among officials of the local National Hockey League club and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, owner of Duquesne Garden, today.

No agreement regarding terms for a Garden lease as yet have been reached. Unless the lease is signed within a few days, plans to revive National League hockey here may be abandoned.

George Funk, New York architect, who has prepared plans to increase the Garden seating capacity to 7,000, has announced that approximately six weeks will be required in which to make the improvements. Unless the lease is signed soon there will not be sufficient time in which to do the remodeling before the season opens, and officials of the club say that National League hockey cannot "pay its way" here unless the arena is remodeled.

COAST TEAMS AWAIT GRIND

By GLENN S. WARNER

Member, All America Board of Football (Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

Next Saturday will be a very busy day around the training quarters of the Pacific Coast universities. On that day candidates for the football teams start regular training. Heretofore the training season has started on the fifteenth of September, but the Coast Conference changed that starting date so that hereafter it will come two weeks prior to the last Saturday in September. Next year that day will come on the sixteenth of the month. This change was made because most teams open their season with a game on the last Saturday of September, and, when that Saturday falls on the twenty-fourth or twenty-fifth, it was considered not enough time for preliminary training was allowed by starting on the fifteenth.

Pop Warner

On this first day of practice about 150 or more candidates for varsity or freshman teams report to the gymnasiums of the various institutions and it is no easy job to outfit this army of athletes who usually are pretty particular about the fit of their trousers, shoes, etc. Then there is the job of giving all of these young men a thorough medical examination, because no student is allowed to become a candidate who is not physically fit for the strenuous gridiron game. All this makes a lot of work and taxes the equipment and medical staffs to the limit. Practically the whole first day is taken up by this work so that the coaches can accomplish very little. Then a day has to be given up for the newspaper cameramen to secure pictures, so that it is really a couple of days before the squads settle down to the serious business of preparing for the season's games.

PROSPECTS GOOD

The prospects on the Pacific Coast for first-class football teams never was so good. At practically every institution the reports indicate that there will be more and better material available than ever before.

It would seem also, judging from all pre-season indications, that interest in football in this section will be greater than ever. This does not mean that a greater attendance is expected at the games. On the contrary, it is very probable that there will be some falling off in attendance. This will be due to the fact that fewer people can afford the expense because of decreased incomes in these hard times, although prices of admission have been materially lowered. Those who can afford to attend the games will see a much better brand of football than ever before.

There has been only one change in head coaches in the conference during the past year and that is at the University of Oregon. Dr. Spears, who transfered the scene of his activities to Wisconsin, has been succeeded by Coach Callison, who has been promoted from fresh coach to the head coach job. Callison has had a very successful career as high school and freshman coach and is expected to prove a very worthy successor to Spears.

TROJANS LOOK BEST

The University of Southern California, Pacific Coast and national champion last season, again is the favorite to repeat this year. Some severe losses were sustained among the backfield regulars, but there are good replacements. It is in the line where Howard Jones' team should be unusually strong. It is probable that the Trojan line will be the heaviest in the country, averaging more than 200 pounds. The only team in the Conference which might be able to play the Southern boys on anywhere near even terms is California, where Coach Ingram has an abundance of the best material the Golden Bears have had in years.

This is Phelan's third year at Washington, and much is expected of the Huskies. There seems to be no doubt that Washington has better prospects than for some years past.

Oregon State expects to do great things with the abundance of fine material at hand. It seems to be no secret that Coach Schissler's boys are likely to finish the season very near the top of the Conference rating sheet.

ST. MARY'S STRONG

Oregon and Washington State seem to be well pleased with their prospects, while the followers of the University of California at Los Angeles, a team which has made rapid advancement since joining the Conference, make no secret of the fact that they expect to be a big factor in the Conference race.

Outside the Conference, St. Marys looks to be the strongest team, closely followed by Santa Clara. Both of these teams will be at least on a par with Conference teams.

BAXTER SEEKS VINDICATION

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Charley Baxter vs. Johnny Datto, 10 rounds, semi-final; Patsy Hennigan vs. Louis Disantis, Steve Senich vs. Sammy Burns and Johnny Riske vs. Ossie Stewart, 6 rounds each, Hickey Park, Millvale.

Kid Chocolate vs. Steve Smith (semi-title), 10 rounds, Fenway Park, Boston.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Charley Baxter tries to square himself with the fans tonight for his disappointing battle recently against Battling Gizzy at Hickey Park, Millvale, when he meets Johnny Datto, Filipino lightweight veteran, in the 10-round main bout in the same arena.

Baxter is the type that doesn't believe in sitting around and drooping over a defeat. Rather he prefers to keep going, and, by good deeds, make the folks forget any slipups on his part. He fought Eddie Lord in a bout in Motor Square Garden last winter and looked terrible against Lord's safety-first boxing, but he kept plugging away in succeeding battles until he was back up there, fighting windups against the Sammy Dorfmans and the Gizzys. Tonight he hopes to beat Datto and erase the memory of that bad night against Gizzy.

Both Baxter and Datto can punch. They're exceptionally hard hitters. If they try to beat each other home with right hands, look out for fireworks. On the other hand, if they respect each other's rights too much—well, you can go right back to sleep and won't be disturbed.

CHANGE IN PRELIMS

A change has been made in the preliminary card, Sammy Burns, Negro lightweight, of the Hill, taking the place of Don Asto, of Uniontown, against Steve Senich, of Homestead, in the second bout. Asto has a cut eye. As for Burns, he already has boxed Senich twice and beaten him both times, the first time by a knockout.

Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, boxes Louis Disantis, of Cleveland, in the semi-final, and Johnny Riske and Ossie Stewart, young middleweights, just out of the amateurs, open the show at 8:45 o'clock.

Girl Tennis S'ars Share Honors

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The top-seeded star, an 18-year-old California girl, and an unranked Philadelphian halved honors in the first day's play of the national girls' grass court tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket Club yesterday.

The Californian, Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, national hard court titlist, scored two decisive victories to lead the field into the quarter final round. She defeated Emily Wallace, Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-1, and then easily eliminated Josephine Kendig, Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-0.

Cecile Bowes, Philadelphia district champion, however, provided the main interest by scoring the day's one upset. She eliminated Helen Jones, Boston, seeded seventh 6-1, 7-5, in a second round match.

Southpaw Tourney Appears Failure

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The first annual tournament of the American Left-handed Golfers Association appeared a failure today as a mere handful of entrants trudged around the White Sulphur Country Club course.

The advance entry list of more than 20 had dwindled sadly today as the medal round was completed. Everett G. Livesay, of Columbus, turned in a 73 to gain advantage on the first 18 holes of the 36-hole qualifying round. Trailing him were Arthur Wells, of Newell, W. Va., 75, and Duncan Thomson, of Syracuse, N. Y., 76. They were the only amateurs to turn in cards at the half-way point.

The Tipoff

Increasing activity out at Carnegie Tech sort of hints that the Tartans are thinking along football lines. Bert Munhall, back from his trip to California and the Olympics, has clean sheets spread on his running tables, a new, very smelly and very scorching concoction of liniment on hand and several new ways of curing head aches ready to try out on all comers. The Tartans will assemble tomorrow and stage their initial practice Thursday.

May Hannum, who has added basketball coaching to his long list of duties, which include press agenting, bridge, red dog playing and some very mediocre golfing, is searching about for something to feed his Tech basketballers when they report after football season. Doc Carlson, at Pitt, who feeds his Panthers ice cream, railed with the suggestion that Max try cocaine.

Among the lads seeking the fullback job at Geneva is young Dick Jones, of Mt. Washington, former gridiron, basketball and baseball star at South Hills. Jones was on the cross-country squad last year, but a bum leg handicapped him and sent him out of action. He and another former South Hills luminary, Johnny Pielsch, are scrapping for the starting job.

The wagering is two to one, money, marbles or chalk, that Bob Weddell and Wally Steffen, the Tech grid coaches, will order a real scrimmage the first day out for the Tartans. They've ordered all the lads to report in the best of physical trim, which makes it look very bad. The same order went out last year, and some of the boys thought Bob and Wally were kidding. What muggs Robert N. and the Judge made out of the smart ones, Zowie! They gave them a real scrimmage the very first morning, and many an athlete lived to regret having partaken of a surreinet hot puppy and eleventh-hour banana split.

There are several district chaps on Georgetown's varsity roster this year. The team is captained by Ray Hudson, of New Kensington. Dick Danner, of Steubenville, O.; Karl Trump, of Uniontown; Bill Bradley, of Connellsville, and Bill Downey, of Steubenville, are other star members of the squad.

Rip Miller, head coach at Navy, requested that his Middies report to the academy early for the fall term and had plans set to open his pre-season training yesterday, but decided to postpone practice until Thursday, due to the intense heat at Annapolis.

Large Crowd Sees Local Trot Races

Guy June, crack trotting stallion, trotted two heats over a slow track in a special exhibition race against time in 2:10 and 2:08. Split-heat victories featured the program. The summary:

WEIGHT LACK HANDICAP TO DUKE VETS

By JESS CARVER

Things are not slipping along as smoothly up on Duquesne University's football practice field as they might. A none too husky squad is losing weight, and when the boys find it necessary to do double and even triple duty with the old feed bag, the situation calls for a bit of worry.

Coach Elmer Layden and his assistants, especially Joe Bach, the cagy line mentor, are finding their training plans being interferred with no little by the excessively warm weather. The heat may bring the glow of joy to the pans of vacationists, but it has given Messrs. Layden and Bach acute attacks of insomnia.

SQUAD UNDER WEIGHT

Dr. Leo O'Donnell reported that the entire Duke squad was away under heft, and with the opening game of the season perilously near at hand, it is no time for the tutors to be forced to give the varsity candidates vacations. But that is exactly what has happened.

Yesterday, those members of the squad in trim were sent through two tough workouts, a scrimmage being ordered for the afternoon. The dose will be repeated today.

The only veteran who is near his proper weight is Red Sullivan, the sturdy quarterback. Sil Zaninelli, fullback hope; Ben Pawlina and Al DeLuca, the halfbacks, actually are showing their ribs. The situation is so acute that replacements are being sought in anticipation of having 'em, the replacements, fill in as starting players.

About the only member of the Duquesne family who hasn't lost poundage is John Holohan, the young (?) graduate manager. Holohan weighs about half a pound less than a truck, and still is gaining.

They still have some 90 freshmen galloping about the field, and although they are being cut right, left and regularly, their number appears to increase rather than decrease. In fact, the officials are beginning to suspect that they come back after being dropped hidden behind of mustachios or hair ribbons.

DORMONT GETS DOUBLE WIN

The sandlot baseball nines indulged in their last big day of activity yesterday, Labor Day double-headers bringing almost all of the leading teams of the district into action.

The Pittsburgh Crawfords won both ends of a double bill with the Monroe Monarchs, taking the first game, 7 to 2, and the second, 9 to 2.

Dormont, displaced as City League champions by the Book nine, defeated their rivals twice, 9 to 0 and 4 to 3. Natrona downed Dedrolamo, 8 to 3, and the Alba-Williams nine, 10 to 3. Carrick Aces won over Mt. Oliver, 3 to 2 and 8 to 7, in a brace of well played and hotly contested frays.

Other double victors included Edgewood, with two wins over Iroquois; Kittanning, with a pair over the Jenkins nine; Bellevue, with one win over Mars and one over the Cavanaughs and Becks Run, which downed Beechview twice.

The Homestead Aces lost the second game to Leechburg, 3 to 2, after taking the first, 8 to 0.

Beaver Falls turned in a pair of triumphs over the Beaver Grays to win the Beaver County League pennant. The Falls team won the first game, 11-9, and took the second, 5 to 1.

Knockouts Mark Charleroi Bouts

William Dubbs, of the Patton A. C., 138-pounder, stopped Mike Tomich, of the Todd A. C., in the first round and Tee Snowden, of the Charleroi A. C., knocked out George Brown, of the Patton A. C., in the second round.

Central Grid Loop Meeting on Tonight

The Central Soccer League will hold its final organization meeting at Spartan Hall, Wilkinsburg, this evening. President Frank Mincher expects eight clubs to start the season.

The champion, Union Switch and Signal, of Swissvale, will be back, and the supporters of the club feel that the Red and White will repeat the triumph of last season.

SARASOTA CLUB WINS

SARASOTA, Fla., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Sarasota Yacht Club yesterday captured the Sir Thomas Lipton sailing trophy for the third successive year with a total of 26 points. The St. Petersburg Yacht Club was second with 23 points, and Biloxi, Miss., third, with 16 points.

HARMSWORTH CHANGE ASKED

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Harmsworth trophy competition, which has brought nothing but grief to foreign challengers since Gar Wood won the plaque for the United States in 1920, may be run under different rules next year.

J. Lee Barrett, secretary-treasurer of the Yachtmen's Association of America, announced today that the Royal Motor Yacht Club, of England, had suggested several changes, principally intended to soften the rules which now disqualify for succeeding heats any boat which fails to finish a race.

The yacht club proposed elimination of the rule providing that a boat which fails to start a heat before the winning boat finishes, or which does not complete the heat within three hours after the winner finishes, be disqualified for the remainder of the races.

The suggested revision would not have changed the result of this year's races, for Kaye Don, British challenger, already had lost one heat when his Miss England III was forced to accept a tow yesterday morning.

SCHULTZ WINS CLIMB

COLORADO SPRINGS, Sept. 6.—Glen Schultz, of Colorado Springs, won the annual Pike's Peak hill climb here yesterday, when he drove his car to the top in 26 minutes 47.6 seconds. It was his fourth victory in six years.

BENEFIT GAME TONIGHT

The Baker Hill mushball team will play the Sixth Ward Progressive Club team, of McKeesport, in a benefit game under the lights at Scott High School field this evening. Play gets under way at 8:15.

SCHOOL GRID SQUADS TRAIN FOR OPENERS

By JULIUS LEVIN

With all of last year's coaches back in the fold, City League high school gridders begin practice for the opening games in earnest this afternoon. The two sections of the City League are the same as last year, with Westinghouse, Peabody, Allderdice, Schenley, South and Fifth Avenue in Section I, and South Hills, Langley, Carrick, Perry, Oliver and Allegheny in Section II.

Westinghouse, Peabody, Allderdice and Schenley will play on their own fields, while South will use Langley's gridiron and Fifth will play at Schenley.

Langley, Perry and Oliver have their own fields in Section II, South Hills playing its home games either at Langley or Overbrook; Carrick playing at Overbrook or Carrick Park, while Allegheny will use the Oliver enclosure.

School Notes

The Monessen High School Greyhounds, back from a week's stay at their training camp, face a nine-game schedule this fall. Coach Preston Dilly's team will be a light one with plenty of speed. The opening game is scheduled with Belle Vernon on September 17.

Coach Phil Bridenbaugh, popular mentor at New Castle High, has a promising squad of gridders on hand this fall. The Lawrence countians will make a determined bid for the Class AA championship.

The scholastic season in Western Pennsylvania will get an earlier start than usual. Johnny Reed's Scott High machine and Pop Everhart's Uniontown eleven start their rolling Friday night at North Braddock.

Latrobe High School, a Class A school, has October 1 open for a game at home or abroad. Teams interested write S. G. Rummel, Latrobe High School, Latrobe, Pa.

The Vandergrift High squad, numbering 42 players, is working hard under the coaching of Ted Rosenzweig, former Carnegie Tech grid star. The Vandergrift eleven will present plenty of beef in the line and backfield.

Only two lettermen, Harry Crane and Ellis McCracken, co-captains, are back at Freeport High this fall. Coach Bill Mitchell faces a tough task finding replacements among the 32 candidates out for the team.

A squad of almost 50 greeted Coach Howard McKee's first call for candidates at South Union yesterday. Another good season in store, as many of last year's veterans are available for service.

Eugene Franks, graduate of Thiel College and a former German Township star, has been appointed coach at All-Saints High in Masontown. He succeeds Ike Ralston.

Coach Bo Wildman has an ambitious squad of gridders at his disposal at Brownsville this season. The squad already has engaged in several scrimmages and a good season is predicted for the Brownies.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Ted Phelps, of Great Britain, professional single sculls champion, frustrated the comeback attempt of Maj. Goodsell, of Beverly Hills, Cal., in a 4,000-meter race over the Olympic rowing course yesterday, winning by a boat length in 17 minutes 6.2 seconds.

Goodsell pulled into the lead in the first 1,000 meters and put a length of open water between him and the 24-year-old champion.

YANKS NEED SIX WINS TO CLINCH FLAG IN AMERICAN

PIRATES GAIN GROUND ON CHICAGO

Associated Press.

YANKS ABOUT "IN"

As the teams stood today, the Yankees led the Athletics by 12½ games. Six more Yankee victories, or any combination of Yankee victories and Athletic defeats which totals six, automatically will give the Yankees the pennant.

Washington, in third place, will be eliminated when the Yankees win five games or when Yankee victories and Washington defeats total five.

Gomez turned in his twenty-third victory against six defeats in the opener which the Yankees won, 8-6, chiefly because they scored six runs in the first inning on six bases on balls, singles by Gehrig and Gomez, and McNair's error. Allen won his sixteenth game against two losses in the nightcap, limiting the A's to nine scattered hits as the Yanks won 6-3. Babe Ruth hit his 40th homer in the first game.

Effective pitching by Alvin Crowder and Fred Marberry gave Washington two victories over the Boston Red Sox, 6-2 and 9-3, and Cleveland walloped the St. Louis Browns twice, 12-9 and 6-4. Earl Averill clouting his twenty-ninth and thirtieth homers in the opener.

Earl Whitehill pitched steady ball as Detroit turned back the Chicago White Sox, 5-3, but the Sox came back to take the nightcap, 3-1, as Milt Gaston allowed only five hits.

PIRATES COP PAIR

In the National League Pittsburgh shaved another game off the Chicago Cubs' lead by whipping the St. Louis Cardinals twice, 4-3 and 3-1, behind effective pitching by Heinie Meine and Larry French. The Cubs split a double-header with the Cincinnati Reds, winning the first, 9-2, but dropping the second, 6-5, as Si Johnson steadied after his teammates had given him a 6-4 lead in the sixth inning. Pittsburgh, which has won 10 games in a row, now trails the Cubs by six games.

The Phillies advanced to within two and one-half games of the third place Brooklyn Dodgers by taking the New York Giants over the hurdles twice, 3-2 and 5-4, despite Mel Ott's thirtieth and thirty-first homers.

The Boston Braves moved into fifth place, two games behind the Phillies, as a result of two triumphs over Brooklyn, 13-2 and 5-4. The Braves had one big inning in each game, clinching the opener with six runs in the fifth, and scoring all their runs in the second game in the third inning.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 6.—The seven-day race program of the Wheeling Driving Club was ended early this morning when officials of the club announced that, due to lack of finances, the remainder of the week's program had been canceled.

The greyhound races, which, with the horse races, were being held in conjunction with the state fair, also were discontinued.

It was reported that failure of the public to place bets on the entries resulted in the action. The majority of the horses are being moved to the Cranwood track, near Cleveland. The local meet opened last Saturday.

Work of dismantling the dog track was begun early this morning.

RACING PILOT INJURED AT DOWNS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Roaring around a turn at the Arden Downs Speedway yesterday, Spud Green, Wheeling (W. Va.) automobile racer, crashed through the pits, struck a pole and was gravely hurt.

Two other cars plowed into the wreckage, but the drivers were uninjured.

The accident occurred on the seventy-seventh lap of a 50-mile race, with Green in the lead. The race was stopped and Green was declared the winner as he was carried to an ambulance.

DRIVER MEETS DEATH

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Al Fraser, of Philadelphia, died yesterday in the flames of seven light stock automobiles which burst into fire after piling up during a race on the Readville track.

Two other drivers, a police sergeant and two spectators were slightly burned in the crash and the subsequent efforts to remove Fraser's body from the pyre. More than 10,000 persons witnessed the accident.

The seven cars, with six others entered in the race, were traveling at mile-a-minute speed on the back stretch of the seventh mile in a 50-mile contest when two of them locked wheels and did a half turn on the dirt track. Fraser's car, which was leading the race, thundered down the track into the two standing machines, to be followed by four others.

Almost instantly flames leaped up from one of the cars. In rapid succession the gasoline tanks of the others exploded, converting the wreckage into a flaming mass. All of the drivers jumped clear of their cars as the fire broke out except Fraser, whose horribly burned body was found under his machine later.

The feature race of the day, a 50-mile free-for-all event, was won by Maurie Rose, of Dayton, O., in 38 minutes 40 1-5 seconds. He crossed the finish line two laps ahead of Malcolm Fox, of Westfield, N. J.

SHARON, Pa., Sept. 6.—Floyd Deiger, of Sharon, won the 100-mile automobile race for semi-stock car drivers yesterday before a crowd of 1,500 at Sharon Speedway. Deiger took the lead after Gus Pietz, Beaver Falls, was forced out when his car skidded and was struck by a car driven by Jack Russell, Greenville, on the one hundred and eighteenth lap.

Mike Klapak, Warren, O., who led during the early part of the race, was forced to the pits for a new tire, but came back to finish second. Don Elder, Warren, O., was third, and Carl Maxwell, Sharon, fourth. Deiger set a stock car record of 1 hour, 46 minutes, 12 2-5 seconds.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 6.—Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, clinched more firmly than ever his rating as top ranking racquet star of Western Pennsylvania by downing Alex Keiles, brilliant Baltimore luminary, 6-1, 6-1, 4-6, 6-4, in final men's singles fray of the fourth annual Morgantown Country Club invitation tennis tourney here yesterday, and thereby landed his initial leg on the Mountaineer challenge trophy placed up for competition a year ago and captured at that time by Dolley Mitchell, Georgetown University contender.

Keiles and his Maryland partner, Price Colvin, runners-up to the National Public Parks dual crown at Louisville a fortnight ago, trimmed Tony Latona and Frank Shore, crack Washington pair, 2-6, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6, 8-6.

Colvin and Shore were the mainstays in the double feature, with Latona contributing numerous spectacular volleys to redeem himself for rather spotty driving.

In an exhibition mixed doubles tilt, Margaret Carsneck n, Morgantown sharpshooter, and the writer defeated Miriam Sullivan, P. A. A. performer, and Frank Broida, Pittsburgh Parks champion, 6-4, 6-2.

THERE'S NO "LIFE" IN STALE GASOLINE

ONLY fresh GAS PACKS FULL POWER!

FRESH-MADE gas packs "life," punch, power. But as staleness increases—power decreases. The "light ends"—the "easy starting" elements—evaporate. Besides that, a chemical change takes place—making gas sluggish, weak and "dead."

And the staler the gas, the stickier it is—and the more apt it is to knock.

The entire petroleum industry has long sought ways to overcome gas deterioration. Gulf, after years of study, now announces a system that assures you of FRESH, full-powered gasoline! Here's how . . .

By making the best possible gasoline and refining out certain complex elements that cause early deterioration.

And by rushing this FRESH-MADE, FULL-POWERED gas to you like some perishable food.

Gulf has spotted its huge refineries in many sections of the country—so that every Gulf filling station is close to a source of FRESH-MADE gasoline. Gulf has geared its whole distribution system to high speed. Fast trucks speed FRESH gas to Gulf pumps every day.

Get your money's worth—get FULL power. Get FRESH gas—delivered FRESH. Get Gulf—exclusively.

Program Pointers

Late dance features on WCAE tonight include 45 minutes of Jack Denny's music, followed by Paul Whiteman's rhythm at midnight and Don Bestor from 12:30 to 1 a. m. On the same station at 10 o'clock, Joe Moss provides the musical portion of the cigaret dance hour, a high-light of which is another real life dramatization taken from the files of the New York Police Department, "The Blonde Bandit." Jack Helfinger, "The Accordian Man" of big time vaudeville and new member of the artists' staff of KDKA, presents a program of music and chatter from the pioneer studios at 10:45.

Joe Moss

"Nobody But You," one of George Gershwin's first hits from the musical comedy success of 1919, "La La Lucille," is featured by Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit on WCAE at 8. Crumit also presents his own composition, "Down in the Canebrake."

Miss Shutta

Ethel Shutta (Mrs. George Olsen) is up at eight o'clock every morning to read the "funnies" to her two boys George, Jr., and Charlie . . . Audiences at Paul Whiteman's broadcasts are not permitted to applaud during the programs . . . Olsen and Johnson rehearse six hours each day, despite four-a-day vaudeville engagements, for their performances with Rudy Vallee . . . Cleveland is so proud of Gene and Glenn that 254,000 of its citizens have signed a petition 875 feet long asking NBC to keep the early morning broadcasting team in Cleveland. The petition was prepared by the "Keep Gene and Glenn in Cleveland" committee with the assistance of Fire and Police Departments of Cleveland and surrounding towns.

Nancy Garner says painting is her hobby, but it's really a business, because she sells most of her canvasses . . . The Men About Town are still searching for that basso. Not one of the ten singers they chose suited their arranger, Will Donaldson, who admits he is the boss of the trio.

Frank Luther says that "po" is the hardest syllable to sing . . . Song publishers keep Welcome Lewis in touch with the latest ballads via air mail while she is traveling in vaudeville.

Ernest Neff, staff pianist at KQV, has written a new song you'll hear shortly—"When You Forget" . . . Among Lowell Patton's fan gifts is a miniature hymn book 99 years old.

Beau Balladeer (Leonard Lewis) has been a chemist, steel worker, steel salesman, football coach, theatrical producer, bond salesman and operatic and concert star.

Ward Wilson's wedding present from his sponsor was a renewal of his Royal Vagabonds contract until the end of 1932. Wilson was married Saturday to Betty Lou Webb, male impersonator of vaudeville and girls' orchestra leader.

Lee Sims, wizard of the ivories, plays his famous piano solo, "Contrasts," with orchestral background by Josef Koestner's Orchestra, when he appears as guest artist on KDKA at 9 tonight with Alice Mock.

WHEAT, COTTON SALES HALTED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Sales of stabilization wheat and government-controlled cotton definitely were halted today until next year.

This decision was announced by Chairman Stone of the Farm Board after being made possible by a $50,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation loan to the Cotton Stabilization Corporation and American Cotton Co-operative Association. Stone said:

"These steps are being taken and loans obtained so that the cotton growers will get the full benefit of the market for their crop this year and for the purpose of enabling the organizations to gradually liquidate their holdings during periods when more active demand is anticipated."

Stone made his announcement in two statements; one issued on behalf of the cotton groups and one for the Grain Stabilization Corporation.

The latter said its unsold wheat stocks, amounting to less than 3,000,000 bushels as compared with 250,000,000 bushels 14 months ago "will not be reduced by sales before January 1, 1933, except such sales of this 3,000,000 as may be made for shipment to foreign countries that otherwise would not be important buyers of United States wheat."

The corporation added that all future contracts now held also will be retailed over the same period.

The cotton co-operative said its present stocks, approximating 2,000,000 bales, will not be sold before July 31, 1933. The Cotton Stabilization Corporation announced it would not sell before March 1, 1933. On July 1, this corporation held 1,300,000 bales of cotton.

Aluminum Stocks Show Influence of New-Found Markets.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

SENSATIONAL ADVANCES in the prices of the stocks of the Aluminum Company of America and its companion organization, Aluminium, Ltd., reflect the new markets which these organizations have developed for their products.

Through all the depression period these companies have been carrying on intensive research work and have been selling aluminum as the metal to be used in the manufacture of more products. The decline in the demand from established consumers has kept the new markets from being reflected in sales and earnings.

When business recovery takes place older markets will be restored and the companies will be further helped by sales to entirely new sources.

* * *

Costs Reduced In Recent Years

LOWER COSTS will be another influence in aluminum earnings. Up to five years ago the production methods differed little from those developed by Hall when he first perfected the electrolitic method of producing aluminum on a commercial scale. Recently, however, far-reaching changes in production methods have been developed. These have made it possible to produce aluminum more cheaply than ever before.

Growing public realization that the aluminum industry has only gone a short way toward the development of its full market possibilities has resulted in widespread demand for the stock during the current bull movement. Against this, however, has been the fact that the supply of the shares of both the Aluminum Company of America and Aluminium, Ltd., is small. The Mellon interests and officials of the companies are understood to hold by far the major portion of the outstanding stock.

The Aluminum Company of America is the only producer of the metal in the United States. Aluminium, Ltd., was organized in 1928 to segregate the Canadian and European interests of Aluminum Company of America. The stock of Aluminium was distributed to holders of Aluminum Company.

* * *

Alloys Open New Markets

THE PERFECTION of new alloys of aluminum has been a major factor in widening the market for the products. Aluminum beams can now be made with cross sections identical to steel beams and with equal strength. The importance of the savings in weight on railroad, bus and truck equipment, as well as in the moving parts of machinery, is being realized to a greater extent.

Laws restricting the weight of motor trucks are increasing the demand for aluminum bodies, which make it possible to keep within maximum limits without decreasing the load carried. Industry is waking up to the folly of carrying unnecessary dead weight in all types of transportation.

American Cotton Consumption Up

MANCHESTER, England, Sept. 6.—The International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners reports world consumption of American cotton during the season 1931-32 amounted to 12,319,000 bales, compared with 10,908,000 bales in the previous season.

World mill stocks of American cotton on July 31, last, amounted to 2,559,000 bales, against 1,371,000 bales a year ago.

British Rubber Stocks Show Gain

LONDON, Sept. 6.—Stocks of rubber here on September 3 totaled 46,982 tons, a decrease of 70 tons.

Stocks at Liverpool were 58,050 tons on September 3, an increase of 682 tons during the week.

WALL STREET HEARS

That September automobile production will be substantially over August.

U. S. TREASURY OFFERING BIG

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—In its largest financing operation of the current fiscal year, the Treasury offered for sale today $1,150,000,000 of federal securities.

A five-year note issue for $750,000,000, dated September 15, and paying 3¼ per cent interest, comprises the chief portion of the new securities. The remaining $400,000,000 is in 1¼ per cent certificates of indebtedness, also dated September 15, and maturing in one year.

The money is needed to retire $712,504,500 of Treasury certificates maturing September 15, and to meet $50,000,000 in interest payments on the public debt falling due the same date. What is left will go for current operating expenses, including the Reconstruction Corporation's cash requirements.

The Treasury now faces a deficit of $400,000,000, but a material reduction in this figure is expected upon receipt of the third quarter's income tax payments September 15.

SCHOOL DAYS

The opening of school again brings to mind the educational needs of the growing young man and woman . . . Experience in fundamental business practices will be quite as useful to them in after life as their formal education. Begin their business education by opening a bank account for them. Show them how to manage their own financial problems, small though they may be. A bank account will soon demonstrate the importance of budgeting spending money and teach the essential principles of banking procedure.

MELLON NATIONAL BANK

STOCK MARKET STILL RULED BY BULLS

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Trading was resumed in the financial markets today, with bulls still dominating the situation, but laborious operations for the rise encountered considerable opposition in shares.

With Labor Day past, the time had arrived when the seasonal upswing in business may be expected rapidly to take definite form, and traders in shares were naturally inclined to proceed slowly, while the vague outline becomes more clearly delineated.

Steels, coppers, oils and industrial specialties were whirled up rather vigorously during the morning, but the rails were sluggish from the start and turned weak after midday, causing some recession from the best in other groups. Strong spots included Bethlehem, Youngstown, International Telephone, A. M. Byers, American Smelting, United Aircraft and Lambert, up 2 to more than 3 points at the best. Many issues advanced a point or more, including Anaconda, Kennecott, Standard of California, Texas Corporation, United States Steel, National Steel, American Can and others. Eastman made an extreme gain of 4. These advances, however, were substantially reduced, or lost, as Santa Fe declined more than 2 points, and losses of a point or more appeared in Union Pacific, New York Central, Southern Pacific, American Telephone, American Water Works, Woolworth, American Tobacco "B," Allied Chemical, Westinghouse and others.

Continued strength in commodities remained the principal bull talking point in the share market. Copper showed further pronounced firmness in the foreign market, and domestically, zinc and silver were higher, while the wheat and cotton markets were helped by the Farm Board's announcement that it would hold its supplies off the markets during the current season. Copper, however, was still substantially under the average domestic production cost.

Most Wall street analysts described the upswing in the market of the past two months as chiefly reflecting a reaction from panic psychology, and several felt that henceforth, there would be a growing tendency to turn to corporate earnings for guidance. It was acknowledged, however, that despite the fact that the third quarter statements, due in October, could scarcely be expected to show much in the way of restored earning power, quickened operations in steel and other basic lines should do much to sustain the improvement in sentiment. Steel production in some sections has already turned upward, after the Labor Day holiday, with Carnegie, one of United States Steel's chief subsidiaries, increasing its output. Ford Motor Company, and some other automotive concerns, have resumed operations after vacation shutdowns of three weeks or so.

COTTON STEADY AT ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Cotton futures opened very steady, 25-32 higher on higher Liverpool cables and heavy rains in Texas. October, 9.10c; December, 9.30c! January, 9.37c; March, 9.48c; May, 9.58c; July, 9.68c.

The over-holiday announcement for Washington with refernce to financing cotton held by the Stabilization Corporation and cooperatives was a factor on the opening advance which carried December up to 9.35c or 36 points above last Saturday's close. Later the advance met realizing. The market showed reactions of 5 or 6 points from the best.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 6.—Cotton, 12,000 bales, including 10,800 bales American; spot quiet; prices 35 points higher. Quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.75; good middling, 7.50; strict middling, 7.30; middling, 7.20; strict low middling, 7.10; low middling, 7.00; strict good ordinary, 6.80; good ordinary, 6.50. Futures closed barely steady, October, 6.86; December, 6.86; January, 6.86; March, 6.89; May, 6.93; July, 6.96.

TOLEDO PLANTS RECALL 6,000

TOLEDO, Sept. 6.—More than 6,000 workers returned to work in several automotive plants, which have been closed, or operating on low schedules during the past three weeks.

Willys Overland Company resumed at its plant with 4,300 workers, while Electric Auto-Lite placed keymen at work organizing their departments, with officials anticipating a gradual betterment in orders.

Glass plants, including Libbey-Owens-Ford, are expecting improvement in the auto industry, and will make plate and safety glass to be held in reserve.

TRADE SEEKS FURTHER CUT IN COSTS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The new motif in industrial construction is not enlargement of capacity, as was the case before the depression, but greater economy in operations.

The argument that sells equipment nowadays is that the expenditure will enable a company to save money in operations.

Geodge T. Ladd, president United Engineering and Foundry Company, Pittsburgh, in a message to this column on this subject, revealed:

Mr. Rukeyser

"I would advise that our business follows the general pickup in the steel industry; this particularly being the case in our roll department.

"The steel plants are, at the present time, practically denuded of rolls and any pickup in the industry would immediately reflect itself in our roll department.

"In our machinery department we are figuring on a number of large contemplated changes for the various steel companies; these changes being considered for economic reasons rather than for further expansion. Our machinery department is devoted almost entirely to the manufacture of steel mill equipment. There is no question that the activity in our machinery department is due to obsolescence and economic improvements desired in the manufacture of rolled steel products as well as the recent production of improved rolling methods.

"Requests for appropriations for these improvements have been made by many of the major steel companies, but little work has been released."

Queried concerning whether the pickup in business sentiment has resulted in the release of any engineering projects, H. K. Ferguson, president of the Cleveland engineering firm which bears his name, said:

"Our own experience is that we are having a reasonable amount of inquiries for small work. On the other hand, managers of businesses who have been holding up larger projects are at the moment dubious about the permanency of the present improvement in the security and commodity markets."

VALENTINE

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Passing Time and Difference In Friends Make Val Seem Very Old

CHAPTER XIV.

Val was almost 21. She had a new friend, Janice Fletcher. She met her at evening art school, where she went two evenings a week, for lack of anything better to do. She was sick of stenography, sick of her office, afraid to quit because there wouldn't be anything better anywhere else.

Twice she wrote letters to her mother, who was living in Milwaukee and had something to do with a stage guild, asking to be allowed to come to her. But the letters were never mailed. She tore them up. Since Millie didn't write, she wouldn't force herself.

It was funny about Millie. Millie wrote Aunt Julia, but never wrote to her. Sometimes Aunt Julia let her see the letters. They were full of love for herself and not much news.

Millie seemed to be alone. She had never married Jim Atkinson. That was strange . . .

She asked Aunt Julia. Aunt Julia was always evasive, always tight-lipped and shifty-eyed when asked about Millie. Val's feelings were hurt, she hated to ask . . . why should she have to ask? Her own mother . . . why should Millie write to Aunt Julia and not to her?

CRUEL TO MILLIE

She didn't know that Aunt Julia had laid down the law, pointed out that with things as they were the least she could do was stay away and refrain from communicating with Valentine.

"I have been her real mother, raised her right ever since she was 8. What have you ever done for her? You could have kept her if you wanted to. You were young and strong, you could have come and stayed right with me, and let me keep Val in the daytimes, and you could have had a room with Val in my home. I told you that, but no, you had to go off to Honolulu and disgrace us.

"Do you think anyone would look at Valentine if they knew the kind of mother she had? No! Now I've done my best to keep the skeleton in the closet and you're the skeleton, so you stay there. If you love her you'll see it my way and do as I say."

She did love Valentine. If it would help her to stay away . . . besides, she wasn't much of a letter writer and they moved so much . . . Later on, when Vincent's wife died and they were married. . .

SENDS MONEY FOR VAL

Vincent's wife must die sometime. It wasn't reasonable to think she could live forever. Or she might weaken and let Vincent get a divorce, though Vincent had given up hope of that, and then . . . and then she'd be Mrs. Vincent Shalor and she and Val could be together again. They'd be like sisters . . . happy, oh so happy! So Millie dreamed.

"You can thank your mother for that," Aunt Julia said one day when Val came home and found that her bed, the little single bed she had always had, and which of late had sagged in the middle like a hammock, was replaced by a new one.

"My mother?"

"Yes, she's sending more than I need now, what with your paying board and all. I've got quite a nest egg tucked away for you."

Aunt Julia's face burned. She felt she should have said more of this. Perhaps she hadn't done just right by Millie. Millie had been generous the last few years. A good thing, too, because her own income had dwindled to almost nothing.

People talked about depression. Maybe she ought to go back to dressmaking, and not use any of Millie's money for the housekeeping. But she wasn't feeling just as well as she used to. Her head . . . it felt queer sometimes. Maybe she ought to see a doctor, but she hated them. Besides, a doctor would probably tell her she'd have to have an operation and go to a hospital and she wouldn't do that, no siree!

So Millie's money, the money intended for luxuries, extravagances for Val, was going into necessities and into an overgrowing savings account in Val's name.

Synopsis

Now Go On

Val's lifelong friend, Marjorie Bemis, Mrs. Vogel now, was living in Hollywood. Another friend who married about the time Marjorie did had a baby nearly a year old. The little Careys, Ruth and Georgie, and the baby Vivian whom she and Joe had so often pushed in the big, old baby buggy, were almost grown up, Vivian was 13.

JOE CAREY RETURNS

Mrs. Clarkson, next door, who used to put so much white powder on her round, swarthy face and considered herself hardly more than a girl, was gray and talked about her dizzy spells and how much her feet hurt, instead of love and scandal as she used to do.

Not that she overlooked the scandal about Betty Carey. Betty came home with a husband last September and now she had a tiny baby boy.

"Ha, ha! That's what SHE says!" Mrs. Clarkson guffawed to everyone who would listen.

It all made Val feel very old and out of things. Her days were so dull. Office. Home. Movie or a book. Bed.

Then Joe Carey came home on a two months vacation.

Val didn't even know he was coming. Aunt Julia, seeing a great bustle going on in the house across the way, knew that something was happening over there and decided that Elwyn, who was sent east to some prep school after a scrape he got into at home, was coming back.

But it wasn't Elwyn, it was Joe.

MOTHER IS PROUD

Mrs. Carey, beside herself with excitement, bustled over to tell the news, and arrived just as Val and Aunt Julia were finishing dinner.

They were both surprised to see her. Since the old days when she used to make a practice of dropping in to borrow sugar and eggs and other things she was out of, she had not been in their house.

Now, panting a little, her not too fresh house dress strained tightly across her enormous bosom, she accepted Aunt Julia's lukewarm invitation to have a cup of tea and a piece of cake with them, poured out her tale of Joe's success, his wonderful, unbelievable success in Minneapolis.

Everybody else out of work or doing next to nothing, and her Joe was forging ahead, being consulted about his idea for modern factories and office buildings. Got all over his silly art ideas, and settled right down to brass tacks.

Changed, her Joey . . . but not changed about his mother. Still her sweetheart, still wanting to get home to her. First vacation he'd had in three years, and what did he do with it? Rush out on the first train to come west, to see her.

BOASTS ABOUT SON

"Cripple?"

"My feet, Miss Macfarland. Honest, my feet are just terrible. Mis' Clarkson complains about hers, but mine! Look at them shoes. I'm ashamed of them, honest I am. My arches have all fallen in. I tell you, when you've raised a family like I have and now with Betty's to look after in the bargain . . . Of course, you never had no children, Miss Macfarlane—

"No, I never did!"

"That's it. Unless you been through it you don't know a mother's heart. Well, I gotta be goin'. Some day I'll trouble you for that cake receipt. I'll have to be stirrin' up a cake for Joe. He sure thinks his ma's cookin' beats 'em all . . ."

Mrs. Carey's bragging about Joe amused Aunt Julia.

Her roving eyes wandered from Aunt Julia's kitchen cabinet, with its neat rows of blue and white willow dishes, to the untouched cake on Val's plate, traveled up to Val's expressionless face.

"You'll be seein' Joe, I expect," she said with a false affability. "Joe and you was always so chummy. Funny what ideas kiddies will get. Well, I must be goin'.

"You won't hardly know Joe. Seems hard for me to think of him 24 already. Seems only yesterday he was born and I was so sick they give me up for dead . . . Well! It's one thing after another. He has plenty girls chasin' him now. But I'm still his sweetheart. 'Ma,' he said to me, 'ma' . . ."

"Girls after him, eh?" Aunt Julia couldn't resist that. She showed all her teeth, ran her long pink tongue over her lips, the way she did when something particularly pleased her.

She caught Val's amused, self-conscious smile.

"One girl, Pearl Neely, her name is, has got him hooked, far as that goes. They're engaged. Joe's given her a ring. But he says to me, he says, 'Ma, I won't ever marry her until you say it's oke with you. You come first, Ma,' he says—"

"Quite a wonderful boy, I'm sure," Aunt Julia said, rising to clear the table, pretending not to notice that Mrs. Carey expected to be asked to have another piece of cake.

Val slipped out of the room. Closed the door.

Joe . . . engaged . . . not that it made any difference to her, of course . . . Joe engaged . . .

Heart of a Wife

Lee Chow Likely to Recover From Strange Poison

I could not hear Lillian breathe, and I know my own breath was suspended, for those few seconds after we had seen Lee Chow jerk his hand back, forcing out from his finger the slender needle from the mysterious package in Marion's lock box.

Harry and Katherine made a lightning-like change as she held out to him the surgeon's lancet, according to the directions that Lee Chow had given before he opened the box and ran his fingers over the knobs in the unopened envelope.

Then he dropped the lancet and seized the tourniquet again, while Katherine manipulated the finger to make it bleed more freely and then dressed it. But she was covertly and anxiously watching Lee Chow's face while she worked. I realized the reason for the camp cot that I had seen set up in the corner of the room when, as she finished, Lee Chow slumped against Hugh Grantland, who had stood directly back of him.

With Dicky's aid, Hugh supported the almost unconscious figure of his friend to the cot and stretched him out upon it. But Lee Chow was not wholly unconscious. He spoke clearly.

"I can tell now which poison it is. Give me—what—I told—you—the—blue bottle—please."

FATE IN BALANCE

It was Hugh who measured a potion from a blue bottle that, with several others, we now saw standing upon the writing desk. Lee Chow swallowed it with apparent difficulty and then closed his eyes as if exhausted. But his lips were moving.

"I have a good chance," he said. "It is not the worst poison I feared, but it is bad enough. Let me sleep now. When I wake I shall be either in this world or with my ancestors."

Katherine was at the side of the cot as he finished speaking and bent over him with a tense, watching face. The rest of us stood silent, motionless, stunned by the unexpected, tragic development in the search of the box.

My father crossed to us and spoke softly.

"You would better wait somewhere else," he said. "Even Katherine can do no good now. His fate is on the knees of the gods."

"How long?" Lillian asked. I could not have spoken if my life had depended upon my utterance.

"Before you came down," my father said. "Lee Chow anticipated every step of this procedure. He said if the poison was that for which the fluid in the blue bottle was an antidote, he would be dead or the poison of the needle would be beaten in less than half an hour. Of course he will be weak afterward, but safe. And he will sleep during all of this period, so there really is no reason why you should stay."

LIFE IS SAVED

"And a dozen why we should go," Lillian said promptly, "the chief among them being the necessity for keeping the house quiet. Come, Madge, let's do police duty."

We slipped out of the room unheeded, for every face in it was turned to the sleeping man on the cot.

For more than the half hour named we "rode herd," in Lillian's expressive parlance, upon the rest of the household, seeing that the older boys and girls stayed upon the tennis courts, and amusing Roderick and Junior to the best of our ability. I tried to fight down my nervousness and to emulate Lillian's poker calm, but when finally Dicky came out of the little room looking for us, she was as quickly tense as I in her grasp of his arm.

"Is he—" I began, and could not finish.

"No." Dicky was emphatic. "He's very much alive. Katherine doesn't want him to talk after what he's been through, but I guess he's hep to those Oriental poisons and knows just how far he can go with 'em. At any rate, he wants you two to come back while he chants the saga of the other night."

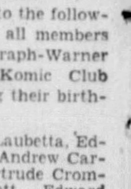
SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB



Mildred Rotthoff, cashier of the Rowland Theater, Wilkinsburg, where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meets on Saturday, again had complete charge of the program. "Midd," as she is known to the hundreds of boys and girls of the Komic Club, called the meeting to order just as the clock was striking 12 and led the children in the singing of "America" and in the recitation of the club pledge.

Following the opening ceremonies the Rowland Junior Comic Orchestra played several popular numbers which the members took delight in singing. This orchestra, which was organized about two months ago, has proven very popular with the members and is under the direction of John Gilbert.

PRIZES AWARDED

John Rindt was awarded a baseball for being the best "peanut roller" at the meeting and Mary Jane Pyles received a pass to the Rowland, good for one week for being the best girl peanut roller. These two are expected to compete Saturday for the title of "champion peanut roller of the Rowland Theater."

At the Memorial Theater, McKeesport, the members were entertained by the following boys and girls:

Cookie Olsen..Song and Dance
Violet Barley.....Tap Dance
Vera Hollywood.....Song
Norma Karber.....Toe Dance
Bill Mossburg.....Song
Jean Brown.....Tap Dance
Dorothy Smith.....Song

ROWLAND NEWS

The members of the Rowland Chapter were informed that one of their little playmates, who by the way up until Saturday never missed a meeting, has been taken to the hospital to have her appendix removed. She is little Louise Alexander and when the members heard this news they asked Manager Dick Brown to write her a letter and tell her to recover quickly as she was being missed at the meetings.

Lola Klinefletter has just moved to Wilkinsburg. She formerly lived in Brentwood. She and her little brother, "Bill," who is 8, joined the Junior Komic Club Saturday and liked it very much. They both promised that they would attend each meeting.

Margaret and Kathrine Berrie have just returned from a long automobile trip through Ohio. They visited many places of interest and many old friends and schoolmates.

Dorothy Rush also has returned from her vacation at Milton Lake. Dorothy reports that she was in the lake swimming, both day and night. She says, "It's a wonder I didn't turn into a fish, all the time I spent in the water."

Eugene Williams has gone to Philadelphia for a week. He'll return the day after tomorrow and report at school on Thursday.

Loretta Cariso is visiting her grandmother here in Wilkinsburg for a few days and attended the meeting last week when she joined the Junior Komic Club. Her home town is Verona.

"An Analysis of Domestic Relations in the Modern World" is the title of a snappy reference book just written by Professor McThumbtack Doakes. Today we print for the first time a picture of Emil Frisby, upstanding son of Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby. Emil has just reached man's estate and expects to vote for his father this fall. Note that he is wearing the Frisby Backbone Supporter, which causes him to stand erect rather than slump forward in a lazy, spineless manner as though his vertebrae were strung on spaghetti. "I am proud of Emil," says Congressman Frisby, "and, unless I miss my guess, he will soon occupy a post in the government service. He is slated for the prohibition enforcement service, and also shoots a good game of pool."

CHAPTER XIV.

Winter passed, spring came, another summer, another winter, another spring.

Val was almost 21. She had a new friend, Janice Fletcher. She met her at evening art school, where she went two evenings a week, for lack of anything better to do. She was sick of stenography, sick of her office, afraid to quit because there wouldn't be anything better anywhere else.

Twice she wrote letters to her mother, who was living in Milwaukee and had something to do with a stage guild, asking to be allowed to come to her. But the letters were never mailed. She tore them up. Since Millie didn't write, she wouldn't force herself.

It was funny about Millie. Millie wrote Aunt Julia, but never wrote to her. Sometimes Aunt Julia let her see the letters. They were full of love for herself and not much news.

Millie seemed to be alone. She had never married Jim Atkinson. That was strange . . .

Closing her eyes, Val could still see Jim as he was years ago, so straight and hard and thin, his tanned face, his blue coats...

And Millie, so lovely, so warm and beautiful and loving.

She asked Aunt Julia. Aunt Julia was always evasive, always tight-lipped and shifty-eyed when asked about Millie. Val's feelings were hurt, she hated to ask . . . why should she have to ask? Her own mother . . . why should Millie write to Aunt Julia and not to her?

CRUEL TO MILLIE

She didn't know that Aunt Julia had laid down the law, pointed out that with things as they were the least she could do was stay away and refrain from communicating with Valentine.

"I have been her real mother, raised her right ever since she was 8. What have you ever done for her? You could have kept her if you wanted to. You were young and strong, you could have come and stayed right with me, and let me keep Val in the daytimes, and you could have had a room with Val in my home. I told you that, but no, you had to go off to Honolulu and disgrace us.

"Do you think anyone would look at Valentine if they knew the kind of mother she had? No! Now I've done my best to keep the skeleton in the closet and you're the skeleton, so you stay there. If you love her you'll see it my way and do as I say."

If you love her . . . Millie Macfarlane, Millie Shalor now (not legally but every other way) put her still lovely head on her white hands and wept.

She did love Valentine. If it would help her to stay away . . . besides, she wasn't much of a letter writer and they moved so much . . . Later on, when Vincent's wife died and they were married. . .

SENDS MONEY FOR VAL

Vincent's wife must die sometime. It wasn't reasonable to think she could live forever. Or she might weaken and let Vincent get a divorce, though Vincent had given up hope of that, and then . . . and then she'd be Mrs. Vincent Shalor and she and Val could be together again. They'd be like sisters . . . happy, oh so happy! So Millie dreamed.

"You can thank your mother for that," Aunt Julia said one day when Val came home and found that her bed, the little single bed she had always had, and which of late had sagged in the middle like a hammock, was replaced by a new one.

"My mother?"

"Yes, she's sending more than I need now, what with your paying board and all. I've got quite a nest egg tucked away for you."

Aunt Julia's face burned. She felt she should have said more of this. Perhaps she hadn't done just right by Millie. Millie had been generous the last few years. A good thing, too, because her own income had dwindled to almost nothing.

People talked about depression. Maybe she ought to go back to dressmaking, and not use any of Millie's money for the housekeeping. But she wasn't feeling just as well as she used to. Her head . . . it felt queer sometimes. Maybe she ought to see a doctor, but she hated them. Besides, a doctor would probably tell her she'd have to have an operation and go to a hospital and she wouldn't do that, no siree!

So Millie's money, the money intended for luxuries, extravagances for Val, was going into necessities and into an overgrowing savings account in Val's name.

Synopsis

Now Go On

Val's lifelong friend, Marjorie Bemis, Mrs. Vogel now, was living in Hollywood. Another friend who married about the time Marjorie did had a baby nearly a year old. The little Careys, Ruth and Georgie, and the baby Vivian whom she and Joe had so often pushed in the big, old baby buggy, were almost grown up, Vivian was 13.

JOE CAREY RETURNS

Mrs. Clarkson, next door, who used to put so much white powder on her round, swarthy face and considered herself hardly more than a girl, was gray and talked about her dizzy spells and how much her feet hurt, instead of love and scandal as she used to do.

Not that she overlooked the scandal about Betty Carey. Betty came home with a husband last September and now she had a tiny baby boy.

"A seven-months baby!" Mrs. Carey went around telling everybody, "but such a cute little tad!"

"Ha, ha! That's what SHE says!" Mrs. Clarkson guffawed to everyone who would listen.

It all made Val feel very old and out of things. Her days were so dull. Office. Home. Movie or a book. Bed.

Then Joe Carey came home on a two months vacation.

Val didn't even know he was coming. Aunt Julia, seeing a great bustle going on in the house across the way, knew that something was happening over there and decided that Elwyn, who was sent east to some prep school after a scrape he got into at home, was coming back.

But it wasn't Elwyn, it was Joe.

MOTHER IS PROUD

Mrs. Carey, beside herself with excitement, bustled over to tell the news, and arrived just as Val and Aunt Julia were finishing dinner.

They were both surprised to see her. Since the old days when she used to make a practice of dropping in to borrow sugar and eggs and other things she was out of, she had not been in their house.

Now, panting a little, her not too fresh house dress strained tightly across her enormous bosom, she accepted Aunt Julia's lukewarm invitation to have a cup of tea and a piece of cake with them, poured out her tale of Joe's success, his wonderful, unbelievable success in Minneapolis.

Everybody else out of work or doing next to nothing, and her Joe was forging ahead, being consulted about his idea for modern factories and office buildings. Got all over his silly art ideas, and settled right down to brass tacks.

Changed, her Joey . . . but not changed about his mother. Still her sweetheart, still wanting to get home to her. First vacation he'd had in three years, and what did he do with it? Rush out on the first train to come west, to see her.

BOASTS ABOUT SON

"Cripple?"

"My feet, Miss Macfarland. Honest, my feet are just terrible. Mis' Clarkson complains about hers, but mine! Look at them shoes. I'm ashamed of them, honest I am. My arches have all fallen in. I tell you, when you've raised a family like I have and now with Betty's to look after in the bargain . . . Of course, you never had no children, Miss Macfarlane—

"No, I never did!"

"That's it. Unless you been through it you don't know a mother's heart. Well, I gotta be goin'. Some day I'll trouble you for that cake receipt. I'll have to be stirrin' up a cake for Joe. He sure thinks his ma's cookin' beats 'em all . . ."

Her roving eyes wandered from Aunt Julia's kitchen cabinet, with its neat rows of blue and white willow dishes, to the untouched cake on Val's plate, traveled up to Val's expressionless face.

"You'll be seein' Joe, I expect," she said with a false affability. "Joe and you was always so chummy. Funny what ideas kiddies will get. Well, I must be goin'.

"You won't hardly know Joe. Seems hard for me to think of him 24 already. Seems only yesterday he was born and I was so sick they give me up for dead . . . Well! It's one thing after another. He has plenty girls chasin' him now. But I'm still his sweetheart. 'Ma,' he said to me, 'ma' . . ."

"Girls after him, eh?" Aunt Julia couldn't resist that. She showed all her teeth, ran her long pink tongue over her lips, the way she did when something particularly pleased her.

She caught Val's amused, self-conscious smile.

"One girl, Pearl Neely, her name is, has got him hooked, far as that goes. They're engaged. Joe's given her a ring. But he says to me, he says, 'Ma, I won't ever marry her until you say it's oke with you. You come first, Ma,' he says—"

"Quite a wonderful boy, I'm sure," Aunt Julia said, rising to clear the table, pretending not to notice that Mrs. Carey expected to be asked to have another piece of cake.

Val slipped out of the room. Closed the door.

Joe . . . engaged . . . not that it made any difference to her, of course . . . Joe engaged . . .

Lee Chow Likely to Recover From Strange Poison

I could not hear Lillian breathe, and I know my own breath was suspended, for those few seconds after we had seen Lee Chow jerk his hand back, forcing out from his finger the slender needle from the mysterious package in Marion's lock box.

Harry and Katherine made a lightning-like change as she held out to him the surgeon's lancet, according to the directions that Lee Chow had given before he opened the box and ran his fingers over the knobs in the unopened envelope.

Harry grasped the lancet. Katherine took hold of the twisted tourniquet around the second finger of the right hand, and Harry, following the hastily muttered directions of Lee Chow, who was indicating with the forefinger of his left hand just where the needle had entered, cut deeply into the flesh at that point and again in two places just below the first.

Then he dropped the lancet and seized the tourniquet again, while Katherine manipulated the finger to make it bleed more freely and then dressed it. But she was covertly and anxiously watching Lee Chow's face while she worked. I realized the reason for the camp cot that I had seen set up in the corner of the room when, as she finished, Lee Chow slumped against Hugh Grantland, who had stood directly back of him.

With Dicky's aid, Hugh supported the almost unconscious figure of his friend to the cot and stretched him out upon it. But Lee Chow was not wholly unconscious. He spoke clearly.

"I can tell now which poison it is. Give me—what—I told—you—the—blue bottle—please."

FATE IN BALANCE

It was Hugh who measured a potion from a blue bottle that, with several others, we now saw standing upon the writing desk. Lee Chow swallowed it with apparent difficulty and then closed his eyes as if exhausted. But his lips were moving.

"I have a good chance," he said. "It is not the worst poison I feared, but it is bad enough. Let me sleep now. When I wake I shall be either in this world or with my ancestors."

Katherine was at the side of the cot as he finished speaking and bent over him with a tense, watching face. The rest of us stood silent, motionless, stunned by the unexpected, tragic development in the search of the box.

My father crossed to us and spoke softly.

"You would better wait somewhere else," he said. "Even Katherine can do no good now. His fate is on the knees of the gods."

"How long?" Lillian asked. I could not have spoken if my life had depended upon my utterance.

"Before you came down," my father said, "Lee Chow anticipated every step of this procedure. He said if the poison was that for which the fluid in the blue bottle was an antidote, he would be dead or the poison of the needle would be beaten in less than half an hour. Of course he will be weak afterward, but safe. And he will sleep during all of this period, so there really is no reason why you should stay."

LIFE IS SAVED

"And a dozen why we should go," Lillian said promptly, "the chief among them being the necessity for keeping the house quiet. Come, Madge, let's do police duty."

We slipped out of the room unheeded, for every face in it was turned to the sleeping man on the cot.

For more than the half hour named we "rode herd," in Lillian's expressive parlance, upon the rest of the household, seeing that the older boys and girls stayed upon the tennis courts, and amusing Roderick and Junior to the best of our ability. I tried to fight down my nervousness and to emulate Lillian's poker calm, but when finally Dicky came out of the little room looking for us, she was as quickly tense as I in her grasp of his arm.

"Is he—" I began, and could not finish.

"No." Dicky was emphatic. "He's very much alive. Katherine doesn't want him to talk after what he's been through, but I guess he's hep to those Oriental poisons and knows just how far he can go with 'em. At any rate, he wants you two to come back while he chants the saga of the other night."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Mildred Rotthoff, cashier of the Rowland Theater, Wilkinsburg, where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meets on Saturday, again had complete charge of the program. "Midd," as she is known to the hundreds of boys and girls of the Komic Club, called the meeting to order just as the clock was striking 12 and led the children in the singing of "America" and in the recitation of the club pledge.

Following the opening ceremonies the Rowland Junior Comic Orchestra played several popular numbers which the members took delight in singing. This orchestra, which was organized about two months ago, has proven very popular with the members and is under the direction of John Gilbert.

PRIZES AWARDED

John Rindt was awarded a baseball for being the best "peanut roller" at the meeting and Mary Jane Pyles received a pass to the Rowland, good for one week for being the best girl peanut roller. These two are expected to compete Saturday for the title of "champion peanut roller of the Rowland Theater."

At the Memorial Theater, McKeesport, the members were entertained by the following boys and girls:

Cookie Olsen..Song and Dance
Violet Barley.....Tap Dance
Vera Hollywood.....Song
Norma Karber.....Toe Dance
Bill Mossburg.....Song
Jean Brown.....Tap Dance
Dorothy Smith.....Song

ROWLAND NEWS

The members of the Rowland Chapter were informed that one of their little playmates, who by the way up until Saturday never missed a meeting, has been taken to the hospital to have her appendix removed. She is little Louise Alexander and when the members heard this news they asked Manager Dick Brown to write her a letter and tell her to recover quickly as she was being missed at the meetings.

Lola Klinefletter has just moved to Wilkinsburg. She formerly lived in Brentwood. She and her little brother, "Bill," who is 8, joined the Junior Komic Club Saturday and liked it very much. They both promised that they would attend each meeting.

Margaret and Kathrine Berrie have just returned from a long automobile trip through Ohio. They visited many places of interest and many old friends and schoolmates.

Dorothy Rush also has returned from her vacation at Milton Lake. Dorothy reports that she was in the lake swimming, both day and night. She says, "It's a wonder I didn't turn into a fish, all the time I spent in the water."

Eugene Williams has gone to Philadelphia for a week. He'll return the day after tomorrow and report at school on Thursday.

Loretta Cariso is visiting her grandmother here in Wilkinsburg for a few days and attended the meeting last week when she joined the Junior Komic Club. Her home town is Verona.

"An Analysis of Domestic Relations in the Modern World" is the title of a snappy reference book just written by Professor McThumbtack Doakes. Today we print for the first time a picture of Emil Frisby, upstanding son of Congressman Horace Walpole Frisby. Emil has just reached man's estate and expects to vote for his father this fall. Note that he is wearing the Frisby Backbone Supporter, which causes him to stand erect rather than slump forward in a lazy, spineless manner as though his vertebrae were strung on spaghetti. "I am proud of Emil," says Congressman Frisby, "and, unless I miss my guess, he will soon occupy a post in the government service. He is slated for the prohibition enforcement service, and also shoots a good game of pool."

Inexcusable

Detectives Who Resort to High-Handed Methods Should Be Held to Strict Account.

The case of Garret Schenck, who was found held as a prisoner in a deserted farm house in Somerset County and released through the efforts of Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, calls for court proceedings against those who abducted and imprisoned him.

Schenck was seized at Hopewell, N. J., it is charged, by a private detective who suspected him of complicity in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby. He was carried into the mountains of Pennsylvania and held a prisoner, under guard, for 76 days.

One of the guards is quoted as saying he was promised "a $1,000 cut when the break came." He understood "the break" to mean an expected confession by Schenck. But it is declared by the authorities that Schenck's innocence has been practically established.

It will not do to dismiss the affair as a regrettable mistake caused by excess of zeal on the part of the private detective and his assistants in the plot.

They should be held to strict account for the use of illegal methods. If it is true that they abducted an innocent man and held him a prisoner, without the use of any legal writ or authority whatever, they should be held for the grand jury. It is astonishing that the men involved should have been released on their own recognizance and not required to post bond.

Even if there were evidence incriminating Schenck there would have been no excuse for the adoption of unlawful measures in arresting him, not even by duly authorized police, much less by private detectives.

Favoritism in Relief

It Is Best Not to Entrust the Work to Partisan Political Associations.

At the suggestion of local congressmen the Allegheny County Emergency Association authorized 133 agencies to distribute government flour to the destitute.

One of the agencies, the Twenty-First Ward Relief Association, is said to have been influenced by political considerations in the distribution. Politicians are prominent in the association, and at their behest, it is charged, persons who had voted for certain candidates were specially favored.

The charge is denied. But S. E. Claney, director of the Emergency Association, has thought it best, nevertheless, to withdraw the distribution privilege from associations with political connections.

He was well advised in taking this course. Partisan political groups would be under strong temptation to favor their own followers, and it is just as well not to subject them to temptation.

If they wish to distribute food to the needy among their own following, let them buy it themselves. Government flour and other relief supplies furnished by governmental agencies are paid for by all the taxpayers, regardless of party, and should be distributed accordingly.

The Farcical Blue Law

The Statute Regulating Sunday Activities No Longer Commands Respect.

A theater in Franklin, Pa., has presented movies every Sunday for three months.

This is in violation of the Blue Law. The proprietor accordingly pays $17.40 every Monday as a fine. He regards it as a license fee.

If this is not contempt for law, what is it?

The fact is that the Blue Law no longer commands public respect anywhere. It is violated in one way or another in all parts of Pennsylvania.

In Erie Sunday movies and professional baseball games are given without interference by the police.

We do not have Sunday movies and ball games in Pittsburgh, but we have Sunday golf games in which caddies are employed, and nothing is done about it.

The Blue Law is a joke. But it is an annoying joke, and should be repealed.

Too Long a Suspension

Summer Should Not Be Permitted to Interfere With the Business of the Court

The courts, which, in accordance with custom, suspended many of their activities during the last two months, resumed business today.

The reopening of Criminal Court will be a boon to some of the nearly 200 prisoners who have been held in the county jail this summer awaiting proceedings by the grand jury. Unable to furnish bail and unable to get action on their cases unless they would plead guilty, they have had to suffer imprisonment whether guilty or not.

The long summer vacation of the courts causes the accumulation of a great quantity of business.

There is no good reason why summer should be permitted to interfere with the business of the courts. Its business should proceed just as other business does. The long suspension is without justification.

The Starling

A Much Maligned Bird Is Found to Be of Assistance to Mankind as an Insect Destroyer.

The starling, a European bird not without honor in its own country, was introduced into the United States some 20 years ago, and is now fairly common in Pennsylvania, especially in the eastern part of the state.

Like many other species of foreign flora and fauna that have found their way into the United States, the starling has made itself more or less of a pest. The principal charge against it is that it congregates in great flocks in cities.

In consequence the Pennsylvania Legislature has made it an outlaw by withholding the protection granted to most birds.

It is a pleasure to learn that the starling has redeeming qualities. Praise comes from the Game Commission, which has found on examination of the stomach contents of starlings that they are great destroyers of injurious insects.

That should atone for a multitude of sins.

What Do You Mean, No Fish?

By Nelson Harding

The man is tacking notices
Upon the trees that say:
"There is no use in fishing here—
"There are no fish today."

But we cannot believe in signs
All posted there to fool
The patient fisherman who sees
Big trout jump in the pool.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Just a Bowl of Ice Cubes

A man would rather be tied to a popular girl's chariot wheels than worshiped by a wallflower; but a wise girl prefers the devotion of an "also ran" to the casual kisses of a conquering Adonis.

* * *

Some girls don't subscribe to nudism, theoretically; but their idea of clothes, this past summer, seemed to include very little besides a silk handkerchief and a heavy coat of tan.

* * *

A woman need know only 20 per cent of a man's character in order to understand him perfectly. In the other 80 per cent, he is just a replica of all other men.

The average man's heart, these days, is just a bowl of ice cubes, which he passes around to all the women, impartially.

* * *

Somehow, the simple fact that a woman married him always seems to convince her husband that she couldn't attract any other man. While the simple fact that a man married her always seems to make a woman suspect that he is trying to attract every other woman.

* * *

You know that "brunch" is a combination of breakfast and lunch; and that the "dret plank" is the dry-wet plank. But did you know that a "blondette" is a platinum blonde beginning to turn dark at the roots?

Many a man who vows he would "go to the devil for you" would be surprised and hurt if he thought you expected him to go as far as the altar end of the church aisle.

* * *

Funny, but when a man loves his wife, we say, "What a good husband he is!" When his wife loves him, we say, "What a good husband he must BE!"

* * *

The modern young thing is so frank and artless that when she wants to find out how to attract a man she goes right to his wife and asks her.

* * *

Isn't It So?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Not far from Avenue A is an old-time corner saloon as pristine as a canopied surrey. Karl Kitchen, a shark at excavating metropolitan antiquities, took me there. Nothing has changed in the 52 years of its existence. A grandson of its founder now tends bar.

A cat naps on a window ledge. The mirror is frescoed with soapy curlicues suggesting a four-master breasting a wave. Salty pretzels and blobs of cheese fill a bowl and a pewter container holds cloves, cinnamon and coffee. There is a ceiling-high ice box, gas jet, chandeliers and a yeasty odor.

The present owner and his bartending son live upstairs with their families. Old men, in pipe-smoking silence, play pinochle at a corner table. Now and then a spindly-legged child stretches an arm upward to the bar with a tin bucket—reviving the ancient custom of "rushing the growler."

A cheerful, bandy-legged fellow is a combination porter, back-room waiter and runner of inglorious errands. Every saloon had one of these humbler heroes. Now and then a jetsam madam sits alone in gloomy reflection or a swell in plus-fours and leading a wire-hair drops in from Sutton Place for a beer.

Beer, incidentally, is the only beverage. Perhaps the only modern touch is the radio plannissimo. There is no speakeasy peephole scrutiny. The "Family Entrance" is open at 7 a. m. and closes promptly at 1. There was no denying the charm of its mellowness and the fascination of its types.

* * *

The saloon was an abominable institution and should never stage a come-back. Yet, I could not help but compare this relic of other days with the murderous speakeasies that honeycomb every block. Crude as the old saloon was, it had none of the viciousness of the modern speak.

The passing of Budd's may mean little to an oncoming generation. But to elders it recalls a deluxe haberdashery, known from coast to coast. A Budd shirt or tie was a symbol of swank. A high-priced shop, it could not stand the prolonged depression. So creditors took it over.

* * *

There was a clerk at the Budd's, below Fulton, I shall ever remember. In that julep of abandon that comes with the weekly pay and Saturday half day, I walked around from a newspaper office to gaze into Budd's window. A gloriously blue tie with incarnadine stripes fired my fancy. I stepped in to inquire the price. It was $7. In a lunatic seizure of selfconsciousness, I had it sent C. O. D. to a suddenly thoughtup name at the old Waldorf. Then I backed out. My deception worried me, so I dropped a postcard anonymously to the store, explaining my trick was an outcropping of sudden embarrassment over the price. A few days later in a noonday walk on Dey street, I ran into the clerk. He stopped, shook hands and wangled my name and address. That night the tie had been delivered with his compliments.

The seasoned crook trembles at the implication in that underworld phrasing: "If you don't, it will be just too bad." It may mean anything from a machine gunning to a throat slitting. What inspired this reflection was a telephonic invitation from a night club impresario opening a new haunt. I explained my night club enthusiasm had jelled and that I was a fireside corner boy. In his insistence he said: "If you don't come, it will be just too bad." And if you think I won't be there, you are just plain silly.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

WHY CAN'T WE LEARN FROM OTHER PEOPLE'S EXPERIENCE?

Wouldn't it be great if we could learn from other people's experience?

Suppose we could survey Smith's life and avoid the mistakes which made a fool of him—

Or suppose we could hear of Jones' early struggles and from them get fresh courage to tackle our own obstacles—

Wouldn't it be grand? It surely would. Then why can't we... why can't we profit by the experience of others?

BECAUSE WE WILL NEVER ADMIT THAT THE EXPERIENCES OF OTHERS ARE THE SAME AS OURS.

We'll never admit that the other fellow had as hard a time as we're having.

We'll never admit that his folks were as mean to him as ours are to us—

Or that he was as tired after working 18 hours a day as we are—

Or that he wanted fun as much as we do—

Or that he suffered from criticism and opportunity as much as we do—

We're willing enough to hear about Jones and how he made good from the scratch. And we profess a hearty admiration for his spunk.

But secretly we're sure that he had better breaks than we are having—

He had pull—

Or he had luck—

Or he had powerful friends—

He had SOMETHING we lack—

So what's the use of our trying to succeed as Jones did?

So we don't try. And instead of profiting by Jones' success, we use his example to excuse our own failure.

Until presently we are using all our energy in making excuses and in being sorry for ourselves.

But we're just kidding ourselves. We're not different from Jones... or millions of other humans who have surmounted difficulties. Our obstacles aren't any greater than theirs—our sufferings aren't any keener. They didn't have any better breaks. And if they could win through, so can we—provided we use the same amount of spunk and good judgment in choosing our goal.

And deep in our hearts we know that this is true. But we won't admit it. For it gratifies our conceit, and comforts our cowardice, and alibis our self-indulgence to pretend that life is picking-on-us-particularly.

WHEN IT COMES RIGHT DOWN TO BRASS TACKS, IT'S A LOT EASIER TO BE A SELF-SATISFIED MARTYR THAN A SELF-MADE SUCCESS. SO WE TAKE THE EASIER WAY.

Beauty's Followers

All you who follow Beauty
And worship from afar
Her tints in every violet,
Her touch in every star.

All you who find her glamor
In looks of youth and lass
And watch the fading wonder
Across old faces pass;

I join with you in vowing
Allegiance without end
To one who never fails our faith,
Whatever life may send.

Though none can tell of Beauty
Just how it is, or why
Some evanescent loveliness
Can lift our spirits high,

We sense her potent magic
In violet and star,
All we who follow Beauty
And worship from afar.

Moses Has Not Plumbed the Depths

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The resignation of James J. Walker, Mayor of New York, with the determination to appeal in due time to the judgment of the people at the polls, puts a termination to the party conspiracy hatched by Mr. Hoover and his crowd in Washington long ago. The purpose was apparent from the very beginning. Meanwhile fair-minded people will wish for Mr. Walker, worn to nervous exhaustion and broken by the death of his brother, a speedy recovery of health and spirit.

'Maneuvering' To Cancel Debt

The mysterious visit of Prof. Skinner, alias Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, coincident with the return of Andrew Mellon, our ambassador to London, has been interpreted by Representative Wood, ranking Republican member of the Committee on Appropriations in the House, as "a new move for the cancellation of the war debts." It is significant that he expressed this opinion immediately after a visit to Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Wood required no uncanny penetration to reach this conclusion:

Not only the debtor countries, Mr. Wood, but the international bankers in this country, who are lined up to a man behind the candidacy of your nominee under whose flag you are running for re-election this fall.

It must have been known by Mr. Wood at the time of the Republican convention that there would be just a "maneuvering;" and that Mr. Hoover had opened the way for it deliberately, until Jack Garner called the turn in the conference at the White House when the moratorium was proposed. Under the circumstances, since Mr. Wood is against the transfer—in the midst of his campaign—it would have been more impressive if he had insisted on the commitment of the party and the administration against it in the party platform.

* * *

Nation Faces Heavier Burden

Mr. Wood is having the fight of his life for re-election. He is opposed by an able and popular opponent. The conditions, economically in his district in Indiana are pitiful. Gary is a dead city. The district is overrun by the unemployed. The farmers are almost as much aroused as those in Iowa. The business men are groaning under the weight of taxation that is not sufficient to balance the budget even with the appalling increase imposed for the purpose last winter. The Treasury is running $400,000,000 behind now. If the debtor nations do not make their payment this year the budget, which contemplates these payments, will be thrown off just that much more—necessitating a still heavier burden.

And so the transfer of the debts to Americans is not popular in any district between the seas.

But Mr. Wood is running with the blessing and support of the international bankers who are behind Mr. Hoover, and perhaps Mr. Wood will explain to his constituency just why these financiers are aligning upon his side.

And perhaps he can persuade Mr. Hoover to say definitely in unequivocable language now, before his election, just what his policy is to be in this regard after the election.

* * *

Moses Seems Confident

Meanwhile, Senator Moses, who thinks the spokesmen of the farmers are "sons of the wild jack-ass," issues a statement after his dinner in the millionaire colony at Newport, to the effect that the East will go for "four years more of Hoover"—because there is no interest in the campaign.

The truth is, the major part of the people made up their minds long ago. The millions unemployed have not made up their minds for four years more of Hoover. The farmers have not. The veterans, and even those who were against the immediate payment of the bonus, have not—since the denunciation of these unfortunate veterans as "bums and hoboes" and their expulsion from the nation's capital with the use of bayonets and tanks. They are not discussing the campaign—they are waiting for the opportunity at the polls.

* * *

No Interest In Dry Issue?

Senator Moses is sure there is no interest in prohibition. If they are not interested now I, for one, shall not be interested in the future, and there are millions of the same way of thinking. But Senator Moses, with effrontry, explains why there is "no interest." He says:

"I find little interest in prohibition. People seem to have come to the conclusion, in view of the declarations of both parties, that something is going to happen to prohibition regardless of which presidential nominee is elected. They don't know just what is going to happen, but they are letting it go at that."

In view of the declarations of both parties. Tell that to the New York Herald-Tribune—and Sun—and Post—all of which found a difference in the platform. There is scarcely a liberal Republican paper in the East that did not denounce the Republican plank put in under the whip and spur of Mr. Hoover, acting through Ogden Mills in command of three hundred federal retainers of the President, as cowardly, crooked, dishonest. Borah, the dry, did it, and so did Nicholas Murray Butler, the wet.

* * *

Everyone Knows What Will Happen

And Moses, with the coolness of one long practiced in political chicanery, adds that "no one knows just what is going to happen" in the event of either a Democratic or Republican victory—and that is effrontry, too.

Read the plank dictated by Mr. Hoover, forced in under the lash of Ogden Mills, with the votes of 300 of Mr. Hoover's official dependents, and tell us what is going to happen. That plank was written so that no one would know what is going to happen.

But the organized prohibition forces are sure they know what is going to happen and that is the reason they are taking such an interest in the re-election of Mr. Hoover.

And everyone, and that includes even Senator Moses, knows precisely what is going to happen if the Democrats win. Steps immediately will be taken for the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment; and since that is a long process, the Volstead act immediately will be modified to permit the manufacture and sale of beer in every state where the people want it.

* * *

Meanwhile the 10,000,000 jobless and their dependents are taking interest in the campaign. They know Mr. Hoover's attitude of cold indifference when not that of impatience toward their problem; know that he fought and prevented an adequate public building program; know that Pat Hurley, the administration crooner, said with smug "respectability," that the jobless would have to shift for themselves; and know that Mr. Hoover finally, under the pressure of necessity, agreed to the expenditure of a little more than $300,000,000 on public works for which plans already have been made.

They know the administration has not kept faith even there.

And they read that Ogden Mills by the first of October will decide whether the money can be used at all.

In view of conditions in the land today, it would be a sad reflection on American intelligence were there no interest in the campaign. The international bankers are interested for Hoover. Wall Street is interested—for Hoover. The masses are interested if quiet. Let Moses meditate on this:
